ISSUE: Status update regarding BC 'Idle No More' public awareness campaign in British Columbia. (File EDIV 2013-083)

BACKGROUND:

- The 'Idle No More' (INM) movement continues to remain peaceful. Public awareness demonstrations regarding First Nations relations with the Government of Canada continue.

- Demonstrations have been held at shopping malls, First Nations and government buildings, roads and highways, and international border crossings. To date, all demonstrations have been peaceful with varying attendance.

- On January 11th Prime Minister Harper met with approximately 20 First Nations leaders. An 'Idle No More' National Day of Action was organized to coincide with the meeting. Approximately 35 'Idle No More' demonstrations occurred in BC.

- On January 16th a "National Day of Action" was organized advocating to "disrupt the Canadian economy." Three relatively minor demonstrations occurred in BC.

- The January 28th "National Day of Action" coincided with the re-opening of Parliament; 14 demonstrations occurred in BC.

CURRENT STATUS:

- Upcoming 'Idle No More' demonstrations (refer to attached timeline):

  - February 27 to March 14, Victoria: Multiple INM events on lawn of BC Legislature.
  - March 1, Vancouver: March to DFO offices on Burrard Street in opposition to fish farms.
  - March 5, Victoria: INM workshop focussed on non-First Nations at UVic.

- CN Rail continues to hold a court injunction with an enforcement order which is enforceable province wide.

- This information has been shared with local detachments and public safety agencies including, Vancouver Police Department, Victoria Police Department, Stl'atl'imx Tribal Police, E Division BIP/Ports, CBSA, CN Police, CP Police, Marine Security Operations Centre (MSOC) and Ministry of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation (MARR).

- Further information will be shared with impacted jurisdictions through District Command.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

- Idle No More events have abated significantly, however, efforts to raise awareness of First Nations issues continue through social media and educational forums.

Sir,

A change needs to be made in the matrix that has surfaced:

"INM Workshop at the University of Victoria to discuss, debate and training workshop. Geared towards non- FN and organized by Unistoten camp organizers. " should have read:

"INM Workshop at the University of Victoria to discuss, debate and train on topics such as anti-oppression and politics related to First Nations. Geared towards non- FN persons."

BRIEFING NOTE TO Criminal Operations

NOTE D=INFORMATION

DET/UNIT: Millbrook Date: 2013-02-28

INVESTIGATOR: Cpl SACK File: 2013-2311501

TYPE OF INCIDENT: Idle No More Protest- Hunger Strike

LOCATION: Millbrook Nova Scotia

DATE of INCIDENT: March 01 2013 Time: 00:01

Persons involved-

PURPOSE: To inform the Cr.Ops officer of the event in the event of Media coverage $ ISSUE: Protest against Made in Nova Scotia, Made in New Brunswick Framework agreement.

$ BACKGROUND: Commencing at 00:01 on2013-03-01 it is expected that an unknown number of Idle No More Supporters will commence a Hunger Strike in Millbrook. Same is believed to be an expression of dissatisfaction against First Nation Leader in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick for entering into a Framework agreement for," Made in Atlantic Canada." It is not known at this time what specifically the hunger strikers objectives are or what they will consider a success.

$ CURRENT STATUS: It is expected that while those actually committed to a hunger strike will be few in numbers support for these individuals will be significant however numbers are not yet attainable.

BRIEFING NOTE TO Criminal Operations

NOTE D=INFORMATION

$ Location is known to be the Porcupine lodge in Millbrook near the Pow Wow grounds. Patrol has confirmed activity at this site.

- As it is the band's position that this event is designed to bring negative media attention to the first nation community leaders. seeking the police assistance in serving any non band members at the event with a Notice under the Protection of Property Act. The limitation of service of such have been explained as well as the right of band members pursuant to the Indian act to invite people onto the reserve which would likely negate the bands desire to have non band members expelled from the community.
- Significant media attention may occur, based on the media attention the hunger strike of Chief Spence attained. It should be considered that these individuals do not have the notoriety that Chief Spence does or did have but none the less will likely receive some media on the initial hours /days of the event.
- This is not at this time expected to generate much police interaction other than the initial service of PPA if same can be safely done. Traditional beliefs and ceremony must be respected and may deter any service until conclusion of same.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS - none

RECOMMENDATIONS / STRATEGIC ADVICE (if applies): NCO ic Millbrook will continue to monitor the situation and should an OPS plan become necessary same will be drafted and forwarded to DPO.

Should "Measured Approach Facilitators," become necessary same will be requested through DPO.

ISSUE:

$ To provide an update to Cr.OPS on BN Submitted on a/n caption on 2013-02-28

CURRENT STATUS: The event has been declared a traditional ceremonial fast, This means the entire event is considered a traditional ceremony.

- It has been learned the two elders initially planning to take part will not for undisclosed reasons. actually taking part in the traditional ceremonial fast which may be construed as a hunger strike.
- An unknown number of supporters will also be on a rotating fast believed to be four days at a time.
- It is believed a communication person has been identified as a media contact, is this event media liaison. The rotating fast does not include It is believed they intend to fast uninterrupted.

$ APTN network has been on site as well as CBC unknown which other media outlets have been on scene.

$ There has been no activity that would at this time require a police presence.

$ Any police presence will be by invite or in response to emergency call for service. There is no justification at this point to interrupt or interfere with traditional ceremony. To do so would put the organization at unnecessary risk.

RECOMMENDATIONS / STRATEGIC ADVICE: (Identify follow-up actions or provide advice.)

Continue to monitor the event without ceremonial infringement.
If an emergency occurs respond accordingly

Good Day

My apologies, I should have included your office within in my original reporting.

Tim

FOR YOUR INFORMATION AND ACTIONS DEEMED APPROPRIATE.

As provided by E-Division Criminal Analysis Section

"Day of Action Against CHEVRON and PACIFIC TRAIL PIPELINE" Apparently sponsored by Rising Tide

"We encourage autonomous creative direct action against Chevron and any others involved in the development and financing of Pacific Trail Pipeline. Occupy offices, drop banners, demonstrate in city centres, lock-on at the pumps, subvert the Chevron brand, hand out leaflets… the choice is yours!"

BACKGROUND:

The Pacific Trails Pipeline project is a $1-billion, 463-kilometre pipeline, that will provide the Kitimat LNG terminal with excellent access to natural gas supplies in British Columbia and Alberta.
Pacific Trail Pipelines is developing the natural gas transmission pipeline system from Summit Lake to Kitimat, British Columbia, to serve Kitimat LNG Inc.'s export terminal near Kitimat, B.C.
The Pacific Trail Pipelines is proposed to be fully operational in 2015.
Pacific Trail Pipelines will provide a direct connection between the Spectra Energy Transmission pipeline system and the Kitimat LNG terminal for the transportation of natural gas from Western Canada to Asian markets.

Sir,

With approval from Sgt. Joe Taplin, please be advised that "H" Div is currently monitoring an Aboriginal Protest in the First Nation Community of Millbrook.

In summary, we have two First Nation individuals, who are engaged in a ceremonial fast (Hunger Strike) to protest against First Nation Leaders in both Nova Scotia and New Brunswick for their negotiation process with both Federal and Provincial Governments with respect to Mi'kmaq treaty rights, Aboriginal rights, including Aboriginal title, and Mi'kmaq governance.

We do expect media coverage as both APTN and CBC are reported to be on scene today.

My office will be monitoring the protest and will forward updates as appropriate.

Regards,

Debbie

ISSUE: Status update regarding BC 'Idle No More' public awareness campaign in British Columbia. (File EDIV 2013-083)

BACKGROUND:

- The 'Idle No More' (INM) movement continues to remain peaceful. Public awareness demonstrations regarding First Nations relations with the Government of Canada continue.

- Demonstrations have been held at shopping malls, First Nations and government buildings, roads and highways, and international border crossings. To date, all demonstrations have been peaceful with varying attendance.

- On January 11th Prime Minister Harper met with approximately 20 First Nations leaders. An 'Idle No More' National Day of Action was organized to coincide with the meeting. Approximately 35 'Idle No More' demonstrations occurred in BC.

- On January 16th a "National Day of Action" was organized advocating to "disrupt the Canadian economy." Three relatively minor demonstrations occurred in BC.

- The January 28th "National Day of Action" coincided with the re-opening of Parliament; 14 demonstrations occurred in BC.

CURRENT STATUS:

- Upcoming 'Idle No More' demonstrations within the next reporting period (refer to attached timeline):

  - February 27 to March 14, Victoria: Multiple INM events on lawn of BC Legislature.
  - March 9, Burnaby: Flash Mob at Metrotown, with Hip Hop singing to attract the younger crowds.
  - March 9, Vernon: Concert to raise funds for future educational forum on Bill C-45 in Okanagan region.
  - March 10, Duncan: March/ Rally from Superstore to Band office along Island Hwy.
  - March 10, Lytton: Planned disruption of Hwy 1 at the old graveyard.

- CN Rail continues to hold a court injunction with an enforcement order which is enforceable province wide.

- This information has been shared with local detachments and public safety agencies including, Vancouver Police Department, Victoria Police Department, Stl'atl'imx Tribal Police, E Division BIP/Ports, CBSA, CN Police, CP Police, Marine Security Operations Centre (MSOC) and Ministry of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation (MARR).

For any enquiries concerning the information or the caveat, please contact the OIC E-Division Aboriginal Policing Services, RCMP.

$ Further information will be shared with impacted jurisdictions through District Command.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

$ Idle No More events have abated significantly, however, efforts to raise awareness of First Nations issues continue through social media and educational forums.

$ FNP (First Nations Policing) Members are encouraged to proactively engage their communities and advise of upcoming public order events to District Command and APS.

PUBLIC SAFETY PROTOCOLS:

$ None to report at this time.

AANDC EIMD WEEKLY SITUATIONAL AWARENESS REPORT
as of Friday, March 8, 2013

This is a weekly report that provides current information and the status of activities that threaten public safety in relation to issues affecting Aboriginal peoples in Canada.

Provided within this report:
- Hot Spot Summary
- List of Final Notifications issued this week
- "Idle No More" Protests Situation Report
- Flood Situation Report

HOT SPOT SUMMARY
(New information has been bolded for your convenience.)

Except where otherwise stated, all information in this report was provided by AANDC Regional Offices.

SAKATCHEWAN

Thunderchild First Nation - Structural Fire - Apartment Building
The Thunderchild First Nation (349) is located approximately 60 kms southwest of Meadow Lake and 484 kms northwest of Regina with an on-reserve population of approximately 1,188.
On Monday, March 4, 2013, a fire destroyed a building at Thunderchild First Nation which housed a number of rental units and former training centre. There were no injuries or deaths associated with the fire. There were 31 residents evacuated and they were sheltered within the community for the evening.
The residential section of the complex was totally destroyed. The First Nation indicates they have insurance on this portion of the building. There may be some structural damage, including the walls and roof of the remaining building.

The First Nation has declared a local state of emergency. Although the declaration has been made by the First Nation, this in itself does not change the level of assistance provided by AANDC and its partners.

AANDC is working with the Saskatchewan Ministry of Social Services, the Red Cross, and with Thunderchild First Nation to assess the situation and determine short-term and long-term housing options.
Updates will be provided as information becomes available.

Prince Albert Grand Council – Protest – AANDC Saskatchewean Regional Office
The Prince Albert Grand Council is a tribal council representing the twelve First Nations located in central and northern Saskatchewan.

On Friday, March 8, 2013, the AANDC Regional Office reported that a group of approximately 200 protesters rallied outside the AANDC office in Prince Albert.

The protesters were mostly students from the Prince Albert Grand Council and were protesting the education legislation development process and funding levels for First Nations schools. Several Chiefs from the communities and vice Chief of the Federation of Saskatchewan Indian Nations were on site.

The protest was peaceful and ended without incident.

This will be the final notification unless significant developments occur.

FINAL NOTIFICATIONS ISSUED THIS WEEK

Please note that all the events below have been closed; no further notifications will be issued unless significant developments occur:

"Idle No More" Protests Situation Report

Since Sunday, December 9, 2012, approximately 470 protests have occurred as part of an announced program of activism called 'Idle No More,' which is being promoted through traditional and social media.

Idle No More is partly a response to Bill C-45, the omnibus budget bill which includes changes to the Indian Act, the Fisheries Act and the Navigable Waters Protection Act and partly a call for changes to the broader relationship between Canada and First Nations.

All protests which have already occurred have been peaceful; however some have affected the transportation sector. To date, approximately 96 protests have resulted in either interruption to rail services and border crossings or delays on various highways, streets and bridges.

While all protests have been peaceful, a significant number involved traffic disruptions: there were 26 partial blockades and 42 full blockades of either rail lines, highways, ferry stations, or bridges, as well as 28 traffic slowdowns of highways. Other protests (374) included peaceful demonstrations, marches, flash mobs in shopping centers or gatherings. There was also a one-day occupation of the AANDC ON Region Thunder Bay Office.

Except where otherwise stated, all information in this report was provided by AANDC Regional Offices, Public Safety Canada and media reports.

There were 92 protests in December 2012. In 2013, there were 295 protests in January, and 76 protests in February. So far, there have been 7 protests in March and there are two planned for April.

Updates will be provided as new information becomes available.

Planned Protests:
1. 15-Apr-2013 MB Various First Nations and/or Non-Aboriginals demonstration Enbridge Oil Transportation Gretna
2. 15-Apr-2013 AB Various First Nations and/or Non-Aboriginals march Memorial March Edmonton
Please see the timeline charts below for an overview of past and planned protests by date and region.

AANDC EIMD Flood Situation Report for Friday, March 8, 2013
(New information has been bolded for your convenience.)

The purpose of this situation report is to provide an update on floods that threaten or may threaten the health, safety and security of First Nations communities, as outlined in AANDC's National Emergency Management Plan.

Except where otherwise stated, all information in this report was provided by AANDC Regional Offices.

The total number of First Nations evacuees due to flooding is 1955, an increase of 12 since Friday, March 1, 2013.

ISSUE: Status update regarding BC 'Idle No More' public awareness campaign in British Columbia. (File EDIV 2013-083)

BACKGROUND:

- The 'Idle No More' (INM) movement continues to remain peaceful. Public awareness demonstrations regarding First Nations relations with the Government of Canada continue.

- Demonstrations have been held at shopping malls, First Nations and government buildings, roads and highways, and international border crossings. To date, all demonstrations have been peaceful with varying attendance.

- On January 11th Prime Minister Harper met with approximately 20 First Nations leaders. An 'Idle No More' National Day of Action was organized to coincide with the meeting. Approximately 35 'Idle No More' demonstrations occurred in BC.

- On January 16th a "National Day of Action" was organized advocating to "disrupt the Canadian economy." Three relatively minor demonstrations occurred in BC.

- The January 28th "National Day of Action" coincided with the re-opening of Parliament; 14 demonstrations occurred in BC.

CURRENT STATUS:

- Upcoming 'Idle No More' demonstrations within the next reporting period (refer to attached timeline):

    - February 27 to March 14 - Victoria: Multiple INM events on lawn of BC Legislature.

- CN Rail continues to hold a court injunction with an enforcement order which is enforceable province wide.

- This information has been shared with local detachments and public safety agencies including, Vancouver Police Department, Victoria Police Department, Stl'atl'imx Tribal Police, E Division BIP/Ports, CBSA, CN Police, CP Police, Marine Security Operations Centre (MSOC) and Ministry of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation (MARR).

- Further information will be shared with impacted jurisdictions through District Command.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

- Idle No More events have abated significantly, however, several educational forums have occurred to re-examine how the movement will move forward.

This document is the property of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP), Aboriginal Policing Services (APS). AANDC EIMD WEEKLY SITUATIONAL AWARENESS REPORT
as of Friday, March 8, 2013

This is a weekly report that provides current information and the status of activities that threaten public safety in relation to issues affecting Aboriginal peoples in Canada.

Provided within this report:

- Hot Spot Summary
- List of Final Notifications issued this week
- "Idle No More" Protests Situation Report
- Flood Situation Report

To watch over the weekend:

HOT SPOT SUMMARY

(New information has been bolded for your convenience.)

Except where otherwise stated, all information in this report was provided by AANDC Regional Offices.

SAKATCHEWAN

The Thunderchild First Nation (349) is located approximately 60 kms southwest of Meadow Lake and 484 kms northwest of Regina with an on-reserve population of approximately 1,188.

On Monday, March 4, 2013, a fire destroyed a building at Thunderchild First Nation which housed a number of rental units and former training centre. There were no injuries or deaths associated with the fire. There were 31 residents evacuated and they were sheltered within the community for the evening.

The residential section of the complex was totally destroyed. The First Nation indicates they have insurance on this portion of the building. There may be some structural damage, including the walls and roof of the remaining building.

The First Nation has declared a local state of emergency. Although the declaration has been made by the First Nation, this in itself does not change the level of assistance provided by AANDC and its partners.

AANDC is working with the Saskatchewan Ministry of Social Services, the Red Cross, and with Thunderchild First Nation to assess the situation and determine short-term and long-term housing options.

Updates will be provided as information becomes available.

Prince Albert Grand Council – Protest – AANDC Saskatchewean Regional Office

The Prince Albert Grand Council is a tribal council representing the twelve First Nations located in central and northern Saskatchewan.

On Friday, March 8, 2013, the AANDC Regional Office reported that a group of approximately 200 protesters rallied outside the AANDC office in Prince Albert.

The protesters were mostly students from the Prince Albert Grand Council and were protesting the education legislation development process and funding levels for First Nations schools. Several Chiefs from the communities and vice Chief of the Federation of Saskatchewan Indian Nations were on site.

The protest was peaceful and ended without incident.

This will be the final notification unless significant developments occur.

FINAL NOTIFICATIONS ISSUED THIS WEEK

Please note that all the events below have been closed; no further notifications will be issued unless significant developments occur:

"Idle No More" Protests Situation Report

Since Sunday, December 9, 2012, approximately 470 protests have occurred as part of an announced program of activism called 'Idle No More,' which is being promoted through traditional and social media.

Idle No More is partly a response to Bill C-45, the omnibus budget bill which includes changes to the Indian Act, the Fisheries Act and the Navigable Waters Protection Act and partly a call for changes to the broader relationship between Canada and First Nations.

All protests which have already occurred have been peaceful; however some have affected the transportation sector. To date, approximately 96 protests have resulted in either interruption to rail services and border crossings or delays on various highways, streets and bridges.

While all protests have been peaceful, a significant number involved traffic disruptions: there were 26 partial blockades and 42 full blockades of either rail lines, highways, ferry stations, or bridges, as well as 28 traffic slowdowns of highways. Other protests (374) included peaceful demonstrations, marches, flash mobs in shopping centers or gatherings. There was also a one-day occupation of the AANDC ON Region Thunder Bay Office.

Except where otherwise stated, all information in this report was provided by AANDC Regional Offices, Public Safety Canada and media reports.

There were 92 protests in December 2012. In 2013, there were 295 protests in January, and 76 protests in February. So far, there have been 7 protests in March and there are two planned for April.

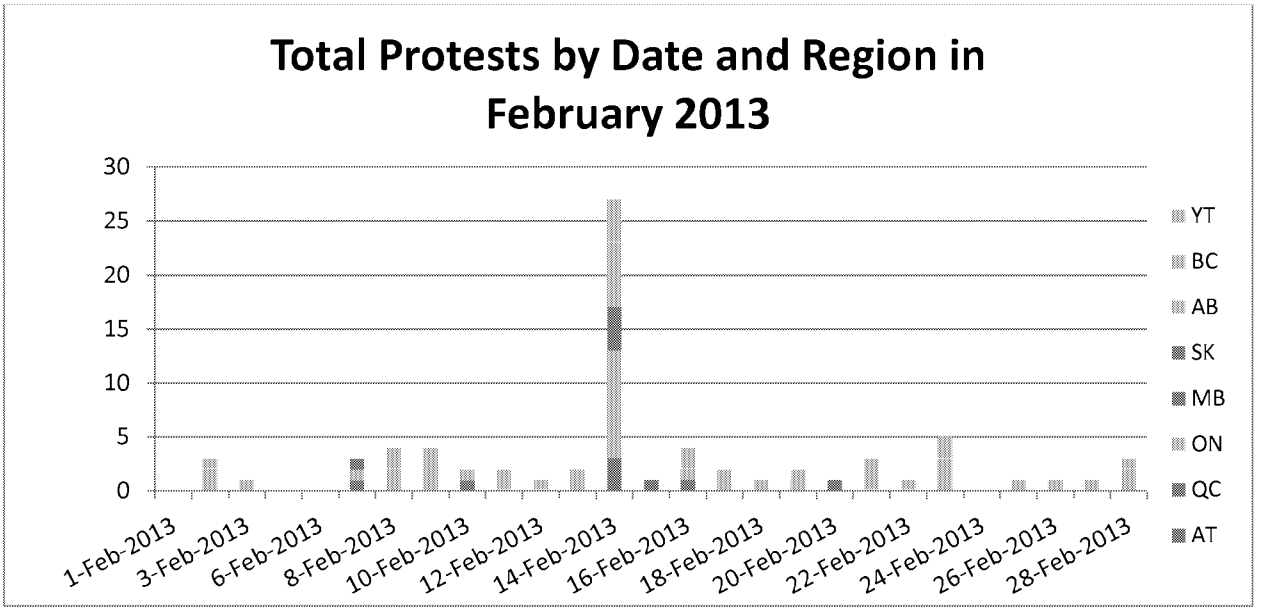
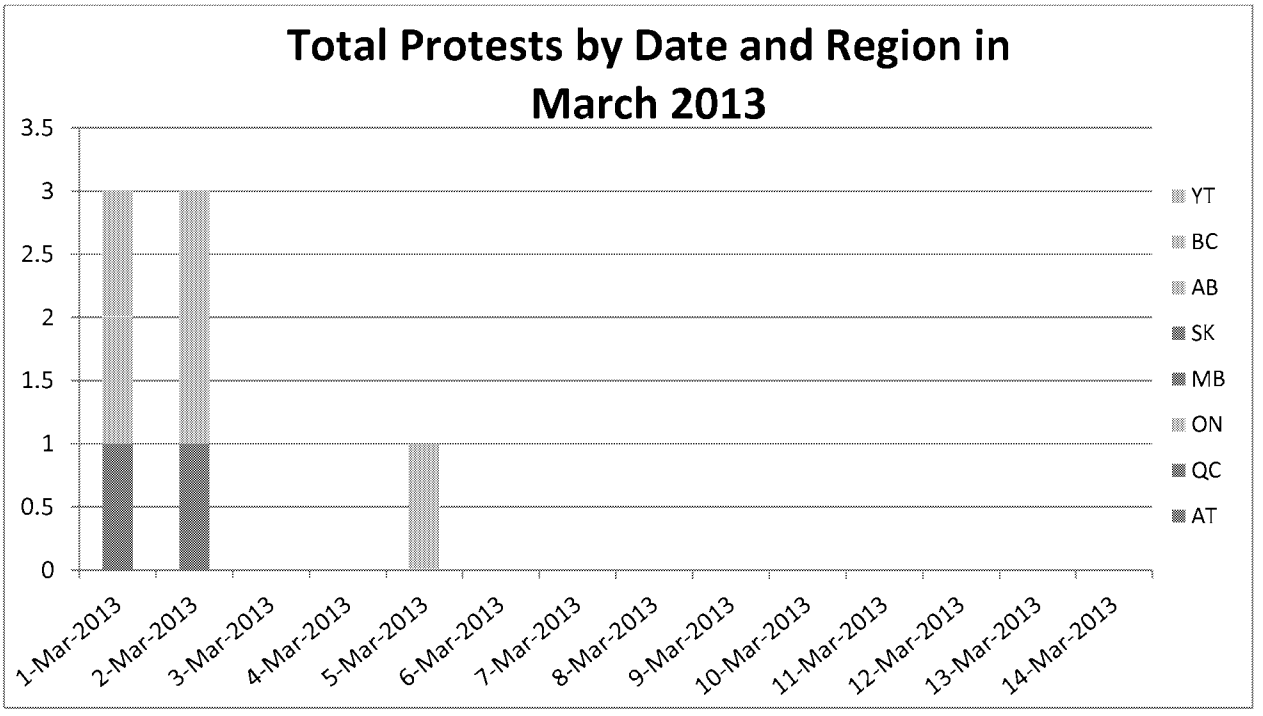
Updates will be provided as new information becomes available.

Planned Protests:

1. 15-Apr-2013 MB Various First Nations and/or Non-Aboriginals demonstration Enbridge Oil Transportation Gretna
2. 15-Apr-2013 AB Various First Nations and/or Non-Aboriginals march Memorial March Edmonton

Please see the timeline charts below for an overview of past and planned protests by date and region.





Past Protests occurring between March 1, 2013 and March 8, 2013:

1. 1-Mar-2013 BC Various First Nations and/or Non-Aboriginals march Victory Square Vancouver

AANDC EIMD Flood Situation Report for Friday, March 8, 2013

(New information has been bolded for your convenience.)

The purpose of this situation report is to provide an update on floods that threaten or may threaten the health, safety and security of First Nations communities, as outlined in AANDC's National Emergency Management Plan.

Except where otherwise stated, all information in this report was provided by AANDC Regional Offices.

The total number of First Nations evacuees due to flooding is 1955, an increase of 12 since Friday, March 1, 2013.

PURPOSE:

There have been several media and social networking reports of planned protests and potential blockades in support for the "Idle No More" (INM) Aboriginal-based solidarity movement. (U) These protests are being monitored for RCMP senior management situational awareness as well as public and police officer safety. Since December 10th, 2012, approximately 863 events have been recorded at the national level. (A)

This report will provide a summary of reported planned events in Canada being organized within the next 48 hours, as well as events planned until March 22nd. These lists may not be complete as the environment is constantly changing. In addition, the RCMP has not confirmed that these events have actually taken place. (U)

OVERVIEW:

. a call for a national day of action entitled the "Global Day of Ceremony and Resurgence" has been planned for March 20th, 2013. It is also reported that INM events are being planned for March 21st and March 22nd, the latter coinciding with World Water Day. Thus far, nine (9) events would have been formally organized for these three days in Alberta (AB), British Columbia (BC), Manitoba (MB) and Ontario (ON). (U)

In the short term, one (1) event is reported for today, consisting of a teach-in in AB. There are currently six (6) events planned for March 16th, consisting of teach-ins and rallies in AB, BC, Saskatchewan (SK) and ON. There are no events planned between March 16th and March 20th. (A)

Good afternoon Vanessa,

I am the Intel Coordinator for E Div APS at HQ. I was hoping that you may be able to help me with something. Attached is some information and I am trying to get a hold of AANDC to verify its content. It seems impossible to speak to a real person utilizing the Government phone system, so I was hoping you may have a contact name and number I could use.

Thanks in advance,

Subject: Lessons Learned Process - First Nations Protests

Good Morning,

 Please distribute to the appropriate person in your department/group ***

The GOC is undertaking a lessons learned process for the response to First Nations Protests that took place between December 2012 and February 2013 (GOC Incidents #122-12 and 003-13). Observations will be gathered from groups and organizations involved in the response to the protests, and will be used to generate recommendations to improve responses to future events.

We would very much appreciate if you could use the guiding questions in the attached document to gather observations from your group/organization and submit them to the GOC to be included in our lessons learned process. The questions are intended as a guide only, please feel free to add any other relevant information. The scope should include comments relating to or affecting more than one group; issues internal to an organization can be excluded.

In an effort to identify and implement lessons learned from the First Nations Protests as quickly as possible, please submit your observations by Monday March 11th, 2013 to Thank you in advance for your assistance in this valuable process; we look forward to receiving your input. Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any questions.

Best regards,

Sheila Gordon

As extracted from the APTN National News

http://aptn.ca/pages/news/2013/03/18/idle-no-more-defenders-of-the-land-form-alliance-call-for-sovereignty-summer/

Idle No More has joined forces with Defenders of the Land and the new alliance plans to launch "escalating action" during what is being called the "Sovereignty Summer," according to a draft joint declaration obtained by APTN National News.
The alliance has been endorsed by Jessica Gordon, Sylvia McAdam, Sheelah McLean and Nina Wilson, the four founders of Idle No More, along with the movement's lead organizers, provincial and territorial chapters.

As a result of the alliance, Idle No More has now agreed to support non-violent direct action, including blockades, in the cause of Indigenous rights.

The Defenders of the Land is an established network of Indigenous activists that was formally formed in 2008. The network has been involved in Indigenous land rights issues across the country, including in ongoing hotspots like Ontario's Grassy Narrows First Nation, Kitchenuhmaykoosib Inninuwug First Nation and Barriere Lake in Quebec.

The joint declaration is calling for a "Sovereignty Summer" that would see "co-ordinated non-violent direct actions." The statement also calls on "non-Indigenous peoples" to join Indigenous communities in the actions.

"Alternatives will only come to life if we escalate our actions, taking bold non-violent direct action that challenges the illegitimate power of corporations who dictate government police," says the draft declaration.

The declaration also calls for a "Solidarity Spring" to precede the Sovereignty Summer with calls to action on March 21, International Day for the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, and April 22, Earth Day.

"The Harper government's agenda is clear: to weaken all collective rights and environmental protections, in order to turn Canada into an extraction state that gives corporations unchecked power to destroy our communities and environment for profit," says the statement. "Idle No More and Defenders of the Land....have joined together to issue this common call for escalating action."

The declaration makes several demands, including a repeal of sections of the now passed Bill C-45 that impact the environment along with Aboriginal and Treaty rights; changing the electoral system to proportional representation; ensuring consultation happens before any legislation is introduced that impacts collective rights and the environment; the full implementation of the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples; an end to the government's policies of "extinguishment;" full implementation of the treaties and a national inquiry into murdered and missing Indigenous women.

"We know it will take a lot more to defeat (Prime Minister Stephen Harper) and the corporate agenda. But against the power of their money and weapons, we have the power of our bodies and spirits," says the declaration. "There is nothing that can match the power of peaceful, collective action in defense of the people and Mother Earth."

PURPOSE:

There have been several media and social networking reports of planned protests and potential blockades in support for the "Idle No More"
(INM) Aboriginal-based solidarity movement.
(U) These protests are being monitored for RCMP senior management situational awareness as well as public and police officer safety.
Since December 10th, 2012, approximately 846 events have been recorded at the national level. (A)

This report will provide a summary of reported events in Canada being organized for March 20-22. As previously reported, March 20th, 2013 has been identified as a national day of action entitled "Global Day of Ceremony and Resurgence". Other INM events are planned for March 21st and March 22nd (World Water Day). These lists may not be complete as the environment is constantly changing. In addition, the RCMP has not confirmed that these events have actually taken place. (U)

OVERVIEW:

They are currently five (5) events reported for today, consisting of cultural ceremonies and rallies in Alberta (AB), Manitoba (MB), Ontario (ON),
Quebec (QC) and Saskatchewan (SK). There are nine (9) events planned for March 21st, consisting of peaceful rallies, teach-ins and cultural ceremonies in AB, MB, ON and QC.
There are currently 11 events planned for March 22nd, in AB, British Columbia (BC), MB and ON. (A)

Who We Are

Defenders of the Land, a network of Indigenous communities and activists in land struggle across Canada, including Elders and youth, women and men, was founded at a historic meeting in Winnipeg from November 12-14, 2008. Defenders is the only organization of its kind in the territory known as Canada - Indigenous-led, free of government or corporate funding, and dedicated to building a fundamental movement for Indigenous rights. We will be holding a second gathering this year, where we will decide on collective action and a strategy to build the movement through education and organizing.

This basis of unity reflects our common view.

Basis of unity

We, Indigenous Peoples of the territory known as Canada who are defending our lands and waters, our ways of life, and our rights, are of one mind that:

We are sovereign nations. We have the inherent right to self-determination. We will determine our own destinies in accordance with our own customs, laws, and traditions - not in a way dictated to us by Canadian and provincial governments, and without interference by these governments.

The rapport and relationship between Indigenous peoples and the lands and waters we have inhabited since time immemorial is fundamental and cannot be broken. The wealth of our nations must not only be measured in economic terms, but rather through the strength of our cultural knowledge and traditions, which are bound up with our relations to the land. The health and well-being of our peoples depends on our relations to the land, and the health of the land depends on its relation to our peoples.

We have the right to subsist on, develop, and act as stewards of our traditional lands, in accordance with our inherent Indigenous rights and with historical treaties, including treaties signed between Indigenous nations prior to contact with Europeans. In particular, we have the inherent right to hunt, trap, fish, gather plants, engage in ceremonies, and build shelter and other structures on our lands, in ways that respect our cultures and are meaningful to contemporary Indigenous economies and cultural renewal.

We have the right and responsibility to look after our lands and waters. No development can take place on our lands without our free, prior, and informed consent. "Self-government" that does not include control of our lands is no self government at all. A "duty to consult" that does not allow us to say "no" to development is meaningless.

We reject the extinguishment of Aboriginal title through treaty, and any interpretations of historical treaties which falsely claim, against the united voices of our Elders and ancestors, that we have extinguished title to our traditional territories. We reject any policy or process which aims at extinguishing Aboriginal title, including contemporary treaty and comprehensive land claims processes.

The Indian Act is a fundamental injustice and the product of racism and colonialism. It has no basis in any treaty and has been imposed on our peoples by Canada without our consent. It imposes on us a foreign system of government in which accountability is to masters in Ottawa and not to our peoples. It denies us our freedom to define for ourselves who we are and who are the members of our nations. Only Indigenous peoples have the right to make these determinations.

We have the right to choose and practice our own systems of government, in accordance with our customs.

We reject reforms of the Indian Act that are initiated by government and aim to obliterate our collective rights as Indigenous peoples under the guise of "individual rights" and hollow "self-government" provisions.

Negotiations between Indigenous Peoples and Canada are nation to nation. Only individual First Nations have the right to negotiate, and only under the direction of their people - deals signed by leaders without the informed participation and direction of our communities are not legitimate.

We have the right to maintain and practice our customs, languages, ceremonies, and cultures, and we have the right to full redress for historical and contemporary attempts to extinguish these through residential schools and other policies of assimilation and genocide.

In accordance with these rights and principles, and in defense of our Mother Earth, we demand that:

1. Canada adopt and fully implement the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples.

2. Canada comply with its international treaty obligations on the rights of Indigenous Peoples under the International Labor Organization's Convention 169, the UN Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, and the Convention on Biological Diversity, among others.

3. Canada honour all its commitments and obligations under historic treaties with Indigenous Peoples.

4. Canada, with Indigenous communities, jointly change the federal policies on self-government, land claims, and historic treaties to recognize Indigenous rights and Aboriginal title, including the right to self-determination and the right to exercise free, prior, and informed consent.

5. Canada everywhere end its policy of assimilation of Indigenous Peoples within its borders and its policy of extinguishment of Aboriginal title.

6. Canada acknowledge and fully support our right as peoples to maintain and practice our cultures and languages, and give full redress and justice for its attempts to obliterate these.

7. Canada immediately cease the criminalization of Indigenous Peoples when they are exercising their rights to lands, resources, and self-determination, and direct the provinces to do the same.

8. The Government of Canada, through an independent body, provide financial support for Indigenous Peoples who are struggling to exercise or defend their rights.

If you are an Indigenous community, an Indigenous activist group, or Indigenous individual who wants to sign on to this basis of unity, send an email to defendersoftheland@gmail.com or contact us on our website at www.defendersoftheland.org/contact. Non-Native supporters can sign on to the Declaration of Support, which is available at defendersoftheland.org/supporters.

http://aptn.ca/pages/news/2013/03/18/idle-no-more-defenders-of-the-land-form-alliance-call-for-sovereignty-summer/

Idle No More has joined forces with Defenders of the Land and the new alliance plans to launch "escalating action" during what is being called the "Sovereignty Summer," according to a draft joint declaration obtained by APTN National News.

The alliance has been endorsed by Jessica Gordon, Sylvia McAdam, Sheelah McLean and Nina Wilson, the four founders of Idle No More, along with the movement's lead organizers, provincial and territorial chapters.
As a result of the alliance, Idle No More has now agreed to support non-violent direct action, including blockades, in the cause of Indigenous rights.
The Defenders of the Land is an established network of Indigenous activists that was formally formed in 2008. The network has been involved in Indigenous land rights issues across the country, including in ongoing hotspots like Ontario's Grassy Narrows First Nation, Kitchenuhmaykoosib Inninuwug First Nation and Barriere Lake in Quebec.
The joint declaration is calling for a "Sovereignty Summer" that would see "co-ordinated non-violent direct actions." The statement also calls on "non-Indigenous peoples" to join Indigenous communities in the actions.
"Alternatives will only come to life if we escalate our actions, taking bold non-violent direct action that challenges the illegitimate power of corporations who dictate government police," says the draft declaration.
The declaration also calls for a "Solidarity Spring" to precede the Sovereignty Summer with calls to action on March 21, International Day for the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, and April 22, Earth Day.
"The Harper government's agenda is clear: to weaken all collective rights and environmental protections, in order to turn Canada into an extraction state that gives corporations unchecked power to destroy our communities and environment for profit," says the statement. "Idle No More and Defenders of the Land....have joined together to issue this common call for escalating action."
The declaration makes several demands, including a repeal of sections of the now passed Bill C-45 that impact the environment along with Aboriginal and Treaty rights; changing the electoral system to proportional representation; ensuring consultation happens before any legislation is introduced that impacts collective rights and the environment; the full implementation of the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples; an end to the government's policies of "extinguishment;" full implementation of the treaties and a national inquiry into murdered and missing Indigenous women.
"We know it will take a lot more to defeat (Prime Minister Stephen Harper) and the corporate agenda. But against the power of their money and weapons, we have the power of our bodies and spirits," says the declaration. "There is nothing that can match the power of peaceful, collective action in defense of the people and Mother Earth."

IDLE NO MORE SOLIDARITY SPRING

A Call to Action from Idle No More & Defenders of the Land

Idle No More has sparked an awakening of Indigenous and non-Indigenous peoples internationally in support for democracy, human rights and environmental protections. In three short months, the movement has succeeded in raising global consciousness through education, cultural resurgence, and democratic political activism. We have shaken the foundations of inequality in Canada, and invited communities to join in a movement for social and environmental justice. We now need many more people to stand with us.

The Harper government's agenda is clear: to weaken all collective rights and environmental protections, in order to turn Canada into an extraction state that gives corporations unchecked power to destroy our communities and environment for profit. Harper is trying to extinguish Indigenous Peoples' Inherent,

Aboriginal and Treaty rights to their territories, because these rights are the best and last protection for all Canadians. Idle No More has confronted these policies, and Harper supporters such as ex-Minister of Aboriginal Affairs John Duncan, suspended Senator Patrick Brazeau, resigned minister Peter Penashue, and Tom Flanagan have been called into question by grassroots people.

Idle No More will help rebuild the nation-to-nation relationship that is the foundation of this country. This means deepening democracy, respecting Indigenous sovereignty and protecting the land and waters from further resource extraction without the affected Indigenous Peoples' free, prior, and informed consent.

We know it will take a lot more to defeat Harper and the corporate agenda. But against the power of their money and weapons, we have the power of our bodies and spirits. There is nothing that can match the power of peaceful, collective action in the defense of people and Mother Earth.

Idle No More and Defenders of the Land, a network of Indigenous communities in land struggle, have joined together to issue this common call for escalating action. Our demands are clear and in accordance with the principles of coexistence and mutual respect between Indigenous and non-Indigenous Peoples. We demand that Canada, the provinces and the territories:

1.1.Repeal provisions of Bill C-45 (including changes to the Indian Act and Navigable Waters Act, which infringe on environmental protections, Aboriginal and Treaty rights) and abandon all pending legislation which does the same.

2.2.Deepen democracy in Canada through practices such as proportional representation and consultation on all legislation concerning collective rights and environmental protections,and include legislation which restricts corporate interests.
3.3.In accordance with the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples' principle of free, prior, and informed consent, respect the right of Indigenous peoples to say no to development on their territory.
4.4.Cease its policy of extinguishment of Aboriginal Title and recognize and affirm Aboriginal Title and Rights, as set out in section 35 of Canada's constitution, and recommended by the Royal Commission on Aboriginal Peoples.
5.5.Honour the spirit and intent of the historic Treaties. Officially repudiate the racist Doctrine of Discovery and the Doctrine of Terra Nullius, and abandon their use to justify the seizure of Indigenous Nations lands and wealth.
6.6.Actively resist violence against women and hold a national inquiry into missing and murdered Indigenous women and girls, and involve Indigenous women in the design, decision-making, process and implementation of this inquiry, as a step toward initiating a comprehensive and coordinated national action plan.

CALLS TO ACTION:

March 21st International Day for the Elimination ofRacial Discrimination

We are calling for decentralized actions across the country.

April 22 Earth Day

Indigenous Peoples and Indigenous rights are in many cases the best defence against environmental destruction by unchecked greed and industrial development. This Earth Day we are calling for nationwide autonomous local protests -- and a mass non-violent direct action in Ottawa to be announced soon -highlighting the importance of Indigenous rights in combating the Harper and corporate agenda. We are asking people to prominently include messaging on Indigenous and Treaty rights in their actions.

Sovereignty Summer

Indigenous communities have the right to determine the development on their traditional and treaty territories. In defending their right to say "No" to unwanted development, First Nations like Barriere Lake, KI, Grassy Narrows and many others are advancing alternatives that help us re-imagine our relationship to the environment. Across the country, people are increasingly supporting First Nations who are trying to protect lands, waters and air for everyone, and to win recognition of marine protections, of sustainable forestry, of local, just economies, and of the principle that we must respect the environment that we are a part of.

We are calling on non-Indigenous people to join Indigenous communities in coordinated non-violent direct actions in the summer. Alternatives will only come to life if we escalate our actions, taking bold non-violent direct action that challenges the illegitimate power of corporations who dictate government policy.

ISSUE: Status update regarding BC 'Idle No More' public awareness campaign in British Columbia. (File EDIV 2013-083)

BACKGROUND:

$ The 'Idle No More' (INM) movement continues to hold public awareness demonstrations regarding First Nations relations with the Government of Canada.

$ Demonstrations have been held at shopping malls, First Nations and government buildings, roads and highways, and international border crossings. To date, all demonstrations have been brief and peaceful.

$ On January 11th Prime Minister Harper met with approximately 20 First Nations leaders. An 'Idle No More' National Day of Action was organized to coincide with the meeting. Approximately 35 'Idle No More' demonstrations occurred in BC.

$ On January 16th a "National Day of Action" was organized advocating to "disrupt the Canadian economy." Three relatively minor demonstrations occurred in BC.

$ The January 28th "National Day of Action" coincided with the re-opening of Parliament; 14 demonstrations occurred in BC.

CURRENT STATUS:

- The Idle No More movement formed an alliance with "Defenders of the Land," an established network of Indigenous activists. They have advocated for "escalating action," including "co-ordinated non-violent direct actions" during what is being called the "Sovereignty Summer."

$ Upcoming 'Idle No More' demonstrations within the next reporting period (refer to attached timeline):

  - March 20-22: Victoria – BC Legislature
  - March 20-22: Prince Rupert – Kwinista and Courthouse
  - March 21: Keremeos – Memorial Park
  - March 22: Nanaimo – Woodgrove Mall
  - March 22: Victoria – City Hall
  - March 23: Comox Valley – Simms Millennium Park

$ CN Rail continues to hold a court injunction with an enforcement order which is enforceable province wide.

$ This information has been shared with local detachments and public safety agencies including, Vancouver Police Department, Victoria Police Department, Stl'atl'imx Tribal Police, E Division

.Idle No More, Defenders of the Land form alliance, call for "Sovereignty Summer"

National News | 18. Mar, 2013 by APTN National News | 1 Comment

By Jorge Barrera

APTN National News

Idle No More has joined forces with Defenders of the Land and the new alliance plans to launch "escalating action" during what is being called the "Sovereignty Summer," according to a draft joint declaration obtained by APTN National News.

The alliance has been endorsed by Jessica Gordon, Sylvia McAdam, Sheelah McLean and Nina Wilson, the four founders of Idle No More, along with the movement's lead organizers, provincial and territorial chapters.

As a result of the alliance, Idle No More has now agreed to support non-violent direct action, including blockades, in the cause of Indigenous rights.

The Defenders of the Land is an established network of Indigenous activists that was formally formed in 2008. The network has been involved in Indigenous land rights issues across the country, including in ongoing hotspots like Ontario's Grassy Narrows First Nation, Kitchenuhmaykoosib Inninuwug First Nation and Barriere Lake in Quebec.

The joint declaration is calling for a "Sovereignty Summer" that would see "co-ordinated non-violent direct actions." The statement also calls on "non-Indigenous peoples" to join Indigenous communities in the actions.

"Alternatives will only come to life if we escalate our actions, taking bold non-violent direct action that challenges the illegitimate power of corporations who dictate government police," says the draft declaration.

The declaration also calls for a "Solidarity Spring" to precede the Sovereignty Summer with calls to action on March 21, International Day for the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, and April 22, Earth Day.

"The Harper government's agenda is clear: to weaken all collective rights and environmental protections, in order to turn Canada into an extraction state that gives corporations unchecked power to destroy our communities and environment for profit," says the statement. "Idle No More and Defenders of the Land....have joined together to issue this common call for escalating action."

The declaration makes several demands, including a repeal of sections of the now passed Bill C-45 that impact the environment along with Aboriginal and Treaty rights; changing the electoral system to proportional representation; ensuring consultation happens before any legislation is introduced that impacts collective rights and the environment; the full implementation of the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples; an end to the government's policies of "extinguishment;" full implementation of the treaties and a national inquiry into murdered and missing Indigenous women.

"We know it will take a lot more to defeat (Prime Minister Stephen Harper) and the corporate agenda. But against the power of their money and weapons, we have the power of our bodies and spirits," says the declaration. "There is nothing that can match the power of peaceful, collective action in defense of the people and Mother Earth."

HIGHLIGHTS

Flooding
- 2013 Flood Season:

o There are currently no First Nation communities affected by flooding.
o Flood Risk Forecast: the current forecast is preliminary and subject to extreme variation over the next several weeks due to weather variables (amount of precipitation, temperatures affecting the speed of snow melt) which cannot be predicted with certainty. This year, based on preliminary situational awareness obtained by provincial, territorial and federal partners, the Government Operations Centre anticipates that the potential for significant flooding will be greater than in 2012, but less than the 2011 season.

§ SK – moderate to high in south-eastern region only
§ ON –high to very high in James Bay region only
§ MB – low to moderate, updated forecast expected March 25, 2013
§ AT – low to moderate along Saint John River in NB only
§ QC, BC - low
§ AB, NWT, YT – not issued until May
§ NU – not applicable

o Flood preparation activities on First Nation reserves have commenced in at risk areas in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Ontario.

· Previous Flood Seasons: there are currently seven First Nations communities with evacuations from previous flood events, with a combined total of 1954 evacuees.

o 2012 Season - British Columbia– 6 evacuees
o 2011 Flood Season - Manitoba – 1948 evacuees

Bill C- 45 Protests/Demonstrations, Saskatchewan
UpdateD 2013-03-22 at 1115 Hours (cst)

Issue:

To provide an update on F Div BN 2013-06 I.

BACKGROUND:

As of March 22, 2013, there have been 62 demonstrations within RCMP jurisdictions in Saskatchewan.
There have been no adverse incidents to report.

Demonstrations are scheduled to occur in La Ronge today at 1600hrs, and Canoe Lake on March 23, 2013.

The LLRIB Drum group are doing an awareness walk from Stanley Mission to Ottawa. This walk commenced on March 19th. It is unclear what route the group are taking.

CURRENT STATUS:

"F" Division continues to liaise with the First Nations communities to ensure the safety of the demonstrators and the public.
The APTN National News on-line dated March 18, 2013 references an article titled "Idle No More, Defenders of the Land form Alliance, call for "Sovereignty Summer". The article can be viewed in its entirety on the APTN website. It calls for "escalating action" during the summer of 2013.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS: (if applicable)

The Divisional MRO is aware and a media strategy developed.

IN CONSULTATION WITH:

Superintendent R. Plomp

ISSUE: Status update regarding BC 'Idle No More' public awareness campaign in British Columbia. (File EDIV 2013-083)

BACKGROUND:

$ The 'Idle No More' (INM) movement continues to hold public awareness demonstrations regarding First Nations relations with the Government of Canada.

$ Demonstrations have been held at shopping malls, First Nations and government buildings, roads and highways, and international border crossings. To date, all demonstrations have been brief and peaceful.

$ On January 11th Prime Minister Harper met with approximately 20 First Nations leaders. An 'Idle No More' National Day of Action was organized to coincide with the meeting. Approximately 35 'Idle No More' demonstrations occurred in BC.

$ On January 16th a "National Day of Action" was organized advocating to "disrupt the Canadian economy." Three relatively minor demonstrations occurred in BC.

$ The January 28th "National Day of Action" coincided with the re-opening of Parliament; 14 demonstrations occurred in BC.

CURRENT STATUS:

- The Idle No More movement formed an alliance with "Defenders of the Land," an established network of Indigenous activists. They have advocated for "escalating action," including "co-ordinated non-violent direct actions."

$ Upcoming 'Idle No More' demonstrations within the next reporting period (refer to attached timeline):

  - March 30 – Vancouver: Aboriginal Friendship Centre
  - March 31 – Surrey: Peace Arch Border Crossing (unconfirmed)
  - March 31 – Victoria: BC Legislature

$ CN Rail continues to hold a court injunction with an enforcement order which is enforceable province wide.

$ This information has been shared with local detachments and public safety agencies including, Vancouver Police Department, Victoria Police Department, Stl'atl'imx Tribal Police, E Division BIP/Ports, CBSA, CN Police, CP Police, Marine Security Operations Centre (MSOC) and Ministry of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation (MARR).

$ Further information will be shared with impacted jurisdictions through District Command.

This document is the property of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP), Aboriginal Policing Services (APS). It is loaned specifically to your department/agency in confidence and for internal use only, and it is not to be reclassified, copied, reproduced, used or further disseminated, in whole or in part, without the consent of the originator. For any enquiries concerning the information or the caveat, please contact the OIC E-Division Aboriginal Policing Services, RCMP.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

- The Idle No More movement has abated, however a resurgence of demonstrations is expected during what is being called the "Sovereignty Summer."

$ FNP (First Nations Policing) Members are encouraged to proactively engage their communities and advise of upcoming public order events to District Command and APS.

PUBLIC SAFETY PROTOCOLS:

$ None to report at this time.

NATIONAL OVERVIEW

There are currently no First Nation communities affected by flooding.
Flood Risk Forecast: the current forecast is preliminary and subject to extreme variation over the next several weeks due to weather variables (amount of precipitation, temperatures affecting the speed of snow melt) which cannot be predicted with certainty. This year, based on preliminary situational awareness obtained by provincial, territorial and federal partners, the Government Operations Centre anticipates that the potential for significant flooding will be greater than in 2012, but less than the 2011 season. Flood preparation activities on First Nation reserves have commenced in at risk areas in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Ontario.

- SK – moderate to very high in south-eastern region only
- ON –high to very high in James Bay region only
- MB – low to moderate, updated forecast expected March 25, 2013
- AT – low to moderate along Saint John River in NB only
- QC, BC – low
- AB, NWT, YT – not issued until May
- NU – not applicable

REGIONAL OVERVIEWS

(For regions with an elevated flood risk only)

SASKATCHEWAN

Based on the February 1, 2013, Water Security Agency forecast, AANDC has allocated preparedness funds to 61 First Nation communities who were situated in areas rated with a moderate to high flood risk. Flood preparation activities have commenced and include removing excess snow from housing units to ensure positive drainage, clearing culverts to ensure continuous flow of water, removing beaver dams, and removing snow from main access roads.

In addition, First Nations were briefed on flooding forecasts at the 2013 SK First Nations Emergency Management Forum that was held in partnership with the province, AANDC, Health Canada and Public Safety. First Nations were provided with mitigation and preparedness guidelines/suggestions by the Province of Saskatchewan in conjunction with the Water Security Agency.

The March 5, 2013, Water Security Agency forecast indicates the following ratings:

- Very high flood risk – one in 25 year event – 6 First Nations
    - Beardy's and Okemasis First Nation
    - Carry The Kettle First Nation
    - One Arrow First Nation
    - Piapot First Nation
    - Pasqua First Nation #79
    - Muscowpetung First Nation
- High flood risk – one in ten year event – 31 First Nations
- Moderate flood risk – one in five year event – 24 First Nations

ONTARIO

Since Monday, March 4, 2013, Emergency Management Ontario has deployed Field Officers to the James Bay Coast to work with First Nation communities. AANDC Ontario Region preparation activities include: setting up an emergency management office, sending out a regional surge capacity call letter, and providing emergency management training for AANDC surge capacity volunteers, scheduled for March 22, 2013, in Thunder Bay. On Tuesday, March 19, 2013, a ''Watershed Conditions Statement'' issued by the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources estimates an ice break-up on the Moose and Albany Rivers at or around the week of April 21st, 2013, followed by Attawapiskat a week or two later. The flood risk is therefore currently considered high for the Moosonee, Moose Factory, and Attawapiskat First Nations and high to very high for the Fort Albany and Kashechewan First Nations.

MANITOBA

The initial forecast was generally positive, and Environment Canada has indicated that there are no significant trends in terms of temperature or precipitation. There are many areas where snow water equivalent (the humidity in the snow) is high, but there is also ample room in the river channels for drainage. Also, measurements on soil moisture, frozen in the ground are more favourable than they were in the winter of 2010, which contributed to the major flooding in 2011.

However, there are areas of concern, and AANDC is meeting with several First Nation communities to discuss flood preparations for 2013. The 'low to moderate' forecast is based on the likelihood of average weather through March; however, should a one in ten chance of unfavourable weather occur, the possibility of more severe flooding would increase. On March 14, 2013, the Manitoba Water Stewardship upgraded the chance of flooding for the Peguis First Nation. AANDC has provided accountable funding advances to Peguis First Nation and Fisher River First Nation in order to prepare for potential spring flooding. Preparedness activities have already commenced in Peguis First Nation. It is expected that the Manitoba provincial authority will release an update to its flood forecast on Monday, March 25, 2013.

ATLANTIC REGION

AANDC's primary area of concern with respect to spring flooding is the Saint John River system in New Brunswick, which affected the Tobique First Nation in March 2012. For 2013, the forecasts point to low potential for flooding. However, variables such as quick breakup and movement of the ice pack, seasonal rainstorms, and/or warm weather could melt the snow pack at a faster than anticipated rate. These variables are unpredictable and their effects will only become known later in the season as the snow pack melts and the ice begins to move in the river.

PREVIOUS FLOOD SEASONS

The total number of First Nations evacuees due to flooding in previous flood seasons is 1954, an increase of 3 since Friday, March 15, 2013.

2012 Flood Season

BRITISH COLUMBIA

1. Daylu Dena First Nation - 6 evacuees

2011 Flood Season

MANITOBA

1. Lake St. Martin First Nation – 1071 evacuees
2. Little Saskatchewan First Nation – 366 evacuees
3. Dauphin River First Nation – 201 evacuees
4. Peguis First Nation – 187 evacuees
5. Ebb & Flow First Nation – 104 evacuees
6. Pinaymootang First Nation – 19 evacuees

Restless Acadia First Nation natives want forensic audit

By Scott MacDonald

Some members of the Acadia First Nation band are outraged over their reserve's dire the financial straits.

"I want them to do a forensic audit," says one frustrated band member who forwarded my organ recent financial statements that illustrate the grim situation.

According to the consolidated financial statements prepared by Grant Thornton, the band had a net debt totalling $9,825,285 for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2012. The net debt rose slightly from the previous years' figure of $9,785,501. Grant Thornton delivered the financial statements to the band last July 31.

The Acadia First Nation is made up of the Gold River, Medway River, Ponhook Lake, Wildcat, and Yarmouth communities. The most recent population figures put the on-reserve population at 191, though some band members say it is slightly less than that, and 1,179 off-reserve.

You probably recall the outrage at Chief Deborah Robinson's 2011 total salary of $418,208. Councillors raked in from a low of $110, 624 (Ed Benham) to $188,348 (Darlene Coulton).

The humongous salary and expense packages have been a point of anger for band members as far back as 2000.

Last year, apparently sensing how restless the natives were, Deb's total remuneration suddenly dropped to $290,186. Some of the councillors took smaller cuts, but some actually got raises. Darlene's pay pack, for example, rose to $200,665.

Half-way through the 2011/2012 fiscal year, the band pledged to lower the salaries of the chief and council members to $130,000 and $80,000, plus expenses.

The documents confirm that in 2009 the band entered a large deficit, after a long-standing dispute with the Canada Revenue Agency from 1997 to 2002. Using the principle of aboriginal self-government, the band created its own taxation system which it believed trumped the HST. The taxman "disputed this belief."

The dispute ended with the band being smacked with a tab totalling $8,392,939, which comprise both unpaid taxes and penalties.

In addition to the fallout from the tax scheme, a band-owned business, Your Winners World-AFN, was reviewed by the CRA. As a result of that investigation, taxes and penalties totalling $678,431 were incurred against the band.

The Acadia First Nation appealed and was subsequently granted a relief. It also worked out a re-payment deal of $25,000 a month, all of which have so far been paid.

MEMBER	2012	2011
Chief Deborah Robinson	$290,186	$418,208
Councillor Darlene Coulton	$200,665	$188,348
Councillor Charmaine Stevens	$122,768	$124,442
Councillor Michael Paul	$128,926	$119,454
Councillor Thomas Pictou	$156,896	$170,593
Councillor Debra Wentzell	$131,254	$133,816
Councillor Andrew Francis	$124,967	$119,538
Councillor Todd Labrador	$136,789	$134,322
Councillor Ed Benham	$105,258	$110,624

Another area of consternation for some frustrated band members are accounting issues that Grant Thornton had already told the band to correct the previous year.

"Management does not currently have a process for monitoring the effectiveness of the Acadia First Nation's internal controls," the report states.

"Without monitoring, the Acadia First Nation is unable to assess whether internal controls are operating as designed."

Yet another outstanding issue the council failed to correct from the previous year was making the proper Canada Pension Plan and Employment Insurance deductions on bonuses dolled out to council members and band employees.

According to financial documents, there are 27 employees who cost the band at least $1,325,000. The two administrative assistants make anywhere between $45,000 and $65,000 per year, for example. A social officer makes between $50,000 and $65,000 per year.

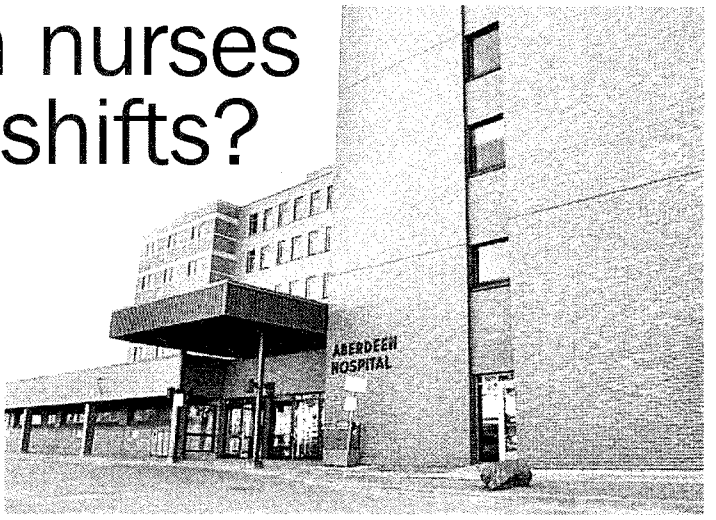
Why are Aberdeen nurses working 24-hour shifts?



By Amanda Spriggs

Even the most obtuse viewer of pop culture brain drain phenomenon Grey's Anatomy (which spent an entire episode addressing the dangers of such practises) could tell you that medical staff pulling 24-hour shifts just ain't kosher, so why the heck is it continuing to happen in Nova Scotia?

One Pictou County source with close ties to the health-care system says it's a cost cutting measure.

"We have nurses making more than $100,000 a year in overtime. It's cheaper to pay overtime than benefits and salary even though they're definitely short on staff."

Allegations that New Glasgow nurses working at Aberdeen Hospital's Intensive Care Unit have been pulling 24-hour shifts were initially denied by Pictou County Health Authority mouthpiece Eileen MacIsaac, who said information Frank received "indicating that Aberdeen Hospital RNs work 24 hours in ICU is not true."

When pressed further and specifically asked if nurses at Aberdeen Hospital had worked 24-hour shifts in the ICU at any time in the past year, for any reason, Eileen came back with a different story.

"After further investigation, there were three occurrences of two ICU nurses working 24-hour shifts in the Aberdeen Hospital's ICU," writes Eileen.

"These occurrences took place over a four-month period last year."

Eileen tells Frank such incidents are quite rare, but do occur if there are not enough ICU nurses for a variety of reasons, running the gamut from a high number of critically ill patients to a shortage of staff.

But she denied it was part of a budget strategy to reduce costs.

"Asking a nurse to work 24 hours is a last resort and the nurse must agree to do so. Critical care nurses provide specialized care that requires additional training and certification and, for those reasons, there is a limited supply of these nurses to call upon to work additional shifts when needed."

Presumably the rarity of such occurrences coupled with the need for nurses' agreement to complete such strenuous shifts is meant to be reassuring to members of the public questioning the safety of such practises, but one nurse within Halifax's Capital Health takes issue with Pictou County Health Authority's position.

"Of course they're going to say that a nurse won't be forced to complete such a shift if they're not comfortable with it, but that's a loaded statement," says my source.

"There's a strong sense of duty and pride associated with our profession.

"No nurse is going to walk out on patients, especially if they are ICU patients, if there's no replacement for them."

My Haligonian nurse also expresses scepticism regarding the conditions at Aberdeen Hospital that would require nurses to work 24-hour shifts, regardless of how occasionally.

"I hesitate to criticize, because I don't know the exact circumstances, of course, but it seems to me at the end of the day like a staffing issue... why would they not have enough staff to have extra in case of emergency?" she says.

"The only time in my 20-plus years as a nurse I've had to work a 24-hour shift was during White Juan, when replacements could very literally not get to the hospital, and even then we rotated like we were on-call, sleeping on cots when we could."

A second source within Capital Health confirmed that the only time they were aware of any nurses being required to work 24 hours was indeed during the White Juan blizzard of February 2004.

"And in that case we were able to spell people for breaks of a couple hours during the time they were at the hospital," they confide.

Though many medical professionals over the ages have worked 24-hour shifts (and in some cases even more so), the practise is increasingly frowned upon and avoided given the severe consequences sleep deprivation can have.

One study by researchers in Australia showed that being awake for 18 hours produced an impairment equal to a blood alcohol concentration (BAC) of .05, and .10 after 24 hours. A BAC of .08 is considered legally drunk.

All of this has left my band source seething, expressing concern over the future of the band's finances, especially in light of information not being more available to the members.

"The only ones that are going to be holding the bill on this is the people," my source laments.

"Our band is already broke. So if the Canadian Revenue Agency is to do an audit on our band, we're going to be owing them tonnes of money."

My source also tells me that the financial statements aren't publicized on the band's website. In order to get the statements, the band member had to contact Aboriginal and Northern Affairs and wait three months before the documents were made available.

"(The documents) show for years that (auditors Grant Thornton) had been telling them that they have to do something different, that what they're doing isn't correct," my source says, adding a request to the feds for a forensic audit has been filed by band members.

Aboriginal and Northern Affairs told me it couldn't respond to my request for comment before my deadline. AFN's council couldn't be reached for comment before deadline.

Our source is hopeful that after reviewing the Grant Thornton documents, Aboriginal Affairs will order that forensic audit.

If that fails to happen, our source and other frustrated band members will continue the fight for one, as they have been for years.

"I will go through every avenue that I possibly have to go through to make sure this happens."

Strategic Outlook Report

April 2013

PROVINCE WIDE

IDLE NO MORE MOVEMENT

Description:

- The 'Idle No More' (INM) movement continues to hold public awareness demonstrations regarding First Nations relations with the Government of Canada.
- Demonstrations have been held at shopping malls, First Nations and government buildings, roads and highways, and international border crossings. To date, all demonstrations have been brief and peaceful.
- Three 'Idle No More' National Days of Action occurred on January 11th, 16th and 28th. Thirty-five, three and fourteen demonstrations occurred on those dates respectively.

Current Status:

- The Idle No More movement formed an alliance with "Defenders of the Land," an established network of Indigenous activists. They have advocated for "escalating action," including "co-ordinated non-violent direct actions" during what is being called the "Sovereignty Summer."
- On March 24th the Coast First Nations launched anti-pipeline ads to coincide with the anniversary of the Exxon Valdez oil spill.
- Approximately 20 brief and peaceful Idle No More demonstrations occurred in March. Notable locations included the Vancouver DFO Office, the BC Legislature and the Highway 1.

Analysis:

The Idle No More movement has abated recently; however, a resurgence of demonstrations is expected in the summer given their recent alliance with the Indigenous activist group "Defenders of the Land."

GITXSAN TREATY SOCIETY / KITSELAS AND KITSUMKALUM TREATY DISPUTE – NEW HAZELTON / TERRACE AREA

Description:

- Kitselas and Kitsumkalum First Nations are currently undergoing treaty negotiations. Kitselas voted in favour of a Treaty Agreement In Principal (AIP) in February. Kitsumkalum will be voting on April 10th.
- The Gitxsan Treaty Society, a group within the Gitxsan First Nation, are demanding a vote on the Kitselas and Kitsumkalum (AIP), claiming some of the territory under negotiation is Gitxsan Territory.
- The Gitxsan Treaty Society GTS) have a long-standing internal dispute within the Gitxsan Nation that resulted in the occupation of the GTS Office in the summer of 2012.

Current Status:

- On March 12th the Gitxsan Treaty Society (GTS) sent a letter to the Federal and Provincial governments demanding a vote.
- On March 20th a full page advertisement written by GTS members appeared in the Terrace Standard stating their opposition towards the treaty negotiations and suggests that conflict may arise regarding the disputed piece of land.

Analysis:

Increased opposition, in the forms of protest and rallies, by the GTS is expected given their history of civil disobedience. April 10th, the scheduled Kitsumkalum voting date, remains the probable date of protest.

UNIS'TOT'EN ACTION CAMP – HOUSTON AREA

Description:

- The Unis'tot'en Camp's purpose is "building solidarity through campaign and action planning for communities who oppose the proposed and approved pipelines and mining projects" in Northern BC.
- The camp is located at "the 66km marker next to the Morice River West FSR at the shore of the Wedzin Kwah and mouth of the Gosnell Creek," in the Smithers/ Houston area.
- One cabin exists in the Unis'tot'en Camp; it was built as a physical impediment to the proposed route of the Enbridge Northern Gateway and Apache's Pacific Trail Pipelines. On September 17, 2012, construction of a second cabin began.
- The Unis'tot'en, a splinter group of the Wet'suwet'en First Nation, have a long history of opposing pipelines, mines, logging, and cattle ranching on their territory southwest of Houston, BC.

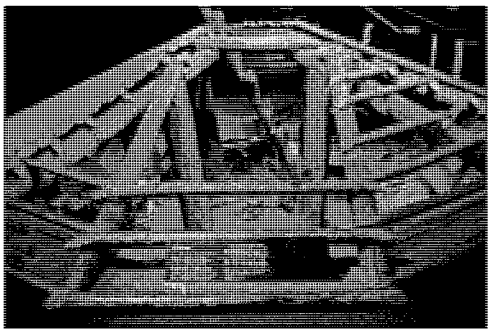
Current Status:



- The construction of pit houses and installation of interconnected permaculture gardens will begin during the "Spring Camp" which is scheduled from May 6 - 24th.
- Victoria-based environmentalist group, VIC Forest Action Network, is intending on sending a caravan of volunteers and supplies to support the camp.

Analysis:

The construction of pithouses and permaculture gardens suggests the Unis'tot'en intend to establish a larger permanent community. Conflict may arise between residents and pipeline surveyors when surveying recommences in the Spring.

PACIFIC TRAILS PIPELINE (PTP) – SUMMIT LAKE - KITIMAT

Description:

- The $1 billion 463 km Pacific Trail Pipelines will provide a direct connection between the Spectra Energy Transmission pipeline system and the Kitimat LNG terminal for the transportation of liquefied natural gas (LNG) from Western Canada to Asian markets.
- The project was approved on June 27, 2008 and received approval for a 36% increase in capacity in April 2012.
- In December 2012, Chevron Canada and Apache Canada each became 50 percent owner of the $4.5 billion Kitimat LNG plant, the Pacific Trail Pipeline and 644, 000 gross underdeveloped acres in the Horn River and Liard basins.
- The Likhts'amisyu and Unis'tot'en clans of the Wet'suwet'en First Nation oppose the PTP as the proposed route passes through their territory.

Current Status:

- On February 25th, Pacific Trail Pipelines Limited Partnership signed a $200 million commercial agreement with 15 out of 16 of First Nations whose traditional territories are located along the proposed PTP route.
- On March 21st, the environmentalist group - Rising Tide – dropped two banners off an overpass on Highway 1. One read "Stop Fracking Chevron" and the other "No Consent? No Pipelines."
- March 30th was the "Global Day of Action against Chevron and the Pacific Trail Pipeline". A circus-themed protest occurred at the Confederation Community Centre located near the Chevron Oil Refinery in Burnaby. Another protest occurred concurrently in Victoria.

Analysis:

Increased development of liquefied natural gas has caused greater scrutiny of proposed pipelines and LNG plants. Chevron stations and offices remain probable locations of protest given their visibility.

ENBRIDGE NORTHERN GATEWAY PIPELINE (ENG-NGP) – ALBERTA TO KITIMAT

Description:

- Enbridge plans to build a $6 billion, 1170 km pipeline from the Alberta oil sands to Kitimat, B.C. The twin pipeline will carry bitumen west for shipment to Asia, and condensate east for use in the Alberta oil sands.
- Enbridge is seeking approval from the National Energy Board (NEB) and Canadian Environmental Assessment Agency (CEAA), who are holding Joint Review Panel (JRP) sessions throughout 2012.

Prince Rupert: April 1-5, 8-12, 22-27 & 29-30

Current Status:

- During a news conference on March 18th, the Federal Government introduced the Safeguarding Canada's Seas and Skies Act intended to improve safety guidelines for oil tankers. An additional eight measures were recommended to bring Canada "closer to a world-class tanker safety system."
- En route to the news conference, British Columbia's largest oil spill response vessel ran aground briefly on an uncharted sandbar off Sand Heads at the mouth of the Fraser River.
- On March 19th Vancouver lawyer Doug EYFORD was announced as an envoy to deal with First Nations concerns on pipelines and energy. EYFORD is a federal land claims negotiator. He will report directly to Prime Minister HARPER.
- On March 20th 10 First Nations leaders from the United States and Canada held a press conference in Ottawa expressing their concerns over oilsands developments and proposed pipeline routes affecting their traditional territories. Chiefs and hereditary leaders of the Yinka Dene Alliance, Yankton Sioux, Athabasca Chipewyan and Tsleil-Waututh First Nations were in attendance and signed two agreements pledging their mutual support, the "Save the Fraser Declaration" and "The International Treaty to Protect the Sacred Against Tar Sands Projects."

Analysis:

The alliance between US and Canada First Nation leaders illustrates the unabated opposition towards Enbridge's proposed Northern Gateway Pipeline. The Safeguarding Canada's Seas and Skies Act is believed to have a negligible impact on the anti-Enbridge movement given opponents remain skeptical of Enbridge's pipeline safety procedures. Indeed, the recent requirement of Enbridge to dredge the Kalamazoo

TASEKO NEW PROSPERITY MINE – ALEXIS CREEK / WILLIAMS LAKE AREA

Description:

- Taseko's first proposal to build an $800-million gold-copper mine (Prosperity Mine) required draining Fish Lake (aka: Teztan Biny) in order to access ore deposits beneath the lake. On November 2, 2010, the federal government rejected the proposal.
- Taseko submitted a revised $1.1-billion project description for New Prosperity Mine, which does not require the draining of Fish Lake.
- On November 29, 2012, the Canadian Environmental Assessment Agency (CEAA) discontinued review of Taseko's second environmental submission citing "major deficiencies." The CEAA requested Taseko to provide additional information to fulfill Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) Guidelines.

Current Status:

- On March 1st Taseko provided the additional information requested by CEAA. Public hearings are scheduled this Spring.
- On March 20th the South Cariboo Chamber of Commerce sponsored an open house on the proposed New Prosperity Mine.
- During a CBC interview on March 22nd Ervin Charleyboy, former Tsilhqot'in National Government tribal chair and former Alexis Creek Indian Band Chief, expressed his support of the project, stating it would provide job opportunities for First Nations youth.
- On March 27th approximately 40 youth and 60 adults protested at Cariboo Memorial Recreation Complex against the New Prosperity Mine.

Analysis:

Ervin Charleyboy's support of the project has caused tension within the community, however, the Tsilhqot'in National Government remain opposed citing environmental concerns. Demonstrations opposing the project are expected to continue.

LOWER MAINLAND DISTRICT

TRANSMOUNTAIN KINDER MORGAN PIPELINE TWINNING – EDMONTON TO BURNABY

Description:

- Kinder Morgan intends to twin its existing pipeline, built in the 1950s, from Edmonton to its Westridge Terminal in Burnaby. The $4.0 billion upgrade would almost triple capacity from 300,000 barrels per day to 750,000.
- The pipeline is already twinned from Darfield south to Kamloops, and through Jasper and Mount Robson parks. Currently the pipeline delivers 90% of the gasoline used in the Lower Mainland.
- The toll application process, the establishment of tolls and operating terms over a 20-year period, will begin February 2013. The company expects to apply for an environmental assessment with the National Energy Board late 2013.

Current Status:

- On February 24th a protest occurred at the Kinder Morgan Westridge Marine Terminal in Burnaby.
- On March 18th the Federal Government introduced the Safeguarding Canada's Seas and Skies Act intended to improve safety guidelines for oil tankers. An additional eight measures were recommended to bring Canada "closer to a world-class tanker safety system."
- On March 26th the Cold Water Indian Band requested a judicial review of the proposed Kinder Morgan twinning. The Band states that the Minister of Indian Affairs has a legal obligation to act in the best interests of the band.

Analysis:

Tsleil-Waututh Nation remains the primary opposition to the proposed Kinder Morgan twinning. It is unknown if they will request a judicial review, however, they are hosting an Anti-Kinder Morgan protest during the "West Coast Oil Pipeline Summit & Gala Dinner" in April 2013. The protest is expected to be peaceful.

SOUTHEAST DISTRICT

JUMBO GLACIER RESORT – KOOTENAYS

Description:

- On Mar 20, 2012, the province approved the development of a resort municipality in the Jumbo Glacier Valley. It will include a ski village, two hotels, 1,360 residential units, 23 lifts and a gondola.
- Groups including EcoSociety, Wildsight and Ktunaxa First Nation have opposed the development for more than 20 years, claiming the area is a critical grizzly bear habitat and is a sacred spiritual area.
- In November 2012, British Columbia's cabinet approved the incorporation of the mountain resort municipality in the Jumbo Valley.
- Ktunaxa First Nation submitted an application for judicial review of Jumbo Resort, disputing the establishment of a ski resort where none previously existed.

Current Status:

- In March West Kootenay EcoSociety filed for judicial review of the Jumbo Glacier Resort Mountain Municipality stating that the appointment of municipal councilors without any electors violates the constitution and various provincial statutes.

Analysis:

The judicial reviews filed by West Kootenay EcoSociety and Ktunaxa Nation illustrate the unabated opposition to the Jumbo Glacier Resort. No rallies or protests are known at this time.

BRIEFING NOTE TO Criminal Operations

NOTE D=INFORMATION

DET/UNIT: Yarmouth Rural Date: 2013-01-28

INVESTIGATOR: S/Sgt Michel Lacroix File: 2013-344605

TYPE OF INCIDENT: Demonstration / Protest

LOCATION: Acadia First Nation Band Office, HW # 3, Yarmouth County

DATE of INCIDENT: 2013-04-02 Time: 07:30 Hrs

VICTIM: N/A DOB:

Suspect: N/A DOB:

PURPOSE:

$ To advise CROPS and the DPO SW Nova of a planned protest by some members of the Acadia First Nation at their own Band office in Yarmouth.

ISSUE:

$ A group of Acadia First Nations Band members are planning a demonstration and disruption of the operation of their band office and probably commercial operations operated by the Band, in protest against the current administration/leadership. The event is planned for Tuesday April 2nd during the normal business hours of the Band office. The goal of the event, is to prevent the Band to start spending money from the new 2013-2014 budget starting April 2nd.

BACKGROUND:

$ Late on 2012-03-27, the Acadia First Nation Band reported that a group of Band members, were planning a protest and/or occupation of the Band office next Tuesday, April 2nd. The goal of their action is to prevent the current leadership from spending the new budget.

it is believe that between 10 to 15 protesters can be expected next Tuesday morning. if the Band office is closed on Tuesday, they would go in front of the two businesses operated by the Band just next door to the Band office, had been in contact with the media.

CURRENT STATUS:

$ Yarmouth Rural has since opend up a file and will monitor the situation during the long weekend. An Operation plan will also be prepared to make sure that there is enough coordinated resources in case this situation escalate. At this point, there is sufficient resources between Yarmouth Rural Detachment, Yarmouth Town Detachment and various Units located in Yarmouth to properly deal with the situation.

BRIEFING NOTE TO Criminal Operations

NOTE D=INFORMATION

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

I attached an article that was published on March 2013 in Frank Magazine regarding this issue, the article explained very well the reasons why this protest is being plan. Basically it's believe that the current administration is abusing the funds allocated to the Band.

Based on this information, Yarmouth Rural Detachment should be prepared to answer questions

The assistance of the communication section will be required to prepare answers,

Cpl Deborah Maloney of Aboriginal & Diversity Policing Services has been informed and she will assist in monitoring the situation.

RECOMMENDATIONS / STRATEGIC ADVICE (if applies):

- Prepare an Ops Plan regarding the protest on Tuesday morning.
- Work with the Communication Section to prepare some Q & As
- Monitor all sources of information during the next few days

Sir,

Please see attached BN regarding a protest planned for this date in Nova Scotia. While this is not affiliated with a Bill C45/Idlenomore Protest, I felt your office would appreciate receiving the information.

A group of Acadia First Nations Band members are planning a demonstration and disruption of the operation of their band office and probably commercial operations operated by the Band, in protest against the current administration/leadership.

I just got off the phone with the Detachment Commander S/Sgt. Lacroix and he has been successful in having the protest organizers meet for discussions with the First Nation Chief this morning. They are currently in peaceful discussions and it is anticipated the situation may be resolved in the next few hours.

I will forward an updated BN likely tomorrow once received from the Detachment Commander.

Debbie

ISSUE: Status update regarding BC 'Idle No More' public awareness campaign in British Columbia. (File EDIV 2013-083)

BACKGROUND:

$ The 'Idle No More' (INM) movement continues to hold public awareness demonstrations regarding First Nations relations with the Government of Canada.

$ Demonstrations have been held at shopping malls, First Nations and government buildings, roads and highways, and international border crossings. To date, all demonstrations have been brief and peaceful.

$ On January 11th Prime Minister Harper met with approximately 20 First Nations leaders. An 'Idle No More' National Day of Action was organized to coincide with the meeting. Approximately 35 'Idle No More' demonstrations occurred in BC.

$ On January 16th a "National Day of Action" was organized advocating to "disrupt the Canadian economy." Three relatively minor demonstrations occurred in BC.

$ The January 28th "National Day of Action" coincided with the re-opening of Parliament; 14 demonstrations occurred in BC.

CURRENT STATUS:

- The Idle No More movement formed an alliance with "Defenders of the Land," an established network of Indigenous activists. They have advocated for "escalating action," including "co-ordinated non-violent direct actions."

$ Upcoming 'Idle No More' demonstrations within the next reporting period (refer to attached timeline):

  - April 7 – Merritt: Shulus Hall
  - April 8 – Burnaby: Simon Fraser University
  - April 8 – Keremeos: Memorial Park

$ CN Rail continues to hold a court injunction with an enforcement order which is enforceable province wide.

$ This information has been shared with local detachments and public safety agencies including, Vancouver Police Department, Victoria Police Department, Stl'atl'imx Tribal Police, E Division BIP/Ports, CBSA, CN Police, CP Police, Marine Security Operations Centre (MSOC) and Ministry of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation (MARR).

$ Further information will be shared with impacted jurisdictions through District Command.

This document is the property of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP), Aboriginal Policing Services (APS). It is loaned specifically to your department/agency in confidence and for internal use only, and it is not to be reclassified, copied, reproduced, used or further disseminated, in whole or in part, without the consent of the originator. It is not to be used in affidavits, court proceedings, subpoenas or any other legal or judicial purpose without the consent of the originator. The handling and storing of this document must comply with handling and storage guidelines established by the Government of Canada for classified information. If your department/agency cannot apply these guidelines, please read and destroy this document. This caveat is an integral part of this document and must accompany any extracted information. For any enquiries concerning the information or the caveat, please contact the OIC E-Division Aboriginal Policing Services, RCMP.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

- The Idle No More "Unsilent Spring" demonstration on March 30th was viewed as a success. Less frequent, but larger demonstrations are expected during what is being called the "Sovereignty Summer."

$ FNP (First Nations Policing) Members are encouraged to proactively engage their communities and advise of upcoming public order events to District Command and APS.

PUBLIC SAFETY PROTOCOLS:

$ None to report at this time.

Bonjour,

Ceci est pour vous informer que :

4 avril 2013 à 14:00 hres à Montréal

Une manifestation est annoncée sur #IdleNoMore pour aujourd'hui le 4 avril 2013 à 14:00 hres devant les bureaux de PF Résolu situé au 111 Rue Duke à Montréal en solidarité avec les Algonquins. Cette manifestation est organisée par SOS Poigan qui convie la population à un rassemblement devant les bureaux montréalais de PF Résolu. Ce rassemblement sera suivi d'une marche jusqu'aux bureaux de Forest Stewardship Council (FSC) - FSC attribue la certification FSC aux activités forestières des compagnies et elle passera devant les bureaux de la première ministre du Québec, Pauline Marois.

Marche le 3 avril 2013 à 16:30 à Montréal

Il est à noter qu'une marche a également eu lieu, hier, mercredi le 3 avril 2013 à 16:30. Cette marche débutait au coin des rues De Maisonneuve et Mackay, près de l'Université Concordia où Raymond Robinson a donné une conférence dans le Hall Building à 16:00 hres.

Soumis pour votre information.

Bonne journée !

"For Immediate Release

Grand Elder Raymond Robinson of Cross Lake Manitoba will begin a no liquid hunger strike on Wednesday the 3rd at 9:00 AM. Mr. Robinson says he is ready to die for his cause and that he will not stop unless Steven Harper removes a series of amendments that were quietly, and recently, added to the First Nations Comprehensive Funding Agreements and agrees to a meaningful Nation to Nation dialogue with First Nations."

Analyst Note: Grand Elder Raymond Robinson is from the Cross Lake Nation in Manitoba. His hunger strike is unlikely to generate as much support as Attawapiskat Chief Spence's hunger strike in December 2012.

Growing Number of First Nations Across North America Gather In Ottawa with Unified Message

March 20, 2013

For Immediate Release

March 20, Ottawa – Chiefs and hereditary leaders from ten First Nations with traditional territory in the tar sands and on tar sands pipeline routes in western and eastern Canada and the United States gathered in Ottawa today to deliver a clear and unified message: tar sands pipelines will not pass through their collective territories under any conditions or circumstances. The First Nations signed two historic agreements pledging their mutual support to one another in their respective battles to protect their lands, water and health from proposed tar sands projects.

"The International Treaty to Protect the Sacred from Tar Sands Projects and Save the Fraser Declaration are rapidly gaining international support across Canada, the US and beyond. Whether or not Prime Minister Harper or President Obama approves the Enbridge, Kinder Morgan, the Keystone KL or the Enbridge Line 9 pipelines, they will not pass through our collective Aboriginal Territories under any conditions or circumstances." said Hereditary Chief Phil Lane Jr., Ihanktonwan Dakota signatory of the International Treaty to Protect the Sacred from Tar Sands Projects, whose traditional lands include the ecologically sensitive Ogallala aquifer along the route of the Keystone XL pipeline.

Representatives of the Yinka Dene Alliance, the Athabasca Chipewyan First Nation, the Tsleil-Waututh Nation, the Yankton Sioux Nation and the Kitigan Zibi Anishinabeg Nation stood together to demand a cap to tar sands production and say no to further projects.

"Forcing these projects through would contravene our Indigenous laws and our decision-making rights under the Canadian constitution and international law. We have said no, and we call on the Canadian government to recognize and respect our decisions," said Chief Martin Louie of the Nadleh Whut'en First Nation, which lies in the path of the proposed Enbridge Northern Gateway Pipeline.

The Yinka Dene Alliance, the Kitigan Zibi Anishinabeg Nation and the Yankton Sioux Nations of South Dakota engaged in mutual signings of the Save the Fraser Declaration and the International Treaty to Protect the Sacred from Tar Sands Projects, instruments asserting the illegality of tar sands projects under these nations' own Indigenous laws. Leaders fighting the effects of environmental degradation on their rights and culture stressed that building more pipelines will increase tar sands production and destroy Indigenous communities.

"The Canadian government is spending a lot of money and time in the United States saying the tar sands are environmental and well-regulated, but my community -- the polluted air we breathe, the polluted water we drink, the miles of toxic lakes -- is living proof the Canadian government is telling one long, expensive lie," said Chief Allan Adam of the Athabasca Chipewyan First Nation in Alberta.

Four pipelines are being proposed to transport tar sands oil: Enbridge Northern Gateway, Kinder Morgan Trans Mountain, Trans Canada Keystone XL, and the Enbridge Line 9 reversal. First Nations represented along all of these proposed pipelines rejected efforts by government and industry to greenwash these projects and to push them through without consultation, stressing that Canada's energy program must change to meet the challenges.

"We must ensure a clean and healthy world for future generations by providing different solutions. Together we are more empowered than apart. Our resistance is strong and growing and we believe we will succeed," said Rueben George of the Tsleil-Waututh First Nation, which is opposing Kinder Morgan's new pipeline.

The Alberta tar sands currently produce approximately 1.8 million barrels of oil per day, but if industry and government's expansion plans are approved that number could reach six million barrels per day. Analysis by the Pembina Institute shows the projected emissions from the tar sands are increasing Canada's overall emissions. If the tar sands were capped at the current production, Canada's emissions would decrease – not enough to reach the government's 2020 target, but enough to stop Canada from going backwards.

The Save the Fraser Declaration is an Indigenous law declaration banning tar sands pipelines and tankers from crossing British Columbia, signed by over 160 First Nations and supporters since its creation in 2010. The International Treaty to Protect the Sacred Against Tar Sands Projects is a treaty of peace and mutual defense concluded in January 2013 between the Yankton Sioux and Pawnee Nations, marking the 150th anniversary of a historic peace treaty between the two nations and committing signatories to defending their territories and sacred sites from tar sands infrastructure.

Block The Gateway

Where we are coming from:

We are working on the basis that resource extraction is destroying the land and the ability of both ourselves and future generations to live. That this way of relating to the land is rooted in settler colonialism and the myths of the state and capitalist economy. We believe it is essential for effective resistance and the creation of future relationships with land and people to understand our resistance not simply in the context of protecting the envioronement, but in an interconnected way that centers Indigenous Sovereignty over unceded territories.

The Unis'tot'en Action Camp

The Unist'ot'en Camp is a resistance community created to ensure that no pipelines will ever cross Wet'suwe'ten traditional territory. They act to protect the land and the increasingly unstable climate, to do what is best for future generations.

Unist'ot'en Camp is looking for volunteers to help us construct pithouses and install interconnected permaculture gardens in the territory at our Spring Camp. The Spring Camp is for 3 weeks and the dates are May 6-24, 2013.

Teach-In April 28th on Lekwungen and Wsanec Territories:

A collective of organizers are working with the VIPIRG working group No Pipelines! on an all-day decolonization Teach-In. This Teach In is intended to prepare and strategize settler resistance to colonialism from "right here, right now" with the Lekwungen and Wsanec territories, to the Unis'tot'en resistance against pipeline construction and resource extraction on Wet'suwe'ten territories.

On April 28th Hereditary Chief Toghestiy of the Likhsts'amisyu Clan, Unis'tot'en Spokesperson Freda Huson, and Warrior and Teacher Mel Bazil of the Gitimt'en Clan will be joining us for this event and will share with us their stories of resistance and resilience.

Ultimately we seek to increase the capacity of settler organizers and local First Nations to work together on regional issues, as well as to support the Unis'tot'en and other. We hope to enable critical networking across these communities, which may establish stronger, trust based relationships. We hope that by organizing this teach in, we are also taking critical step towards accountable organizing.

INVESTIGATOR: S/Sgt Michel Lacroix File: 2013-344605

TYPE OF INCIDENT: Demonstration / Protest

LOCATION: Acadia First Nation Band Office, HW # 3, Yarmouth County

DATE of INCIDENT: 2013-04-02 Time: 07:30 Hrs

VICTIM: N/A DOB:

Suspect: N/A DOB:

PURPOSE:

$ To advise CROPS and the DPO SW Nova of a planned protest by some members of the Acadia First Nation at their own Band office in Yarmouth.

ISSUE:

$ A group of Acadia First Nations Band members are planning a demonstration and disruption of the operation of their band office and probably commercial operations operated by the Band, in protest against the current administration/leadership. The event is planned for Tuesday April 2nd during the normal business hours of the Band office. The goal of the event, is to prevent the Band to start spending money from the new 2013-2014 budget starting April 2nd.

BACKGROUND: N/A

CURRENT STATUS:

The protest started this morning at 08:00 AM, when about a douzen protesters arrived at the Band office and requested to speak with the Chief. RCMP members were on site and dialogue was promoted to both side.

The Band office was locked but Councillors and the Chief spoke with the protesters in the parking lot until 10:00. Local and provincial media on site, interviews with protesters and Chief conducted. Because of cold weather, the meeting was moved into the lobby of the Band office, where protesters asked questions and expressed their concerns to the Band's leadership. RCMP members present at all time, no problems during the entire meeting. At the end of the afternoon, all protesters left. There could be some meetings at a later date to provide more answers to the protesters. RCMP members were not interviewed by the reporters (radio/TV/paper)

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

Based on what took place today, this conflic is over but we will continue to monitor the source of informations.

1. The Walkers from Manitoba are South of Kenora and they are on their way to Fort Frances last week and are continuing to Sault Ste Marie and then Sudbury which is the last city they will visit before their arrival to Ottawa. They plan on arriving around 2013-05-15, but that date may change.

They are having some leadership issues within this group and an exact route through Ontario couldn't be identified at this time.

2. Another group of Youth Walkers from Stanley Mission Saskatchewan which is a Cree Nation part of Lac La Ronge Indian Band.

The walkers, plan to arrive in Ottawa for National Aboriginal Day on 2013-06-21.

The group's cause is to convince the government to rescind Bill C-45 until they consult with native leaders.

No issues expected with these two groups.

Our Ottawa contact is in daily communication with Cpl Russett.

Idle No More movement 'different' from anything the government had ever seen before, documents reveal OTTAWA — On Dec. 12, an Aboriginal Affairs communications worker emailed his regional director about ongoing Idle No More protests.

"What do you mean 'idle no more'?," Atlantic region director Ian Gray responded to Steve Young's email.

"Idle no more is the rallying statement for all the First Nations protesting Harper government actions. In other words, we aren't going to sit by and take this," Young wrote back. "Since mainstream media isn't giving alot (sic) of coverage they are using social media quite effectively ... it's actually a great case study in grassroots use of new technology."

Eight days later, then aboriginal affairs minister John Duncan was warned in a briefing note of a potential turning point in relations between the Crown and First Nations. By the time the protest movement captured headlines around the country, a social media analysis for the government concluded what that first email suggested: This was a movement the likes of which the government had never seen before.

The Dec. 20 briefing note to Duncan about the Assembly of First Nations special meeting in early December also suggests that the Harper government would have a harder time selling legislative changes, including those passed in the omnibus budget bill late last year, and potentially future legislation that affects First Nations.

"The Special Assembly could represent a turning point in the Crown-First Nations relationship and with the AFN in particular. As you are aware, chiefs briefly suspended their activities on the first day of the Special Assembly to protest on Parliament Hill," the briefing note reads.

"The National Chief (Shawn Atleo) made clear that he and the rest of the AFN executive would support First Nations chiefs and communities in their efforts to oppose the Government of Canada legislative and policy agenda."

One of the resolutions of interest passed at the meeting, singled out among others in the briefing note, puts the "government of Canada on notice that any further imposition of legislation and/or policies will be met with appropriate measures."

"There is genuine discontent regarding the Indian Act and its application; however, proposed federal legislative changes are causing concerns in First Nation communities and no clear way forward is being proposed by First Nation chiefs in this area," the briefing note reads.

The briefing note then identified Jan. 24, the anniversary of the landmark Crown-First Nations Gathering, as a key date to keep an eye on, followed by election of chiefs in Quebec and Alberta in late January and February, respectively. The dates the calendar has yet to hit include the release of census data on May 8, the AFN general assembly in July, and Oct. 27 — the 250th anniversary of the Royal Proclamation.

The documents were released to Postmedia News under the access to information law.

Also included in the documents is an email to workers at the Yellowknife office of Aboriginal Affairs, telling them that if they planned to join a Dec. 21 Idle No More rally outside their office, they had to "submit leave to their manager" and follow the ethics code for public servants.

The briefing note came amidst growing coverage of the Idle No More protest movement, a grassroots indigenous sovereignty movement spurred on and organized through social media, that quickly ramped up across the country last fall in response to the Conservative government's two omnibus budget bills.

Many indigenous peoples said the bills loosened environmental protection of waterways and infringed upon First Nations' right to self-govern.

"Organized and promoted through social media, Idle No More has been able to do something that other movements in the past have not been able to do or manage to sustain. It has people leaving their homes to participate."

The analysis concludes by saying that social media has had "chatter" in the past around aboriginal issues, including the Crown-First Nations Gathering, but Idle No More "is quite different from what we've seen before in terms of activity and rhetoric."

Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence became the face of the movement during her liquid diet, which she began on an island near Parliament Hill to protest the government's legislation and demand a meeting with Prime Minister Stephen Harper.

The peaceful protests reached their peak on Jan. 11, when thousands of protesters marched on Parliament Hill. While drumming and dancing filled the streets, Harper met with First Nations chiefs to discuss issues such as treaty rights and comprehensive land claims. Spence boycotted the meeting, saying that Gov. Gen. David Johnston had to be there as well. (Johnston met with chiefs that night at a ceremonial meeting in Rideau Hall.)

A number of other chiefs supported Spence, denouncing the leaders who attended the meeting and protesting outside the prime minister's office.

ISSUE: Status update regarding BC 'Idle No More' public awareness campaign in British Columbia. (File EDIV 2013-083)

BACKGROUND:

- The 'Idle No More' (INM) movement continues to hold public awareness demonstrations regarding First Nations relations with the Government of Canada.
- Demonstrations have been held at shopping malls, First Nations and government buildings, roads and highways, and international border crossings. To date, all demonstrations have been brief and peaceful.
- Three 'Idle No More' National Days of Action occurred on January 11th, 16th and 28th. Thirty-five, three and fourteen demonstrations occurred on those dates respectively.

CURRENT STATUS:

- Upcoming 'Idle No More' demonstrations within the next reporting period (refer to attached timeline):
  - April 14 – Prince George: Prince George Civic Centre

- CN Rail continues to hold a court injunction with an enforcement order which is enforceable province wide.
- This information has been shared with local detachments and public safety agencies including, Vancouver Police Department, Victoria Police Department, Stl'atl'imx Tribal Police, E Division BIP/Ports, CBSA, CN Police, CP Police, Marine Security Operations Centre (MSOC) and Ministry of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation (MARR).
- Further information will be shared with impacted jurisdictions through District Command.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

- The Idle No More movement has abated significantly; however, a resurgence of demonstrations is expected during what is being called the "Sovereignty Summer."

- FNP (First Nations Policing) Members are encouraged to proactively engage their communities and advise of upcoming public order events to District Command and APS.

PUBLIC SAFETY PROTOCOLS:

- None to report at this time.

Dissemination List: D/Comm. Mike Cabana, D/Comm. Doug Lang, C/Supt. Tonia Enger, C/Supt. Warren Coons, Supt. Tyler Bates, Insp. Michael Lesage, Mr. Daniel Lavoie, Mr. François Mathieu, Mr. Liam Price.

PURPOSE:

There have been numerous reports of planned protests and potential blockades in support of Aboriginal-based issues, the majority of which have been organized under the "Idle No More" (INM) banner. (U) These protests are being monitored for RCMP senior management situational awareness as well as public and police officer safety. Since December 10, 2012, approximately 902 events have been recorded at the national level. (A)

This report will provide a summary of reported and planned events in Canada being organized within the next 24 hours, as well as events planned until April 19, 2013. These lists may not be complete as the environment is constantly changing due, in part, to the wide-spread usage of social networks to communicate with and mobilize supporters. In addition, the RCMP has not confirmed that these events have actually taken place. (U)

OVERVIEW:

Events are being planned, locally, in British Columbia (BC), Alberta (AB) and Manitoba (MB) for April, May and June 2013. According to reports, some events will be targeting resource development projects involving pipelines, tar sands, natural gas, fisheries or mines. (A)

On April 5, 2013, a traffic blockade on the Trans-Labrador Highway led to eight arrests by RCMP members of the Happy Valley Goose Bay Detachment. Despite mediation attempts (between 0530 and 0830 hrs), approximately 15 protesters from the NunatuKavut community were uncooperative when asked to stop interfering with traffic near the Muskrat Falls Hydroelectric project. Former Labrador Liberal MP Todd Russell was identified by the media as the main organizer.

According to media reports, this event was not sponsored by or associated with INM. (A)

Aboriginal-based issues demonstrations are being planned in AB, BC and Ontario (ON), on April 21 and April 22, the latter coinciding with International Earth Day. This environmental day of action would include peaceful actions in 170 countries to bring attention to global ecological issues. (U)

In the short term, there are two (2) events (information sessions and a rally) reported to occur between April 12 and April 14 in BC and Quebec (QC). Reports indicate there are two (2) events planned to occur between April 15 and April 19, in BC and QC, consisting of a protest and a teach-in. (A)

NEWS: Youth4Lakes walkers trek 2100 kilometres to protect water

On March 31, Council of Canadians organizer Mark Calzavara and chapter activist John Caldwell met with the walkers at the Manitoba-Ontario border.
The Atikokan Progress reports that Youth4Lakes is a group of about a dozen Treaty 3 Indigenous youth ages 13 to 36 from Manitoba and Kenora who embarked on March 28 on a 2,100 kilometre walk from Winnipeg to Parliament Hill. They have been averaging 40 to 50 kilometres a day are expected to arrive in Ottawa in May.
The walkers include Ben Raven from the Jackhead First Nation in Manitoba, which is located on the shore of Lake Winnipeg. He says because there is so much algae from poor filtration and due to the diversions, you can boil the water, but you can't drink it.
Walker Victor Thomas is from the Skownon First Nation. His community has experienced massive damage from flooding related to the narrowing of the West Waterhen River Bridge. The group also includes Edmund Jack, Amanda Jones and Alyssa Nepinak.
They have been speaking against C-45, the legislation passed by the Harper government that severely reduces the protection of lakes and rivers across the country. iPolitics notes, "Youth4Lakes is specifically concerned with clean water. 'All of this is to bring awareness and appreciation and gratitude for the waters of our world, and to acknowledge that without the water being healthy, it's near impossible for the rest of humanity and all the creatures of earth to survive,' said Ko'ona Cochrane, who helped to organize the walk."
iPolitics adds, "The youth are also walking in support of Idle No More, which has vowed to have a 'Solidarity Spring' and a 'Sovereignty Summer' with a number of actions planned, including pipeline-related blockades that are sure to create headaches for the Conservative government." The Council of Canadians and Common Causes have endorsed this 'call to action' from Idle No More and Defenders of the Land.
To find our more about the group, go to their Facebook page Youth4Lakes, https://www.facebook.com/#!/Youth4Lakes.

ISSUE: Status update regarding BC 'Idle No More' public awareness campaign in British Columbia. (File EDIV 2013-083)

BACKGROUND:

- The 'Idle No More' (INM) movement continues to hold public awareness demonstrations regarding First Nations relations with the Government of Canada.
- Demonstrations have been held at shopping malls, First Nations and government buildings, roads and highways, and international border crossings. To date, all demonstrations have been brief and peaceful.
- Three 'Idle No More' National Days of Action occurred on January 11th, 16th and 28th. Thirty-five, three and fourteen demonstrations occurred on those dates respectively.

CURRENT STATUS:

- Upcoming 'Idle No More' demonstrations within the next reporting period (refer to attached timeline):
  - April 19 – Comox Valley: K'omoks First Nation Band
  - April 20 – Lytton: Memorial Hall (information session)
  - April 20 – Squamish: Totem Hall
  - April 21 – Kelowna: Missions Creek Park
  - April 22 – North Vancouver: Londsdale Quay
  - April 25 – Terrace: Terrace Sportsplex

- CN Rail continues to hold a court injunction with an enforcement order which is enforceable province wide.
- This information has been shared with local detachments and public safety agencies including, Vancouver Police Department, Victoria Police Department, Stl'atl'imx Tribal Police, E Division BIP/Ports, CBSA, CN Police, CP Police, Marine Security Operations Centre (MSOC) and Ministry of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation (MARR).
- Further information will be shared with impacted jurisdictions through District Command.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

- Several Idle No More events are being organized around April 22 - "Earth Day," an annual day to support environmental protection. Future demonstrations are expected to fall on significant environmental and/or political dates.

- FNP (First Nations Policing) Members are encouraged to proactively engage their communities and advise of upcoming public order events to District Command and APS.

There have been numerous reports of planned protests and potential blockades in support of Aboriginal-based issues, the majority of which have been organized under the "Idle No More" (INM) banner.

This report will provide a summary of reported and planned events in Canada being organized within the next 24 hours, as well as events planned until April 19, 2013. These lists may not be complete as the environment is constantly changing due, in part, to the wide-spread usage of social networks to communicate with and mobilize supporters. In addition, the RCMP has not confirmed that these events have actually taken place.

Good morning

Thank you for continuing to send the reports regarding the Idle No More issue. We consider these to be very valuable in preparing our reports for the RCMP senior management, and appreciate that you have included our unit in your distribution list.

As this issue has continued for a few months now, there has been a change within our unit in personnel responsible for monitoring the file. As a result, I am writing to you today to request that you replace my name on your distribution list with Idle_No_More@rcmp-grc.gc.ca, the RCMP's generic e-mail account for monitoring these issues. This allows our unit to interchange analysts without losing contact with your organization.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact my colleague, Guillaume Demers, at 613-843-4823.

Thanks
Lori

First Nations, environmentalists and public leaders will gather to stimulate discussion and raise public awareness about expansion of the Canadian tar sands and oil industry infrastructure during a one-day conference hosted by the Tsleil-Waututh Nation on April 19.

The conference at the Sheraton Wall Centre in Vancouver will commence with Tsleil-Waututh Chief Maureen Thomas signing the International Treaty to Protect the Sacred from Tar Sands Projects. The treaty was created by the Yankton Sioux and Pawnee Nations to raise awareness for the unacceptable risks to the soil, waters, air, sacred sites, and way of life of indigenous peoples. It has since been signed by more than 10 Indigenous Nations since its creation in January 2013. The Tsleil-Waututh is the first Nation to sign the Treaty opposing Kinder Morgan.

Dissemination List: D/Comm. Mike Cabana, D/Comm. Doug Lang, C/Supt. Tonia Enger, C/Supt. Warren Coons, Supt. Tyler Bates, Insp. Michael Lesage, Mr. Daniel Lavoie, Mr. François Mathieu, Mr. Liam Price.

PURPOSE:

Since December 2012, there have been numerous reports of planned protests and potential blockades in support of Aboriginal-based issues, the majority of which have been organized under the "Idle No More" (INM) banner. Approximately 907 events have being monitored for RCMP senior management situational awareness as well as public and police officer safety. (A)

Until April 2013, the scope of monitoring and reporting included events or issues linked to INM. The spring of 2013 has been marked by an evolution in terms of aboriginal protests whereby INM-specific events have abated and land sovereignty / environmental protests that are not necessarily associated with INM have emerged. As a result, associations of convenience have occurred between INM and other organizations. These associations blur the line between INM-sponsored events, and activities from other groups or movements. (A)
This report will provide a summary of reported and planned events in Canada being organized within the next 24 hours, as well as events planned until April 26, 2013. These lists may not be complete as the environment is constantly changing
In addition, the RCMP has not confirmed that these events have actually taken place. (U)

OVERVIEW:

Events are being planned, locally, in British Columbia (BC), Alberta (AB) and Manitoba (MB) for April, May and June 2013. According to reports, some events will be targeting resource development projects involving pipelines, tar sands, natural gas, fisheries or mines. (A)

Aboriginal-based issues demonstrations are being planned in AB, BC and Ontario (ON), from April 20 to April 22, the latter coinciding with International Earth Day. This environmental day of action would include peaceful actions in 170 countries to bring attention to global ecological issues. (U)

In the short term, there are eight (8) events (rallies and protests) reported to occur between April 19 and April 21 in BC, MB, Saskatchewan (SK) and Quebec (QC). Reports indicate there are eight (8) events planned to occur between April 22 and April 26, in AB, BC, MB and ON consisting of protests, rallies and a march. (A)

Subject: Article: First Nations leader sent Idle No More plans to government: emails

"The federal government didn't have to go far to find out what First Nations leaders were planning during last winter's Idle No More movement.
The plans were sent directly to the government inbox.
Terrance Nelson, the former chief for Roseau River First Nation in Manitoba, forwarded private emails to the Department of Aboriginal Affairs – meant as "a warning to Canada not to get stupid," he told Global News in an interview.
The group of five emails, all forwarded on Dec. 30, 2012 and released recently to Global under Access to Information law, contain suggested strategies from some of the most outspoken voices of the Idle No More movement. No responses from the department were included in the released documents."

ISSUE: Status update regarding BC 'Idle No More' public awareness campaign in British Columbia. (File EDIV 2013-083)

BACKGROUND:

$ The 'Idle No More' (INM) movement continues to hold public awareness demonstrations regarding First Nations relations with the Government of Canada.

- Demonstrations have been held at shopping malls, First Nations and government buildings, roads and highways, and international border crossings. To date, all demonstrations have been brief and peaceful.

- Three 'Idle No More' National Days of Action occurred on January 11th, 16th and 28th. Thirty-five, three and fourteen demonstrations occurred on those dates respectively.

CURRENT STATUS:

$ Upcoming 'Idle No More' demonstrations within the next reporting period (refer to attached timeline):
  - April 25 – Terrace: Terrace Sportsplex
  - April 30 – Vancouver: Astorinos Ltd. (Workshop)

$ CN Rail continues to hold a court injunction with an enforcement order which is enforceable province wide.

$ This information has been shared with local detachments and public safety agencies including, Vancouver Police Department, Victoria Police Department, Stl'atl'imx Tribal Police, E Division BIP/Ports, CBSA, CN Police, CP Police, Marine Security Operations Centre (MSOC) and Ministry of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation (MARR).

$ Further information will be shared with impacted jurisdictions through District Command.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

$ There has been an increase of Idle No More events advocating against resource development in BC. Should these respective movements converge, a rise in public order demonstrations is expected.

$ FNP (First Nations Policing) Members are encouraged to proactively engage their communities and advise of upcoming public order events to District Command and APS.

ISSUE: Status update regarding BC 'Idle No More' public awareness campaign in British Columbia. (File EDIV 2013-083)

BACKGROUND:

$ The 'Idle No More' (INM) movement continues to hold public awareness demonstrations regarding First Nations relations with the Government of Canada.

- Demonstrations have been held at shopping malls, First Nations and government buildings, roads and highways, and international border crossings. To date, all demonstrations have been brief and peaceful.

- Three 'Idle No More' National Days of Action occurred on January 11th, 16th and 28th. Thirty-five, three and fourteen demonstrations occurred on those dates respectively.

CURRENT STATUS:

$ Upcoming 'Idle No More' demonstrations within the next reporting period (refer to attached timeline):
  - April 25 – Terrace: Terrace Sportsplex
  - April 30 – Vancouver: Astorinos Ltd. (Workshop)

$ CN Rail continues to hold a court injunction with an enforcement order which is enforceable province wide.

$ This information has been shared with local detachments and public safety agencies including, Vancouver Police Department, Victoria Police Department, Stl'atl'imx Tribal Police, E Division BIP/Ports, CBSA, CN Police, CP Police, Marine Security Operations Centre (MSOC) and Ministry of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation (MARR).

$ Further information will be shared with impacted jurisdictions through District Command.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

$ There has been an increase of Idle No More events advocating against resource development in BC. Should these respective movements converge, a rise in public order demonstrations is expected.

$ FNP (First Nations Policing) Members are encouraged to proactively engage their communities and advise of upcoming public order events to District Command and APS.

Former military official says poverty and anger in indigenous communities mean conditions for an "insurgency" are ripe.

Chris Arsenault
Aljazeera

Living standards for indigenous people on par with "third world" countries, buttressed by a large population of unemployed young men in a "warrior cohort", and easy-to-target economic infrastructure, all mean Canada has conditions for a potential indigenous "insurgency".

That's according to a new report penned by a former Canadian military officer for the MacDonald Laurier Institute, a think-tank supported by corporate executives.

"For many Aboriginal people in Canada, but especially for First Nations women and children, life on-reserve is dreary, dark and dangerous," wrote Douglas Bland in the report, Canada and the first Nations: Cooperation or Conflict? "Social fractionalisation significantly increases the risk of social conflict. The phenomenon provides motives for an insurgency," read the report, issued in May.

Bland refused interview requests from Al Jazeera, but conclusions from the Queen's University professor emeritus and 30-year military veteran have worried the Canadian establishment, especially in light of indigenous-led protests associated with the Idle No More movement, and Canada's increasing dependence on natural resource extraction.

'Ongoing injustice'

"The Canadian right-wing establishment is seizing on this to justify its own agenda of stricter controls and the continued criminalisation of native people who defend their rights," Taiaiake Alfred, chair of the centre for indigenous governance at the University of Victoria, and one of Canada's most influential aboriginal intellectuals, told Al Jazeera. "The positive elements of Canadian society - progressive values and social justice - are founded on the ongoing injustice of land theft and murder of indigenous people."

In November, Paul Martin, Canada's former prime minister and a business tycoon, echoed Alfred's comments, albeit in a softer tone. "We have never admitted to ourselves that we were, and still are, a colonial power," he said.

One of the world's most developed countries, Canada is home to about 1.2 million indigenous people out of a population of 34.5 million. The indigenous population is rising faster than other demographic groups, despite drastically higher rates of poverty, incarceration and substance abuse.

If indigenous Canadians were ranked as a country according to the United Nations Human Development Index, which measures living standards and life expectancy, they would have social outcomes comparable to residents of Kazakhstan and Albania.

Across Canada's prairies, the heartland of the country's agricultural industry and a centre for mining, about 42 percent of the indigenous population will be under the age of 30 by 2016, more than twice the youth rate in the non-indigenous community.

"The fact that Canada's natural wealth flows unfairly from Aboriginal lands and peoples to non-Aboriginal Canadians is a long-standing and justifiable grievance," the report said.

A large number of poorly educated, unemployed young men - a "warrior cohort", as Bland put it - provide fertile recruits for militant groups, the report says.

Using a formula first developed by researchers at Oxford University, Bland argued that the "feasibility" of unrest, rather than just root causes, could determine outcomes. Most of Canada's resource industries, including mines, dams and oil facilities, are located on land claimed by indigenous people - and attacking such facilities is easily feasible, the report said.

Comprising about four percent of the population, indigenous people make up 23 percent of Canada's prisoners, a 43 percent increase during the five years prior to 2013, according to a government report released in March.

There is near universal acceptance that the status quo is unacceptable, but across Canada's coffee shops, factories - and even within the MacDonald Laurier Institute - there is no consensus on the causes.

Other solutions

In a separate report for the institute, former government senior economic adviser Brian Lee Crowley and professor Kevin Coates paint an optimistic picture, far removed from fears over blockades, sabotage or a full-blown uprising.
"Blockades may be news," they wrote, "but the new joint ventures, long-term training programmes and successful indigenous businesses are what will reshape our common future."
They argue that indigenous communities are ready to hit a "sweet spot" as a series of Supreme Court decisions on long-standing treaties will give them a larger stake - environmental and financial - in natural resource development.
Other intellectuals, however, say support for mines, dams and other megaprojects with large environmental costs won't help get people out of poverty, and are contrary to indigenous support for sustainability.
"Crowley's argument is what the government has been saying for the last 150 years; historical experience has shown that it doesn't work," Peter Kulchyski, professor of native studies at the University of Manitoba, told Al Jazeera. "The communities that are worst off tend to be close to these resource developments ... These partnerships between natural resource exploitation companies and First Nations generate some cash for the reserve elite, but not much in terms of employment opportunities for average people."
Especially in northern Canada, many indigenous people still depend on hunting and trapping for their food, and Kulchyski says this way of life should be preserved through land management deals, the sale of meat and eco-tourism projects rather than large-scale developments - which often imperil the land.

Financial confusion

On reserves, the territory of indigenous Canadians, property rights function differently than in other parts of the country, making it difficult for residents to buy and sell their homes or land because the territories are often administered through a form of communal property law.
Outside large-scale resource extraction, a lack of property rights make business development difficult, conservatives argue, contending that free markets are needed to end poverty.
Many Canadians blame indigenous leaders for the poverty of their communities, arguing corruption is rampant on reserves.
Conservative Canadians often say indigenous people should leave their traditional territories on remote lands where employment opportunities are scarce and move to cities where jobs, training and education are more easily accessible.
After going on a hunger strike and making international headlines in an attempt to draw attention to the dire poverty faced by residents of Attawapiskat, a northern indigenous community, Chief Teresa Spence faced insinuations of mismanagement in January, after the government leaked an audit showing accounting gaps in more than $100m of federal transfers to the community.
Many Canadians say indigenous people receive too much money from the federal government, but Kulchyski says that isn't true.
"The money comes to them from a separate envelope, so that's where the confusion comes from," he said. "They are actually getting less money than the rest of us [on a per capita basis] and that is reflected in the horrifying living conditions people are dealing with."
Bland's Laurier Institute Report comes on the heels of renewed interest in indigenous issues from Canadian society, following Chief Spence's hunger strike and the Idle No More movement, a campaign driven by social media and popular protest to draw attention to poverty and marginalisation.
Professor Alfred, who fought as a US marine before joining academia, believes Idle No More is a positive step for education, but its ability to change fundamental social structures is limited. He said he thinks recent reports about a possible "insurgency" are vastly overblown and based on poor research; part of a political ploy by another ex-military man to gain more funding for a broader crackdown against dissenters.
"As an activist, I am hoping and praying for more militant action," Alfred said. "But as a political analyst, there is no objective evidence that will happen. As it stands, all the evidence points to continued colonialism."< Prev (http://www.firstperspective.ca/index.php/news/495-growing-aboriginal-power-a-good-news-story) Next > (http://www.firstperspective.ca/index.php/news/493-more-children-supported-at-home-than-placed-in-care)

Forest Action Network is raising funds to bring a caravan of volunteers and supplies (http://forestaction.wikidot.com/caravan) from Victoria to a Unis'tot'en camp that is blocking the path of pipeline development on the West Coast of B.C.

The Unis'tot'en, a clan belonging to the Wet'suwet'en nation, are opposed to all the pipelines slated to cross through their territories, some of which include the Enbridge Northern Gateway pipeline and Pacific Trails Pipeline.

The Unis'tot'en camp is just outside of Houston, B.C., near Kilometre 66 of the Morice River forest-service road.

"So many people in Victoria are dead-set against pipelines and tankers on the coast. They understand this is connected," said Zoe Blunt, director of Forest Action Network.

"Basically we're going upstream to stop the spill before it gets here."

Indigenous leaders building houses in path of West Coast oil pipelines

Last year, Indigenous leaders from Unis'tot'en and other clans built traditional pit houses in the path of West Coast oil pipelines and plan to build more this summer.

In August 2012 Forest Action Network sponsored the first caravan to the Unis'tot'en Camp.
Blunt, whose real name is Tracie Park, visited the camp with 100 other volunteers.
"Last year we bought a 48 passenger school bus and filled it with people, food and camping supplies and drove it up to the camp," Blunt said.
"It was a convoy. We had a school bus with eight cars following behind."
Forest Action Network wants to bring another busload of people to the camp in July.
About 200 people have signed up for the caravan this year.
According to Forest Action Network, cabins built last year by the Unis'tot'en forced oil and gas companies to re-route their pipelines to much more difficult terrain.
The Unis'tot'en camp is building more houses along the Morice River about a kilometer from the existing camp cabin to block the new route.

Unis'tot'en clan say no to Pacific Trails Pipeline

(http://beaconnews.ca/wp-content/uploads/2013/05/west-coast-oil-pipelines.jpg)

In December 2012, Apache and Chevron signed an agreement to build and operate the Pacific Trails Pipeline.
Since that time the Unis'tot'en have refused access to pipeline workers, surveyors and forest crews with plans to start work on the pipeline.
The 463-kilometre pipeline would carry natural gas from Summit Lake, north of Prince George, to the proposed Kitimat LNG terminal.
The pipeline would run through the traditional territory of the Unis'tot'en.
The Unis'tot'en have said Chevron and Apache Energy are not permitted on Unist'ot'en unceded territory (http://beaconnews.ca/blog/2013/04/calgarians-protest-against-pacific-trails-pipeline-project/).
A letter addressed to Chevron from Freda Huson, Unis'tot'en clan spokesperson, said the Wet'suwet'en are not under treaty with the Canadian government, and therefore the land belongs only to the Wet'suwet'en people.
"The grassroots Wet'suwet'en, especially the Unis'tot'en and Likhts'amisyu clans have repeatedly told PTP [Pacific Trails Pipeline] officials in meetings and face-to-face encounters that they will not tolerate any pipelines through their territories," the letter said.
Forest Action Network is planning to leave Victoria and Vancouver July 6 and return July 15.

Summary of IdleNoMore traffic for May 19 – 25 (http://feedproxy.google.com/~r/markblevis/~3/C5gSxC1xL6E/?utm_source=feedburner&utm_medium=email)

The IdleNoMore movement was officially declared in a November 23rd tweet (https://twitter.com/JessicaPGordon/status/271777953384386560) issued by Jessica Gordon (https://twitter.com/JessicaPGordon/). That means the movement celebrated its six month last week. It was a week which saw an increase in Twitter activity among the hashtags #IdleNoMore and #NativeWinter and phrase "Idle No More".

For the last six months I've been following online chatter related to — and pinned to — the movement. I've published regular analysis (http://markblevis.com/?s=idlenomore) which considers trends in activity, issues discussed, gender skews and popular tweets. My weekly updates have been diligently followed by people interested in the movement; those who support it and those who are affected by its actions. My analysis has been both praised and criticized.

The movement is a first in many ways for Canada, the world and most certainly for First Nations peoples. Among other things, it gave a voice to people who largely didn't have a voice. And, it allowed their voices to be amplified through democratized media and subsequently raised their profile through traditional media.

There is a wealth of information to be considered by campaign and movement organizers, and those who are the target of criticism. Full Duplex (http://fullduplex.ca) has been analyzing online activity and we are in the midst of pulling together a report we plan to publish in early June. One of our many findings is that as the movement itself seemed to lose its online energy, an increasing number of people began opportunistically using the popular hashtag as a catch-all for all forms of anti-government and anti-corporate sentiment. There was also a noticeable amount of completely unrelated content tagged with #IdleNoMore. In some ways this evolution of the hashtag marginalized the voices of those who created it.

What follows is the analysis of Idle No More online activity for May 19 through 25, inclusive. Analysis was performed using Marketwired/Sysomos Heartbeat (http://www.sysomos.com/products/overview/heartbeat/).

Bolstered by the Senate scandal and Prime Minister Harper's (mis)handling of it, the following posted a rise in activity:News mentions down 62% (from 60 to 97)Twitter mentions up 18% (from 7,214 to 8,503)YouTube mentions up 13% (from 22 to 25)Forum mentions, including Reddit, up 8% (from 55 to 51)Blog mentions up 1% (from 94 to 95)Facebook mentions up marginally (from 226 to 227)

Posing a fall in activity:n/a

The 8,503 tweets issued this past week came from 2,868 unique Twitter accounts; an average of 2.9 tweets per account. The number of participants increased 13% from last week's analysis.
In all, online mentions were up 10% from the previous week.

The three Twitter accounts which issued the most tweets tagged #IdleNoMore, #NativeWinter or including the text "Idle No More" were @teamrevoltnow (1,167, up from 1,086 last week), @idlenomoreyeg (182, up from 174) and @joanie399 (170, up from 157). They combine for 1,519 tweets or 18% of relevant tweets for the week (down 2% over the previous week). To contextualize their contributions, @teamrevoltnow issued the equivalent of 167 tweets on average for each day last week, @idlenomoreyeg 26 and @joanie399 24.
Among the more common themes this past week include oil and gas (keystone), indigenous rights (racism), days of action in Vancouver and Edmonton (YEG) and Bill C-45 which served as the tipping point for the creation of the Idle No More movement. Mentions also included the campaign to grant clemency to Leonard Peltier.
The following buzzgraph illustrates the connection between key terms in the most active conversations. The stronger the connection between the words, the thicker and bolder the connection line. There are three levels of connection illustrated by a thick solid line (strong), a thin solid line (medium) and a thin broken line (light). The Buzzgraph that follows shows only two degrees of connection during the election campaign — strong and light.

The top tweet for this report was issued by @canadianglen (https://twitter.com/canadianglen/). His May 20 tweet (https://twitter.com/canadianglen/statuses/336579997932347392)which links to the Sisters in Spirit page of Voices-Voix.ca (http://voices-voix.ca/en/facts/profile/sisters-spirit) has been retweeted 66 times and 11 people indicated it as a favourite.

Elsipogtog First Nation

JUNE 6, 2013

MEDIA STATEMENT – CHIEF AARON SOCK OF ELSIPOGTOG FIRST NATION

Many of you know that over the past few days there have been protests related to seismic exploration taking place within Mi'gmag Traditional Territory and tensions have escalated. Yesterday, a large group of people assembled on Highway 126 to make their opposition to the exploration for natural gas in Kent County widely known. Many of those protesting were members of the Elsipogtog First Nation.

Mi'gmag Peoples' connection to the land and Mother Earth is sacred. It is the source of our great resolve that has sustained ourselves as a Peoples since time immemorial. We have asserted and court-established rights to the land, and with these rights comes a responsibility to ensure our territory is protected for future generations.

As Chief of Elsipogtog First Nation, I am requesting that any demonstrations that take place be done peacefully and lawfully. We must never be afraid to raise our voice to protect our rights and interests, yet we must have the resolve to do so peacefully. This is the spirit and intent of the Treaties that our Ancestors had the wisdom to contemplate and these values must be respected.

In peace and friendship,

Oelalin,

Chief Aaron Sock

SWN's response:

We applaud Chief Arren Sock's leadership and support his call for peaceful and law abiding expression of views. We hope that people can safely and openly express themselves while allowing our work to continue in accordance with the licenses and permits granted to us by government.

SWN Resources Canada is confident that if a commercially viable resource exists, then relationships with First Nations will be integral to achieving a goal of safe and responsible development in the province that First Nations can proudly participate in without compromising their rights, values and traditions.

ISSUE: Status update regarding BC 'Idle No More' public awareness campaign in British Columbia. (File EDIV 2013-083)

BACKGROUND:

- The 'Idle No More' (INM) movement continues to hold public awareness demonstrations regarding First Nations relations with the Government of Canada.

- Demonstrations have been held at shopping malls, First Nations and government buildings, roads and highways, and international border crossings. To date, all demonstrations have been brief and peaceful.

- Three 'Idle No More' National Days of Action occurred on January 11th, 16th and 28th. Thirty-five, three and fourteen demonstrations occurred on those dates respectively.

CURRENT STATUS:

- Upcoming 'Idle No More' demonstrations within the next reporting period (refer to attached timeline):

    - June 5-7 – Vancouver: Vancouver Law Courts. Updated numbers: 450 persons.

- CN Rail continues to hold a court injunction with an enforcement order which is enforceable province wide.

- This information has been shared with local detachments and public safety agencies including, Vancouver Police Department, Victoria Police Department, Stl'atl'imx Tribal Police, E Division BIP/Ports, CBSA, CN Police, CP Police, Marine Security Operations Centre (MSOC) and Ministry of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation (MARR).

- Further information will be shared with impacted jurisdictions through District Command.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

- The Idle No More movement has abated significantly; however, efforts continue to organize demonstrations and internationalize their cause.

- FNP (First Nations Policing) Members are encouraged to proactively engage their communities and advise of upcoming public order events to District Command and APS.

PUBLIC SAFETY PROTOCOLS:

- None to report at this time.

Some First Nations are calling for a 'Sovereignty Summer' of protests.
OTTAWA -- The extent of First Nations unrest this summer depends in large part on how much concrete action Stephen Harper authorizes on entrenching ancient treaty rights, says National Chief Shawn Atleo.
In a wide-ranging interview to discuss the relationship with Ottawa, the head of the Assembly of First Nations gave mixed reviews to the process launched with great fanfare in January when Harper and Atleo last met.

Enlarge Image (http://media.winnipegfreepress.com/images/5025710.jpg)
Adrian Wyld / The Canadian Press Archives Shaw Atleo wants the government to implement treaty rights. (CP)
"Business as usual just causes ongoing conflict," Atleo told The Canadian Press. "Expressions of good faith -- and implementation of those commitments (from January) -- are what is required."
Atleo says talks between senior government officials and First Nations from some parts of the country over how to fully implement historic treaty rights seem to be inching ahead. Atleo and many First Nations leaders argue that full recognition of the treaties will lead to improvements in conditions across the board -- in education, housing and the sharing of the bounty from Canada's natural resources.
"We've seen signals on the part of the government that it is prepared to do that," Atleo said.
But at the same time, the federal government continues to fight First Nations in court over child-welfare funding, continues to impose legislation without consulting those it will affect and resists widespread calls for a national inquiry into hundreds of missing or murdered aboriginal women, the national chief added.
Plus, the government has been withholding much of the documentation needed to understand the impact of residential schools.
At the same time, there is lingering discontent within many First Nations about major changes made to environmental oversight through federal legislation over the past year.
"There's always been this pattern that, 'well, let's just do one or two things now, and the rest, you know, we can deal with later,' " Atleo said.
"No. Transformative change is required because we are still in a big moment of reckoning."
As aboriginal youth become more educated and more connected through social media, they are increasingly skeptical of the establishment, whether it be the federal government or the complex structure of chiefs under the Indian Act, Atleo added.
"They will not be swayed by press releases or statements from governments that say what they're doing is working and that it is enough, because it isn't," Atleo said. "They are making it very clear by expressing themselves. And they will be heard."
Atleo and Harper, along with key members of their teams, held a highly contentious winter meeting on Jan. 11, just as the Idle No More protest movement gathered strength in communities across the country.
As the leaders met, large crowds of First Nations activists and environmentalists rallied loudly in the streets, demanding more accountability from both sides.
At the same time, Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence denounced the meeting since it did not include the governor general or a wide range of chiefs, and persisted with a liquids-only hunger protest. Some chiefs openly discussed blockades and economic disruption, forecasting more upheaval this summer.
A shaken Atleo left the meeting with a commitment from Harper to empower his top officials to negotiate fundamental aboriginal rights, focusing especially on education and resource revenue sharing.
And indeed, insiders on all sides say there is considerable movement.
The new aboriginal affairs minister, Bernard Valcourt, has travelled widely and made some announcements about new regional arrangements for education, speeding up the process to settle specific claims and working with First Nations to review the comprehensive claims process.
"While this progress is important and will have a positive impact on First Nations, we need to build on it and sustain the momentum that is being created. We will continue to work with First Nations to make concrete progress on our shared priorities," said Jason MacDonald, a spokesman for Valcourt.

Activists are already signalling they are not prepared to wait.
"To me, it's like they (the government and the Assembly of First Nations) are buying time to get through the summer," said Russ Diabo, an outspoken long-time First Nations activist from the network Defenders of the Land.
His group has joined forces with Idle No More organizers and other experienced groups to stage a "Sovereignty Summer" to protest resource projects and pipelines across the country, backed up by demonstrations in cities.

Sto:lo predict violence on the Fraser if Ottawa approves treaty with rival

Grand Chief Hall and Grand Cheif Kelly's address to the Standing Committee on Monday morning.

The federal government risks a bloody summer of discontent on the Fraser River if it ratifies a treaty with the tiny Yale First Nation, leaders of the larger Sto:lo Nation told a parliamentary committee Tuesday.

Sto:lo Tribal Council Grand Chief Doug Kelly, representing eight bands, predicted "altercations and violence."

Provided for situational awareness.

Mikmaq community outraged by treatment and arrest of women carrying out sacred duties to protect water against seismic testing in Kent County, NB.

Ms. Suzanne Patles and Ms. Lorraine Claire will meet with the press following their arrest and detention while asserting their right to pray at a Seismic testing site in Kent County, NB
Location: Elsipogtog First Nation, Fisheries Building board room
Time: 11:00 am
Date: June 11th,2013

Ms. Suzanne Patles and Ms. Lorraine Clair, two Mikmaq women recently arrested for conducting ceremonial prayers near SWNs seismic testing site in Kent County, NB, are calling on all nations and devotions to defend their treaty rights to protect their territorial waters from destruction by Seismic testing and fracking activities. Both ladies are also seeking International oversight of their abusive treatment at the hands of the RCMP in exercising Aboriginal rights and human rights.

Ms. Clair suffered injury to what she claims is excessive force, is now wearing a cast and is currently considering both legal and human rights remedies from the RCMP.

Ms. Patles has also suffered emotional trauma due to the RCMPs disrespect to her cultural practices. She is also suffering from mental and emotional trauma from what she has has described as inhumane treatment while incarcerated in her cell and during interrogation. Ms. Patles also claims that she was not treated the same as other prisoners in the cells. Deprivation of blankets, food and water and kept in custody for periods much longer than non native protestors.

The interference of their traditional ceremonial practices and the sacred responsibilities as protectors of the waters is both an infringement of Canadas human rights protections under both domestic and international human rights, as well as, s.35 protection of Aboriginal and treaty rights.

Both ladies, with strong support from Mikmaq communities and allies, will continue their efforts to raise the public awareness of the dangers of Seismic testing and fracking on sacred watersheds within the Mikmaq territory.

ISSUE: Status update regarding BC 'Idle No More' public awareness campaign in British Columbia. (File EDIV 2013-083)

BACKGROUND:

- The 'Idle No More' (INM) movement continues to hold public awareness demonstrations regarding First Nations relations with the Government of Canada.

- Demonstrations have been held at shopping malls, First Nations and government buildings, roads and highways, and international border crossings. To date, all demonstrations have been brief and peaceful.

- Three 'Idle No More' National Days of Action occurred on January 11th, 16th and 28th. Thirty-five, three and fourteen demonstrations occurred on those dates respectively.

CURRENT STATUS:

- On June 12th Idle No More BC sent a 'call to action' including "Escalating Strategic On-Going Non-Violent Direct Actions to stop all corporate activities which attack Indigenous sovereignty and their territories." The 'call to action' is scheduled to begin on July 1st.

- Upcoming 'Idle No More' demonstrations within the next reporting period (refer to attached timeline):

    - June 20-21 – Vancouver : Oppenheimer Park – 200 expected participants

        - Non- Idle No More event / National Aboriginal Day

- CN Rail continues to hold a court injunction with an enforcement order which is enforceable province wide.

- This information has been shared with local detachments and public safety agencies including, Vancouver Police Department, Victoria Police Department, Stl'atl'imx Tribal Police, E Division BIP/Ports, CBSA, CN Police, CP Police, Marine Security Operations Centre (MSOC) and Ministry of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation (MARR).

- Further information will be shared with impacted jurisdictions through District Command.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

- The Idle No More movement has abated significantly; however, efforts continue to organize demonstrations and internationalize their cause.

- FNP (First Nations Policing) Members are encouraged to proactively engage their communities

As some of you might know, June is National Aboriginal History Month in Canada. Demonstrations are expected to occur in various provinces in the coming weeks leading up to and including June 21, 2013, known as National Aboriginal Day, to recognize and celebrate the cultures and contributions of the First Nations, Inuit and Métis . These events are being planned by the national movement "Idle No More", and other groups in support of the movement.

We are encouraging Divisions to monitor and report planned events to assist with development and dissemination of the RCMP Weekly Situation Report - Protests: Aboriginal-based Issues with respect to identifying potential public and officer safety issues.

Date: 2013-06-07

Dissemination List: D/Comm. Mike Cabana, A/Comm. Janice Armstrong, C/Supt. Byron Boucher, C/Supt. Warren Coons, C/Supt. Tonia Enger, Supt. Tyler Bates, Insp. Michael Lesage,
Mr. Daniel Lavoie, Mr. François Mathieu, Mr. Liam Price

PURPOSE:

Since December 2012, there have been numerous reports of planned protests and potential blockades in support of Aboriginal-based issues, the majority of which have been organized under the "Idle No More" (INM) banner. (A)

This report provides a summary of reported and planned events in Canada to take place between June 7 and June 14, 2013. These lists may not be complete as the environment is constantly changing

In addition, the RCMP has not confirmed that these events have actually taken place. (U)

OVERVIEW OF EVENTS:

On June 5, 2013, three individuals were arrested and criminally charged with mischief and obstruction offences at a planned protest wherein approximately 100 people gathered on Highway 126 near Miramichi, New Brunswick. Traffic was blocked at a location where SWN Resources Canada was conducting seismic testing. Following the arrests, the Elsipogtog FN Chief Aaron Sock called for peaceful and lawful protests against the shale gas industry. The day prior, protesters seized a vehicle belonging to an SWN Resources Canada contractor; that event concluded without incident. (U)

According to reports, the First Nations Child and Family Caring Society of Canada (FNCFCS) is planning a series of peaceful walks across Ontario for June 11, 2013. (A)

Actions are expected to occur in various provinces this month during the National Aboriginal History Month.

Events coinciding with the "National Aboriginal Solidarity Day" are also being planned for June 21, in British Columbia, Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba. The national founders of INM are currently organizing a "Grassroots Forum" to be held at the Wanuskewin Heritage Park in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, on June 29 and 30. There is also a call out from national founders of INM to engage in a gathering and occupation at least once per week in various cities across Canada, leading into the "Sovereignty Summer". (U)

Reports indicate there are twelve (12) events planned to occur between June 7 and June 14, consisting of a peaceful rallies and an information session in Alberta and Ontario. (A)

Sir,

I received a call (located between Hamilton and Cambridge) who advised that there was an aboriginal protest

Aboriginals have placed a lock on the entry fence site and not allowing any employees on the property.
(OPP) were contacted and are now currently on site. Protest is currently peaceful is indicating that this will be a long protest.

Since Enbridge Gas is federally regulated, the RCMP were contacted. to keep me appraised if the situation escalates in any way.

2013-06-18

- The Assembly of First Nations Chiefs in New Brunswick sent out a press release stating that they want to help end the poverty that First Nations' people face and they are willing to work with government and industries that will develop resources responsibly. They also stated that if the Mi'gmmag and Wolastoqiyik Peoples do not benefit from solutions put forth by government and industry, then they would use all legal means to prevent resource development.

2013-06-19

- There were approximately 150 people at the sacred fire site throughout the day. No incidents were reported.

- At 1445hrs, the vibreosis trucks left the gravel pit. They arrived 8 kilometres north of the sacred fire at approximately 1630hrs.

- Amy SOCK did an interview with Aboriginal Peoples Television Network where she discussed the great response received for people to attend the sacred fire. SOCK also briefly discussed the protest and arrests that occurred on June 14th, 2013 and the discussions that ensued afterwards between SWN and John LEVI. Protesters and the Elsipogtog First Nation felt they were making progress. SOCK also mentioned that the vibreosis trucks were back on the road and about 2 miles from the sacred fire, and they were going to meet to devise a strategy. SOCK quickly stated that they have a strategy in place for the next step but did not want to give any details without John LEVI being present.
  Analyst Comment: The exact location where the vibreosis trucks were staged as 10 kilometres north of the fire.

- There was a plea for people to go to the sacred fire on June 20th, 2013, with emphasis on men to attend.

- The Assembly of First Nations National Chief, Shawn A-in-chut ATLEO, released a statement that they fully support First Nation leaders in New Brunswick in their bid to have the provincial government and industry to work respectfully with First Nation communities on responsible and sustainable natural resources.

- 0840hrs: the vibreosis trucks were on the road and started the seismic testing.

- 0929hrs: approximately 17 people at the sacred fire.

- 1005hrs: SWN employees were confronted by protesters as they were picking up the geophones near the sacred fire. The employees were told that they could not go within 200 metres from either side of the sacred fire. Protesters informed the RCMP that negotiations will have to take place between the Crisis Negotiation Team as to when and if the equipment can be removed.

- 1329hrs: there are between 25 to 30 people at the sacred fire location.
- 1605hrs: approximately 40 to 50 people are at the sacred fire.
- 1742hrs: the vibreosis trucks have stopped doing seismic testing for the day, finishing near the Saint Joseph road.
- Premier David ALWARD released a statement today that the provincial government is committed to respectful communication and full engagement with First Nation communities. The government stance is to have ongoing dialogue and consultation with the communities to clarify any concerns that they may have. If concrete results are derived from seismic exploration, the government wants to ensure that its economic benefits improve the quality of life for First Nation communities and for all New Brunswickers.

- National Aboriginal Day to be held in Moncton.
  The event will commence at Bore Park and the Opening Ceremony and other events will be held at the Moncton City Hall.
  Analyst Comment: It is not anticipated that any issues will arise but this may be an opportunity to voice their concerns over shale gas development.
- Information received that the protesters are preparing to move location, the encampment will be locate somewhere in Kent Junction (members are trying to determine the location of the new site). Should the vibreosis trucks complete the seismic testing scheduled for today (June 20th, 2013), it is anticipated that the trucks will reach or be near the site of the new encampment.
  Analyst Comment: Given the fact that National Aboriginal Day is tomorrow on June 21st, 2013 and is being hosted by the Elsipogtog First Nation, and the protest site is being changed, it is highly probable that road blockades will occur.

PURPOSE:

Since December 2012, there have been numerous reports of planned protests and potential blockades in support of Aboriginal-based issues, the majority of which have been organized under the "Idle No More" (INM) banner. (A)

This report provides a summary of reported and planned events in Canada to take place between June 21 and June 28, 2013. These lists may not be complete as the environment is constantly changing

OVERVIEW OF EVENTS:

Numerous peaceful celebration events coinciding with the "National Aboriginal Day" are being reported across Canada for tomorrow, June 21, 2013. Approximately 2,000 participants are expected to converge at 1200hrs for the "Million First Peoples March" on Parliament Hill, in Ottawa. According to reports, since the declaration of the National Aboriginal Day in 1996, no incidents of violence have been reported during these celebrations. However, traffic interruptions in the National Capital Region should be expected. (A)

The national founders of INM are currently organizing a "Grassroots Forum" to be held at the Wanuskewin Heritage Park in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, on June 29 and 30. There was also a call out on May 25, 2013, from national founders of INM to gather at and occupy symbolic locations in various cities across Canada, at least once per week, leading into the "Sovereignty Summer". No events of that nature have been reported thus far. (A)

Reports indicate there are 46 events[1] (#_ftn1) planned to occur in Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Ontario, Quebec and Saskatchewan on June 21. The vast majority of these events are expected to be peaceful gatherings consisting of cultural ceremonies. In addition, reports indicate that several protests are being planned for major cities across Canada, such as Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

There are also seven (7) events planned between June 22 and June 28 in Alberta, Newfoundland & Labrador and Ontario consisting of cultural ceremonies, rallies and a conference.

EMERGENT ISSUES:

The following issues have resulted in increased tensions and could lead to prolonged protests, potentially significant in nature.

Blockade of Enbridge Line 9 pumping station near Hamilton, Ontario
A group of approximately 80 protestors, including representatives from Six Nations of the Grand River, have shut down construction and locked the gates at the Enbridge Line 9 pumping station in Westover, just outside of Hamilton, Ontario. Workers are, however, being permitted to access the facility to conduct safety checks. Protestors have set up tents and plan to occupy the area for several days. This action is in protest to Enbridge's plans to reverse the flow in the pipeline (Line 9B), which runs from Montreal to Westover. The pipeline crosses the territories of several First Nations along its route. Protestors are concerned about the environmental impact of this project, claiming the reversal will increase the risk of spills at terminals and pumping stations. (U)

Anti-shale gas protests near Moncton, New Brunswick
In early June, SWN Resources Canada began seismic testing to determine the viability of shale gas deposits outside of Moncton, New Brunswick. Area residents, including members of the Elsipogtog First Nation, concerned about the negative effects of the hydraulic-fracturing (fracking) process on local water supplies, began protesting shortly afterward. There have been daily anti-shale gas protests on Hwy 126, near the exploration site since early June. Since June 5, there have been 21 arrests for obstruction and mischief.

According to reports, no protest activity took place today, June 20, 2013; however, 50 protestors remain on site. (A)

Bonjour à tous,

- Le 25 juin 2013, à 12:00 p.m., il y aura un « Press Briefing At Blockaded Westover Reversal Station ». Les actions de protestations auront lieux dans des villes à travers le Canada afin de supporter les activistes qui ont pris d'assaut une station de pompage du Nord d'Hamilton en Ontario. Cette action intitulé « Swamp Line 9 » vise à prévenir la construction de la Ligne 9 et d'empêcher le transport de sables bitumineux à travers l'Ontario et le Québec et est dans le cadre de la campagne d'Idle No More l'Été Souverein (Sovereignty Summer).

- Le 27 juin 2013, à 20:00 p.m., heure centrale, aura lieu la partie V d'Idle No More « Grassroots in Solidariy Online Webinar ».

- Du 28 au 30 juin 2013, le Pow Wow 2013 de Wendake aura lieu. La programmation de cet événement a été dévoilée le 21 juin 2013, à 11:00 a.m. au Café Roreke situé au 40, Rue Morissette à Loretteville, Québec.

- Du 30 juillet au 5 août 2013, le 23e festival de la Présence autochtone prendra place à Montréal. Dans le cadre de ce festival, il y aura des spectacles, des expositions, des films et de la cuisine de rue.

Soumis pour votre information.

Bonjour à tous,

- Hier, mercredi le 26 juin 2013, de 10:30 à 16:00 hres, il y a eu une démonstration en solidarité à l'occupation au Marais Beverly. Le lieu de rencontre pour cette manifestation était le Portail Roddick de l'Université McGill situé à l'intersection de la rue Sherbrooke et de l'avenue McGill Collège. Du matériel informatif devait être distribué aux passants.
(http://montreal.mediacoop.ca/events/18101)

- Entre le 7 juillet et le 26 août 2013, les autochtones âgés entre 15 et 35 ans sont invité à se rendre au Wapikoni's Studios situé au 400 avenue Atlantic, Montréal afin d'apprendre à diriger leur propre film ou un vidéoclip avec des professionnels dans le domaine.

- Le 1er juillet 2013, de 07:00 hres à 19:00 hres, il y aura un marathon radio concernant la « décolonisation ». Une des ondes radio annoncée est 90.3 FM ou www.ckut.ca mais la diffusion se fera à travers le Canada.

Soumis pour votre information.

Good Day

Open source reporting advises there are to be national protests in support of the occupation of Enbridge's North Westover facility to take place on 2013-06-25. http://www.cbc.ca/hamilton/news/story/2013/06/24/hamilton-line-9-protest.html

SITUATIONAL AWARENESS:

On 2013-06-20, a group of approximately 80 protesters including representatives from Six Nations occupied and forced the shut down construction at Enbridge's North Westover Pump Station, located in rural Hamilton, Ont. Protesters put their own locks on the facility, but will permit Enbridge staff to complete regular safety inspections.

Aboriginal representatives advised the pipeline is on "stolen Indigenous land and is the traditional territory of the Chonnonton people as well as of the Mississagi Anishinabec and the Onondawaga Haudenosaunee. This pipeline crosses the territories of dozens of Indigenous nations along its route, including the Six Nations of the Grand River."
Enbridge has obtained a Court Injunction. Enforcement of same is at the discretion of the Hamilton Police Service.
Enbridge Line 9
With the National Energy Board's approval of the Line 9 Reversal Phase I Project on July 27, 2012, Enbridge will proceed to reverse a section of its Line 9 between Sarnia and North Westover. Line 9 is an existing Enbridge pipeline with a current capacity of 240,000 barrels per day (bpd) that extends from Montreal, Quebec to Sarnia, Ontario and currently transports offshore crude oil in a westbound direction. Only the section of Line 9 between Sarnia and Westover will be affected by this project. The scope of the Project includes reversing the flow of the section of Line 9 from Sarnia to North Westover and modifying existing pump stations in order to allow for the eastbound transportation of incremental western Canadian crude oil, which can be sourced from a number of locations in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Initially, we expect to flow a minimum of 50,000 bpd of crude oil through this project, with a maximum capacity of 200,000 bpd. We expect that the main product to be transported will be light crude oil. The pipeline will initially carry light crude oil, but the reversed Line 9 between Sarnia and Westover, Ontario will be capable of transporting a range of crude oil products.
The Project will take place within existing Enbridge properties and easements. There is no new pipeline construction outside Enbridge-owned facilities involved in this project. Project work at Sarnia Terminal, Westover Terminal and North Westover Station includes modifications to existing equipment and the installation of a short length of pipe. The project work may result in higher than normal traffic and noise at these facilities during the project period, but these will cease upon the completion of project work.
Following is a list of proposed protest sites - please note this is a tentative list and more protest sites may be announced throughout today:

PURPOSE:
Since December 2012, there have been numerous reports of planned protests and potential blockades in support of Aboriginal-based issues, the majority of which have been organized under the "Idle No More" (INM) banner. (A)

According to reports, prolonged protests in New Brunswick and Ontario have resulted in increased tensions with law enforcement personnel. (A)

This situation report will provide an update of these emergent issues as well as a summary of reported and planned events in Canada that are ongoing or are taking place today, June 26, 2013. These lists may not be complete as the environment is constantly changing
(U)

OVERVIEW OF EVENTS:
The occupation of the Enbridge Westover pumping station was dismantled by Hamilton Police Service at 0700hrs this morning, June 26. Following the arrest of 18 protestors,

INM national founders initiated a call for action in support of the occupation of Enbridge's North Westover facility in Ontario. These protests were reported to be part of "Sovereignty Summer". "Sovereignty Summer" is being described as a "campaign of coordinated direct actions" organized by INM and Defenders of the Land (DoL) to promote Aboriginal rights and environmental protection. (A)

In addition, a national call for support of the Elsipogtog FN, in New Brunswick, was initiated by INM and other organizations, such as left-wing and environmental activists. o ss

There is currently a national call for actions, between June 28 and July 1, referred to as the "National Stop Harper Campaign" According to organizers, INM, the American Indian Movement (AIM) and the Occupy movement are collaborating to coordinate events;

Reports indicate there are no events planned to occur today, June 26. (A)

EMERGENT ISSUES:
The following issues have resulted in increased tensions and could lead to prolonged protests, potentially significant in nature. (A)

Blockade of Enbridge Line 9 pumping station near Hamilton, Ontario
Since June 20, 2013, a group of protestors, including representatives from Six Nations of the Grand River, have been occupying the Enbridge Line 9 pumping station in Westover, just outside of Hamilton, Ontario. On June 21, 2013, an injunction "against unauthorized access to Enbridge property" was granted by Madam Justice Low of the Ontario Superior Court of Justice. According to reports, this injunction was served to protestors by the Hamilton Police Service, yesterday, June 25. Today, June 26, at approximately 0700hrs, Hamilton Police Service entered the compound and proceeded to arrest 18 protestors. Enbridge officials regained entry of the station at 0800hrs. the majority of demonstrators were fined with Trespassing and later released, while four (4) individuals will be criminally charged with Obstruction to a court order and Mischief. (A)

Anti-shale gas protests near Moncton, New Brunswick
The Elsipogtog FN and INM national founders issued a "call out" to all supporters, following a weekend of protests and arrests, to participate in actions to prevent seismic testing for shale gas deposits by SWN Resources. Protestors have been demonstrating against the shale gas industry in New Brunswick on various local highways as well as at constituency offices of federal politicians, since the beginning of June. Since June 5, 2013, 31 protestors have been arrested for mischief and/or obstruction during anti-shale gas protests. According to reports, a shot-hole driller belonging to SWN Resources Canada was set on fire on June 25, at approximately 0700hrs, in a wooded area near Bass River, New Brunswick. In addition, it was reported that several trees were cut down, intentionally blocking Route 490 near Fords Mills.
SWN Resources Canada advised that surveying and seismic testing will be halted until further notice. (A)

Nelson: Rail Blockades and Canada's Human Rights Violations

Thank you for publishing my article as is. I realize that the length of the article was an issue but required to deal with extensive documentation of the information.

It is 8 p.m. on the evening of Sunday June 23 here in Winnipeg. Tomorrow, at 2 p.m., I will be in court facing the Attorney General of Canada, the Attorney General of Manitoba and the Canadian National Railway who want the court to put a permanent injunction on our people from "trespassing" on CN railway lines.
In January 2013, we blocked a main railway line in Manitoba. In minus 34 degree Celsius for six hours. On January 15, a day before the blockade, CN got a temporary injunction while no one was there from us to oppose the injunction and we were served that injunction about two hours before we left the railway blockade. CN wants not only a permanent injunction, they want costs, plus damages which will be millions of dollars. They want to intimidate our people. Once they get the court injunction, we will move to begin boycotts of British Columbia lumber sold in the United States. We have support amongst people in the United States.
Everything we have done is peaceful and we sent the government advance notice of the blockade. January 16, 2013 was a commitment by the Chiefs to put pressure on Canada with action. AIM Winnipeg blocked a railway line. When railway lines are blocked by covert activity, the situation will become far worse. For now, there is peace in Canada, it will not last.

Publishing the article gives many people around the world the ability to anticipate what will happen in Canada. Americans have ignored the issues in Canada for a long time. In 1989, we organized THE RUN FOR HUMAN RIGHTS, and we ran 1,000 miles from Winnipeg to Chicago to try to wake up Americans to the human rights issues in Canada. More recently, as Chiefs, we were in Washington 12 days before the first Inauguration of President Obama. We were there to ask the incoming Obama administration to do something about the environmental devastation that the sale of oil to the United States was doing to northern Alberta in the Tarsands.

Nothing has happened from the American Government. They have ignored all our efforts to get them to do something about human rights violations in Canada. The American government will condemn Iran for voicing concerns about human rights violations in Canada but the American government itself will continue to ignore those issues.

On Thursday June 27, AIM Winnipeg will hold a Press Conference and a meeting to organize our own investigation process on five murdered and missing indigenous women whom the City of Winnipeg Police and RCMP have not solved. Shaun Lamb who is charged with three murders of indigenous women in Winnipeg has stated that he has information on five other women who were killed. One of our AIM leaders has been speaking to Lamb. Winnipeg Police Officer Sutherland laughed at Lamb in an interview, refusing to listen to what Lamb is saying. Totally unprofessional, all leads and information must be investigated not ignored. Robert Picton would have been caught years earlier if Vancouver police had been more diligent. Picton would not have killed 49 women if police had done what they were supposed to. They ignored leads just like they are doing here in Winnipeg.

Thank you for publishing the article, it is my hope that other countries will question Canada and its treatment of indigenous people. I will follow up with information on the Dakota people who are facing court in September for selling cigarettes. Another group, the Cree in northern Manitoba is facing court action by HudBay who is mining in their territory without permission from the indigenous people. The Cree face a $400 million lawsuit by HudBay for the blockade done by the Cree. Meanwhile, the mining of sixty different metals and minerals continues every day in Canada, all the while, Canada refuses to pay anything to the indigenous people for those natural resources.

Pat and Wendy - provided for situational awareness.

First Nations leaders, including between 50 to 60 chiefs from British Columbia to the Maritimes, have discussed plans to launch country-wide economic disruptions by the middle of January if the Prime Minister doesn't agree to meet with Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence.

During the discussions, some First Nations leaders suggested individual communities and treaty regions issue a "breach of treaty" declarations beginning 2013-01-01and setting 2013-01-16 as the day to launch a campaign of indefinite economic disruptions, including railway and highway blockades. Aside from blockades, chiefs discussed stepping up rallies at MP's offices, continuing letter campaigns and launching Twitter bombs. Idle No More organisers issued a statement on 2012-12-31, that distanced the movement from the chiefs.

There are also plans to hold ceremonies and vigils in Ottawa between 2013-01-10 and 2013-01-13 in support of Spence.

Situation Report

Incident Number: ST122-12E

Incident: First Nations Protests

Date: Information valid as of 01 Jan 2013, 16:00 EST

Description of current incident: A number of First Nations (FN) Protests are occurring as a result of a grassroots campaign called "Idle No More" which is protesting Bill C-45, the government's omnibus budget legislation.

Source(s) of reporting: Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada, PS Regional Offices, media/open source reporting.

Current actions: GOC is monitoring the situation and has established contact with key federal in departments/agencies and PS Regional Offices in order to maintain cohesive information sharing.

Event management of the protests falls under the purview of local jurisdictions and local law enforcement agencies, as appropriate.

In addition to the ongoing rail blockade in Sarnia and the Sudbury New Year's Day March/Rally reported in ST122-12D, there is a new relationship round dance & candle vigil for Chief Spence scheduled to take place at 16:00 EST on 01 Jan in Toronto, ON (corner of Dundas Avenue and Yonge Street).

At this time, the GOC is aware of the following "Idle No More" related protest planned for 02 Jan 2013:

- ON: Ongoing rail blockade in Sarnia.
- ON: All day in Kenora. Protesters plan to boycott/picket local businesses.

Assessment/Analysis: The protests have been peaceful in nature. However, some protests have disrupted rail operations and resulted in delays on various highways.

Departments and Agencies with further information on this incident are asked to report to the GOC.

Additional situation reports: Further situation reports will be issued as significant developments occur.

Additional Products: Geomatics and other products will be attached to a follow-on message.

Rapport de situation

Numéro d'incident : ST122-12E

Incident : Manifestations des Premières nations

Date : Renseignements mis à jour le 1 janvier, 2013, à 16 h (HNE)

Description de l'incident : Diverses manifestations des Premières nations se déroulent dans le cadre d'une campagne populaire intitulée « Idle No More », qui critique le projet de loi omnibus C-45 du gouvernement portant sur le budget. Certaines manifestations reliées à la campagne populaire « Idle No More » sont aussi prévues pour certaines régions des États-Unis dans les prochains jours.

Source(s) des renseignements : Affaires autochtones et Développement du Nord Canada, les bureaux régionaux de Sécurité publique Canada, et les médias/sources générales.

Mesures en cours : Le COG surveille la situation et est en communication avec certains ministères et agences fédérales ainsi que les bureaux régionaux de Sécurité publique afin de maintenir un échange d'information cohérent.

La gestion des manifestations relève des autorités locales et des organismes d'application de la loi, le cas échéant.

En plus du barrage ferroviaire toujours en place à Sarnia et du rassemblement suivi d'une marche planifiés le jour du Nouvel An à Sudbury, lesquelles activités étaient signalées dans le rapport ST122-12D, une nouvelle ronde pour l'amélioration des relations et veillée à la chandelle pour le chef Spence doivent avoir lieu à 16 h (HNE) le 1er janvier à Toronto, en Ontario, à l'intersection de l'avenue Dundas et de la rue Yonge.

À l'heure actuelle, selon les informations dont disposent le COG, les activités suivantes sont planifiées le 2 janvier 2013 dans le cadre du mouvement « Idle No More » :

- Ontario : maintien du barrage ferroviaire à Sarnia.
- Ontario : des manifestants prévoient boycotter des entreprises locales et faire du piquetage devant celles–ci toute la journée.

Analyse/évaluation : Jusqu'à maintenant, les manifestations ont été pacifiques. Cependant, quelques manifestations ont causé l'interruption de services ferroviaires et des retards sur diverses routes.

Les ministères et les organismes qui ont plus de renseignements au sujet de cet incident sont priés de communiquer avec le COG.

Autres rapports de situation : D'autres rapports de situation seront émis au fur et à mesure que des développements importants se produisent.

Autres produits : Des produits de géomatique ainsi que d'autres produits seront joints à des messages subséquents.

Good morning Carrie,

As mentioned in my voicemail, I am an Intelligence Advisor at CBSA and am the point-person in our Intelligence Operations and Analysis Division for the planned border blockade that is scheduled to happen on Saturday.

We have been in contact (through Josée Therrien) with Tim O'Neil who provided us with a brief on the Force's current stance. Should that change and a threat assessment be produced, we would very much appreciate receiving a copy of that.

In the meantime, we have produced a Threat Assessment dealing specifically with the threatened border blockade. I have attached a copy of that document for your information and limited dissemination within the RCMP.

If you have any questions, or would like to discuss, my phone number is 613-952-4042.

Threat Assessment: Planned Border Blockade - January 5, 2013

Key Findings

- The Idle No More protest movement involving domestic First Nations activists and their supporters has called for a national blockade of the border on January 5, 2013.[1] Activity on social networking sites indicates that groups are planning a variety of protest activities at various border crossings on January 5. (U)

- Although a nationwide blockage of Canadian Ports of Entry is unlikely, there is a high probability of isolated protest activity at some Ports of Entry in Pacific, Southern Ontario, Northern Ontario and Atlantic Regions. These activities could include protests, rallies, demonstrations of traditional First Nations activities, traffic disruptions, and temporary blockades of border crossings or arteries leading to and from ports of entry. (A)

- The call for a border blockade is part of a series of ongoing protests, rallies and blockades being conducted under the Idle No More banner. The movement is organized through social media, is fractured, and lacks centralized leadership, making it difficult to accurately assess the movement's capacity and intent to carry out specific actions. The movement is seen as having gained momentum since first appearing in November 2012 and will likely sustain that momentum through January. (A)

- There is currently no credible intelligence to indicate that activities conducted under the Idle No More banner will be violent or extremist in nature; however, the fluid nature of the movement presents a number of risk factors that could change the dynamic of these protests and increase the risk of violence. (A)

[1] On Friday, December 28, 2012, messages began circulating on social media sites such as Twitter and Facebook purporting to be from the original organizers of the Border Blockade. The message stated that the border blockades were not supported by the Turtle Island Movement nor by Attawapiskat First Nation Chief Theresa Spence, and that out of respect for her, the call for a border blockade was canceled and the Facebook page creating the event was deleted. Over the weekend, a number of new Facebook pages have emerged continuing the call for a border blockade on January 5, 2013. As of Sunday, December 30, 2012, a number of postings on Twitter and Facebook confirm that plans are continuing for protests, rallies and blockades at a number of border crossings.

CBSA ASFC

Erratum:
The Threat Assessment dated 2012-12-31 erroneously identified Sault Ste. Marie as the site of a protest by 250 – 300 demonstrators. The protests occurred at the Fort Frances Port of Entry, adjacent to the Fort Frances / International Falls border crossing.

BACKGROUND:

The Idle No More movement began in November 2012 as a First Nation protest of the government's omnibus bill C-45, which it claims infringes on a number of historical treaty rights. The movement has broadened its focus and is now calling for peaceful acts of protests to encourage dialogue on indigenous rights. Following the example of other mass movements such as "Occupy", Idle No More uses social media such as Twitter to convey its message and to encourage its supporters to take action. The movement is highly decentralized, lacking a structured leadership and planning organization. Although there is no official spokesperson for the Idle No More movement, its supporters have coalesced around Attawapiskat First Nation Chief Theresa Spence. (U)

Idle No More's lack of structure makes it difficult to accurately assess the direction the movement will take, its intentions, and its capacity to carry out specific protest activities in support of its cause, such as the border blockade. The decentralized nature of the movement also makes it vulnerable to usurpation by groups or individuals insistent on escalating the movement to a more confrontational or violent posture. (A)

On December 21, 2012, a message was circulated by various social media and posted on a number of websites purporting to have been issued by the Turtle Island Movement, calling for the peaceful blockade of all border crossings in Canada in solidarity with the Idle No More movement, and in protest of the Government of Canada's passage of legislation perceived as negatively impacting First Nations, and Canadian citizens. The message read: (U)

> We are calling for ALL border crossings to be shut down on January 5, 2013, to show the government that we are willing to escalate this to a point where we shut down the country. The reason Turtle Island Movement has called for a peaceful blockade of the borders in Canada is in solidarity of the idle no more movements happening all across Canada and America.
> Currently the Harper government is pushing bills through the Senate that affect not only the First Nations but also Canadian citizens. The general idea is to accomplish worldwide attention to the injustices happening to the First Nations and citizens of Canada - while also effecting the Canadian governments economy. We humbly ask you to share the event and spread the word of our peaceful gathering.

A Facebook page was also created to organize the protests, and as of Friday, December 28, 2012, had over 4,000 people indicating they would participate in the border blockade. (U)

[redacted]

CBSA ASFC

On Friday, December 28, 2012, a second message was circulated to call off the border blockade, noting that neither the Turtle Island Movement nor its leadership supported the blockade. The Facebook page was also deleted. (U)

Since then and despite the apparent cancellation of the border blockade, a number of social media sites have been created to take over planning of protests, rallies, and blockades at border crossings on January 5, 2013. Monitoring of these sites over the weekend has identified specific plans for unspecified protest activities at Peace Arch Park (British Columbia), the Coho Ferry Terminal (BC), the Woodstock / Houlton border crossing (New Brunswick), Akwesasne/Cornwall (Ontario), Peace Bridge (Ontario), and Niagara Falls (Ontario). (A)

The Idle No More movement has demonstrated significant momentum, with over 200 peaceful protest activities carried out in its name, throughout Canada, and in the United States, Europe, Central America, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa. The most significant ongoing protests are a hunger strike by Attawapiskat First Nation Chief Theresa Spence and an ongoing blockade of a Canadian National railway spur line near Sarnia, Ontario. Other examples of protests under the Idle No More banner include: (U)

- On December 30, protestors blocked the main Via Rail artery between Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa for approximately two hours, disrupting travel for approximately 1,000 passengers
- On December 30, demonstrators conducted a ceremonial protest outside of the CBSA office at the Walpole Island Port of Entry; a second peaceful demonstration occurred without incident as protestors disembarked the ferry in the evening and cleared through the Port of Entry
- On December 30, approximately 12 demonstrators handed out pamphlets to travelers exiting the Sault Ste. Marie Port of Entry
- On December 27, demonstrators temporarily blockaded the highway and train tracks through Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario
- On December 24, demonstrators protested at City Hall in Sarnia, Ontario and temporarily blocked traffic on Highway 402
- On December 23, 400 demonstrators protested at the Vancouver Art Gallery
- On December 22, 200 demonstrators protested at City Hall in Hamilton, Ontario
- On December 21, between 250 and 300 demonstrators briefly delayed traffic entering and exiting the Fort Frances Port of Entry
- On December 21, demonstrators blocked roads in Fredericton, New Brunswick and staged demonstrations throughout New Brunswick
- On December 21, demonstrators protested at various locations in Winnipeg, Manitoba and slowed traffic to and from the Winnipeg-Richardson Airport by blocking a single lane of traffic
- On December 21, 1,000 demonstrators protested on Parliament Hill in Ottawa, Ontario
- On December 20, demonstrators blocked highway 63 in Ft. McMurray, Alberta
- Between December 17 and 20, demonstrators participated in flash mobs in Saskatoon and Edmonton

[redacted]

CBSA ASFC

Idle No More has gained support from other similar mass movements, including Occupy Canada and Council for Canadians. The Occupy Canada Facebook page is currently being used to organize activities and provide updates on Idle No More activities. The Council for Canadians has called on its supporters to participate in Idle No More actions. (U)

ASSESSMENT:

The Idle No More movement has significant momentum that is expected to continue through January 5. It has demonstrated the capacity to mobilize large numbers of people to attend protest activities since mid-December. (A)

Despite the official cancellation of the border blockade by its original planners, the continued planning of border-related activities on social media websites demonstrates an ongoing intent to stage demonstrations at targeted border crossings on January 5. (A)

The combined demonstrated capacity and intent of Idle No More protesters makes it likely that organized protest activities will be staged at the limited number of border crossings identified in the attached matrix. These protests will likely be well organized and attended and are the most likely to impact border operations. There is also a risk, based on the pattern of planning and deployment used to date, that smaller protests may also be staged at other Ports of Entry with little warning. These protests will be less well attended and will have little or no impact on border operations. (A)

Current planning calls for peaceful demonstrations at border crossings, as opposed to blockades. However, supporters of the original plan to blockade the border are still indicating plans to participate and, as the rallies are staged, there is a risk that they could evolve into blockades of the border or traffic arteries leading to and from ports of entry. Based on the current pattern of blockade activity, it is anticipated that any blockades will not last longer than the day. (A)

Ports of Entry affected by the Idle No More protest activities may observe a range of activities, including: (A)

- Ceremonial demonstrations near Ports of Entry
- Rallies in public spaces near Ports of Entry
- Flash mobs
- Marches
- Movements of large numbers of demonstrators through Ports of Entry
- Partial to complete blockades of traffic arteries to and from Ports of Entry
- Partial to complete blockades of traffic at Ports of Entry

[redacted]

Although the Idle No More movement advocates peaceful protests, there are a number of risk factors that could cause border protest activities to escalate: (A)

- The broad-based nature of the movement attracts people with a variety of grievances, goals, and viewpoints on how to achieve the goals. There is a risk that small groups of supporters will seek to escalate activities beyond peaceful protest; evidence of this is seen in some of the statements appearing on social networking websites. There is also a risk that uninvited agitators will use planned protest activities to incite violence. (A)

- Although to date Idle No More activities have been carried out peacefully, there is a risk that this stance could change should there be perceived provocations such as the enforcement of a court injunction at the CN blockade near Sarnia, or a change in the condition of Chief Spence as a result of a prolonged hunger strike. (A)

- Should a border crossing be blockaded, there is a risk that affected travelers will become frustrated and become confrontational with demonstrators, increasing the risk of violence. (A)

IMPLICATION FOR THE CBSA:

Since supporters of Idle No More first called for a border blockade, the idea has gained a widespread and persistent following on social networking sites. This following has persisted despite cancellation of the original call to blockade the border. Given the movement's momentum, it is probable that CBSA operations at border crossings will be affected by activities carried out under the Idle No More banner on January 5, 2013. Although these activities will most probably be peaceful, resulting in at most traffic slow-downs or temporary blockades, there are risk factors that could see such activities escalate. (A)

HALIFAX – It has been a busy week of protests, hunger strikes and controversy in Atlantic Canada, as the Idle No More movement continues to grow.

People on the LIstuguj First Nation in Quebec continued a blockade of the CN rail line. Mi'kmaq people there are hoping to add pressure to calls for the Prime Minister to meeting with Chief Theresa Spence, who's been on a hunger strike for three weeks now.

In Nova Scotia, dozens of people who were fasting in solidarity with Chief Spence will finish Monday after four days without food. On the Millbrook First Nation near Truro, N.S. there will be a feast and round dance to celebrate.

In New Brunswick, around 30 people from across the Atlantic region will be leaving the St.Mary's First Nation on a bus, including the community's Chief Candice Paul. They're making their way to Ottawa where they'll spend three days supporting Chief Spence, rallying on Parliament Hill and some say they'll even protest outside the Prime Minister's residence.

Rose Julian from the Paqtnkek First Nation in Nova Scotia will be on that bus. She says Bill C-45 – the omnibus budget bill that so many First Nations oppose – means economic development can now happen at the expense of the environment.

"I work as a Lands and Economic Director [for the Paqtnkek First Nation] and believe in conservation and sustainability of resources. There can be no economic growth without a healthy planet, this is detrimental." she said, adding, "we need to stop the Harper Government, We want Canada back, as should other Canadians."

Chief Paul paid to charter the bus but people have been donating money to offset the costs.

And in Halifax, a morning radio show angered some listeners with a program about Chief Theresa Spence. The December 28 edition of "Maritime Morning" asked viewers if the Prime Minister should meet with Chief Spence because of her hunger strike.

The show's host, Jordi Morgan, said that First Nations have some valid concerns but he called the Chief's hunger strike a "form of terrorist negotiation."

When Morgan opened the show to callers, a man who was identified only as "John" said that Harper would be wrong to meet with First Nation leaders, as requested by Chief Spence. The caller also said Aboriginal people received too much money from the feds as is and that much of it goes to band leadership anyway.

"John" also had some choice words for Chief Spence, mocking her weight and saying she should focus on fixing her community's finances and not "blackmailing the whole country."

And on the "Idle No More" movement, the caller says "they might as well have something to do besides being idle, which is what a lot of them have been for a long time."

The host thanked the caller for his comments on air but the following day posted this on their Facebook page:

"The nature of our news and talk programming is to create a forum for objective debate on topics that are current and relevant to our audiences. The comments from the individual who called into Maritime Morning on Friday, December 28 regarding the hunger strike underway at the time by Chief Spence do not reflect views of this station or Maritime Morning host Jordi Morgan."

APTN asked Maritime Morning host Jordi Morhgan and the producer Meghan Groff for a comment but received no response.

I held a small rally in Hinton, Alberta, 2 people rallied for Chief Spence, for Mother Earth, for all our relations. The 2 town papers AND the radio station won't even discuss Bill C45 OR Chief Theresa but glorify Harper for the Oil deal with China. I stood on the hwy with my sign honoring Chief Theresa, honoring our treaties, honoring our Mother Earth, we prayed for us all. So regarding "terrorist" methods, I suppose Ghandi was a terrorist too by this measure!?! You know at least Princess Diana had enough class and empathy to visit those experiencing suffering. Harper is a coward and I shall not re - elect him nor shall I vote for Atleo...

There are going to be many John's out there that will think they know the truth as he feels to speak so clearly about, and the fact he's taking energy to speak about the situation clearly proves that the movements of idle no more protests are doing what was intended to create awareness of situations.... now the truth about what these John's think they know are there and easy to find if they really want to know and many do. Government and media have been suppressing the truth for years, making things appear like they are doing much for First Nations but if that were the case, do you not think they would be in better circumstances? although mismanaged funds can be out there, its not only first nations that can be corrupt, for majority, this is not the situation at all. I urge those who really want to know the truth to take the time an learn, you will hear the truth if you are open to learn it. Government are not divulging very much of the truth so beware.....

CROSS LAKE FIRST NATION, Man.–An elder from Cross Lake First Nation in Manitoba is travelling to Ottawa to continue his hunger strike alongside Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence.

Elder Raymond Robinson, 51, has been on a hunger strike since Dec. 12. Robinson is expected to arrive in Ottawa sometime Monday evening.

"I have been in steady contact with Chief Theresa Spence and we exchange ideas on what our next steps should be," said Robinson, in a statement issued Monday.

Robinson said he will continue his hunger strike until Prime Minister Stephen Harper and Governor General David Johnston agree to a treaty meeting, which is also Spence's demand.

"I am committed to continue my hunger strike until Prime Minister Stephen Harper and Governor General David Johnston meet with Chief Spence and myself and the First Nation leadership," said Robinson.

Robinson is backed by Cross Lake First Nation Chief Garrison Settee.

"The Cross Lake First Nation fully supports Elder Robinson's personal decision to make this sacrifice as an Indigenous person of this land we call Canada and as a citizen who holds treaty rights that the government of Canada has a legal and constitutional obligation to honour," said Settee. "It is a sad day in Canada's history when First Nations people are now ready to sacrifice their lives in order to get this government to work with our First Nations leadership on a nation-to-nation basis and to recognize, respect and honour our inherent and treaty rights."

Robinson has been drinking only herbal tea since he began his hunger strike.

Spence has been on a hunger strike for 21 days.

First Nations chiefs contemplate "breach of treaty" declarations, indefinite economic disruptions

© Aboriginal Peoples Television Network

By Jorge Barrera
APTN National News

First Nations leaders have discussed plans to launch country-wide economic disruptions by the middle of January if Prime Minister Stephen Harper doesn't agree to hunger-striking Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence's demand for a treaty meeting, APTN National News has learned.

During three days of meetings and teleconferences, chiefs from across the country discussed a plan setting Jan. 16 as the day to launch a campaign of indefinite economic disruptions, including railway and highway blockades, according to two chiefs who were involved in the talks who requested anonymity.

"The people are restless, they are saying enough is enough," said one chief, who was involved in the discussions. "Economic impacts are imminent if there is no response."

Chiefs were still finalizing details of their plans Monday evening and it remained unclear to what extent their discussed options would translate into the official position.

Assembly of First Nations National Chief Shawn Atleo is expected to write Harper a letter outlining the chiefs' position.

Spence launched her hunger strike on Dec. 11 to force a meeting between Prime Minister Stephen Harper, Governor General David Johnston and First Nations leaders to discuss the state of the treaties. Spence said in a statement issued Monday that the aim of the meeting was to "re-establish" the treaty relationship and finally put First Nations people in their "rightful place back here in our homelands that we all call Canada."

The plan of action comes as the Idle No More movement continues to sweep across the country through round dances, rallies along with highway and rail blockades.

The Tyendinaga Mohawks briefly blockaded a main CN rail line between Toronto and Montreal Sunday, stranding about 2,000 Via Rail passengers. The Mi'kmaq from the Listuguj First Nation, Que., continue to hold a rail blockade on a CN line along with members of the Aamjiwnaang First Nation who have shut a CN line in Sarnia, Ont. In British Columbia, the Seton Lake Indian Band ended a rail blockade on Sunday.

How the chiefs' action plan will mesh with the Idle No More movement remains to be seen. Idle No More organizers issued a statement Monday that distanced the movement from the chiefs.

"The chiefs have called for action and anyone who chooses can join with them, however, this is not part of the Idle No More movement as the vision of this grassroots movement does not coincide with the visions of the leadership," said the statement, posted on the Idle No More Facebook page. "While we appreciate the individual support we have received from chiefs and councillors, we have been given a clear mandate by the grassroots to work outside the systems of government and that is what we will continue to do."

One of the chiefs involved in action plan discussion said the leadership wanted to be sensitive to the grassroots-driven movement and make clear that their plans are being developed in support and as a response to Idle No More.

"Chiefs are standing firm in support of Idle No More and grassroots citizens," said the chief. "We now need to unify."

The meetings and teleconferences included between 50 to 60 chiefs from British Columbia to the Maritimes, according to the sources.

During the discussions, some First Nations leaders suggested individual communities and treaty regions issue "breach of treaty" declarations beginning Jan. 1 and leading up to Jan. 16. Aside from blockades, chiefs discussed stepping up rallies at MP's offices, continuing letter campaigns and launching Twitter bombs.

"All we are doing is reasserting our own sovereign right and inherent right within this treaty," said a second chief, who was also involved in the discussions. "The time has come that they need to see we are a sovereign entity, we have and always will be because of the relationship of treaty that was entered into by the Crown and numerous nations."

There are also plans to hold ceremonies and vigils in Ottawa between Jan. 10 and 13 in support of Spence, who entered into day 21 of her hunger strike on New Year's Eve.

"Those are going to be in response, either to a response from the prime minister, or to prepare for a potential and imminent impact on Canada's economy as a result," said one of the chiefs.

The chief, however, stressed that the leadership is taking their direction from grassroots citizens who are tired of the state of things.

"Our people are growing frustrated, they are tired of the impoverished conditions and mining companies coming to our treaty territories to take what is left," said the chief. "What we are now seeing is our grassroots citizens are saying enough is enough."

Herein lies the problem. Who actually speaks for all of the aboriginal community. We have the leadership saying one thing, individual chiefs saying another, grass roots movement saying something else and they agree on little. So how in the world is a federal government going to find common ground in resolving the issues. It seems we keep going around in circles with little being accomplished. It's ridiculous and one of these days the aboriginal leadership is going to have to wake up and smell the coffee.

There is little sympathy among the general public for aboriginals. That may be unfair but blockading and disrupting the lives of ordinary Canadians is not going to help generate the sympathy that Chief Spence and others are looking for.

The demands need to be realistic, understandable and based on reality.

Blackmail is never acceptable. Time to end the Indian Act and apartheid. Full and equal status for ALL Canadians. No more race based preferential treatment.

IDLE IRONY

So we have 'protestors' sitting around (idle) who decide to sit around together (idle) on a railway track – which stops trains which causes workers to be unemployed (idle).

The workers are then forced to sit around (idle)– which means they can't earn income to be taxed, some of which is 'redistributed' to the protestors who need groceries to sustain themselves while they sit around (idle).

Then leaders, who don't want to usurp the protestor's leadership, plot further interference with the economy to create even more workers sitting around (idle).

And the demonstrators name their protest "idle no more"?

There is a rule of law. Without the rule of law, many will take this as a sign to act in a aggressively more dangerous manner until there is open warfare on the streets between the two sides.
Jail everyone who acts in an unlawful manner and send the message that change is done through the legislatures only.

What nonsense. Does any interest group who doesn't receive a meeting with whichever government official they want get to harm the œconomy, disrupt the lives of regular people and spout off in public? The era of blockades, partitioning and pouting are done. Propose plans that make sense in the current environment, and move from there. Stop stifling dissent, learn and adapt to current situations and pitch to the country that you have reasonable ideas that resonate with all Canadians.

With events worldwide, #IdleNoMore movement grows too big to track

On Idle No More's website, a message has been posted for people looking to join marches, blockades or flash mobs to support the grassroots aboriginal movement: The site's two administrators note they can no longer keep up with all the events being organized in Canada and other parts of the world.

From a round dance in Toronto's busy Yorkdale Mall on Monday to the blockade of a major downtown intersection in Winnipeg to a rally planned outside a New Year's Eve concert in El Paso, Texas, the Canadian movement that began about a month ago to advocate for native treaty rights and protest against federal budget legislation continues to grow on social media and through on-the-ground demonstrations.

And now a second hunger striker – this one subsisting on herbal tea for the past 20 days – is shifting his protest from Manitoba to Ottawa to join Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence in her three-week-old fast a stone's throw from Parliament Hill.

"This is about respect for our treaty rights," Raymond Robinson, 51, an elder with the Cross Lake First Nation, said Monday in a phone interview from the Winnipeg airport. "And, at the same time, about respect for Mother Earth and the land and resources that [Prime Minister Stephen] Harper is taking it upon himself to own and control."

During the interview, Mr. Robinson had to pause at one moment to catch his breath. He has been consuming only herbal tea and medication provided by aboriginal elders, he said, and he's been feeling weak recently, experiencing headaches, dizziness and trouble breathing.

"It's really starting to take a toll on me," he said, but added that he will not end his hunger strike until Mr. Harper agrees to meet with native leaders. He also wants the Prime Minister to back away from the budget legislation, Bill C-45.

Idle No More has found a strong foothold on the Internet. Last week, the movement was mentioned 12,258 times on Facebook, 1,165 times on news websites and 144,215 times on Twitter, a number that would likely have been higher if it weren't for the Twitterwide slowdown on Christmas Day, according to analysis by Mark Blevis, who specializes in digital communication. Meanwhile, more than a dozen protests are planned across the country this week – at Dundas Square in downtown Toronto on New Year's Day, at a community gathering in Port Alberni, B.C., on Thursday, and potentially at all border crossings on Saturday.

On Victoria Island in the Ottawa River, Chief Spence of the Attawapiskat reserve in Northern Ontario prepared to enter Day 22 of her hunger strike as the new year began. On Monday, she reiterated her call for Mr. Harper to participate in "meaningful dialogue" about enhancing the political and economic relationship with aboriginals.

Aboriginal Affairs Minister John Duncan has offered to meet with Chief Spence, but he has not received a response from her yet, a spokesman for the Prime Minister's Office noted in an e-mail. Mr. Harper has not extended the same offer. In a statement issued on Monday to highlight the government's accomplishments in 2012, the Prime Minister touched on Ottawa's "strengthening" relationship with natives, pointing to last January's meeting between native leaders and his ministers, legislation to protect drinking water on reserves, and government support to improve education for aboriginals.

He did not mention the Idle No More movement or Chief Spence's hunger strike, but press secretary Carl Vallée said: "The government remains willing to work with Chief Spence, and all chiefs, to deliver better outcomes for first nations communities."

At her tent on Victoria Island, Chief Spence has met with a steady stream of visitors over the past few days, including several opposition politicians and former Progressive Conservative prime minister Joe Clark. Danny Metatawabin, a spokesman for Chief Spence, said he hopes the arrival of Mr. Robinson from Manitoba will turn up the pressure on the Prime Minister.

"We're hoping that it will make a big difference in order for the Prime Minister to open his heart to the seriousness of the situation," said Mr. Metatawabin, a member of Attawapiskat. "A dialogue needs to be committed on from the Prime Minister."

Chief Spence also continues to call for Governor-General David Johnston to get involved. He has publicly declined to do so, saying earlier in December that the issues being raised were primarily a matter for elected officials. His position has not changed, a spokeswoman for the Governor-General said Monday.

But University of Alberta history professor Ken Munro, whose expertise includes the Canadian Crown, noted that under our government system, it would be improper for the Governor-General to meet with Chief Spence without the Prime Minister's approval. However, he could advise Mr. Harper that such a meeting is warranted.

"His hands are really tied at the moment," Dr. Munro said in an e-mail regarding the Governor-General. "Under our system of 'responsible government,' the Governor-General must accept the advice of his Prime Minister."

On its website Monday, founders of Idle No More expressed frustration that aboriginal leadership is urging action in the name of the movement, noting their supporters have given them a clear mandate to work outside of governments.

"The Chiefs have called for action and anyone who chooses can join with them, however this is not part of the Idle No More movement as the vision of this grassroots movement does not coincide with the visions of the leadership," the founders said in a statement.

The founders expressed appreciation for Chief Spence's efforts, but then stressed "the face of Idle No More is also the grassroots people."

Holidays did little to slow Idle No More in Maritimes

HALIFAX – The holiday season did little to slow the growth of the Idle No More movement in the Maritimes with demonstrations, round dances and group fasts taking place across the region.

On Christmas Eve, the Elsipogtog First Nation wrapped up a four day "information traffic slowdown" of Hwy. 11 in New Brunswick.

The RCMP monitored the slowdown but the event was peaceful and there were no reports of any incidents.

Hundreds of Mi'kmaq and Maliseet with hand drums took to shopping malls in Dartmouth, N.S. and Fredericton, N.B. to participate in what is now being called the "round dance revolution."

And over the next four days, as many as 200 people will fast in solidarity with Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence who has been on a hunger strike for over two weeks.

People from across Nova Scotia are participating in the solidarity fast but the majority are from two Mi'kmaq communities, Eskasoni and Millbrook.

Eskasoni Chief Leroy Denny has joined the fast and is camped with community members in an area of the First Nation called Goat Island.

Mi'kmaq chiefs say they're considering taking legal action against the federal government over Bill C-45, the omnibus budget bill which became law in mid-December.

The chiefs say Bill C-45 threatens the Mi'kmaq right to harvest fish for food, removes environmental protections on their traditional territory and strips the Crown of its duty to consult with First Nations.

Face and Leaders of Idle No More is the Grassroots People

IMPORTANT INFORMATION:

The Founders and many of the organizers of Idle No More from Across Canada have been given word that the Leadership is calling for action in the name of Idle No More.
They have also stated in a press release that they have met with Idle No More representatives that support this call. We would like to state that this is FALSE.

The Chiefs have called for action and anyone who chooses can join with them, however this is not part of the Idle No More movement as the vision of this grassroots movement does not coincide with the visions of the Leadership. While we appreciate the individual support we have received from Chiefs and councelors, we have been given a clear mandate by the grassroots to work outside of the systems of government and that is what we will continue to do. We are not trying to have division amongst this movement! However Chief Nepinak stated, "we are behind the grassroots people". Please let others know!!!!

INM Rally & Round Dance in Vancouver, BC

I would also like to add, the face of the Idle No More people are you and I. The people who walk turtle island and the people who walk on this earth.

Dec 10, 2012 INM at Buckingham Palace, London, UK

Idle No More began on November 10th, 2012 at Stations 20 West, Saskatoon, SK. The early stages of the movement consisted of 5 rallies before our National Day of Action on December 10th.

Chief Spence decided she would fast on that day as part of her action to support the Idle No More movement. It is very important this history is known. We are very greatful for Theresa Spences honourable and courageous support, we also need to remember the face of Idle No More is also the grassroots people.

7th Generation

There have been talks of getting leaders to lead, however, we are the leaders!!! Remember that!!!!

The Seton Lake Indian Band ended their blockade of a CN Rail mainline Sunday evening between North Vancouver and Prince George.

The blockade, led by Chief Garry John, began Friday at approximately 3 p.m. and continued for three days in the T'salalh, St'at'imc territory.

It was CN's mainline for freight trains.

The blockade ended at about 6 p.m. Sunday

It was held in solidarity of Chief Theresa Spence who is entering her fourth week of a hunger strike in Ottawa that began Dec. 11. It was also done to support the Idle No More movement and the on-going rail blockade in Sarnia where protesters have stopped a CN spur line for about two weeks.

Both Spence and the Sarnia blockaders are demanding a meeting between Prime Minister Stephen Harper, the Governor General and First Nation leaders to address treaty rights, which they say are being eroded by Harper.

The Seton Lake blockade ended with a Pipe Ceremony and prayers for Spence.

John told APTN National News Sunday night he felt they made their point and showed they can start up again at any time. It's believed John is the first chief to lead a blockade as part of the Idle No More movement. He's calling on other chiefs to get involved.

He said they will consider other methods of action.

"The different levels of government and CN Rail now know that we the T'salalhmec are very capable of mobilizing quite quickly and resuming the rail stoppage again if necessary," said John in a statement.

Both Harper and Gov-Gen David Johnston have refused to meet Spence's demands.

Situation Report

Incident Number: ST122-12D

Incident: First Nations Protests

Date: Information valid as of 31 Dec 2012, 14:00 EST

Description of current incident: A number of First Nations (FN) Protests are occurring as a result of a grassroots campaign called "Idle No More" which is protesting Bill C-45, the government's omnibus budget legislation. In addition, "Idle No More" related protests have also been planned at different locations in the United States in the coming days.

Source(s) of reporting: Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada, PS Regional Offices, media/open source reporting.

Current actions: GOC is monitoring the situation and has established contact with key federal in departments/agencies and PS Regional Offices in order to maintain cohesive information sharing.

Event management of the protests falls under the purview of local jurisdictions and local law enforcement agencies, as appropriate.

In addition to the Sarnia rail blockade which is ongoing, there are two additional events planned on 31 Dec:

- MB: 16:00 EST in Winnipeg, Flash Mob in Portage Place Mall.
- MB: 17:00 – 18:00 EST in Winnipeg. "Idle No More" Teach-In Feast and Fundraiser Gala.
- ON: 16:30 – 17:30 EST in Niagara Falls. Niagara Falls-NYE-Flash Mob/Round Dance.

At this time, the GOC is aware of the following "Idle No More" related protest planned for 01 Jan 2013:

- ON: Ongoing rail blockade in Sarnia.
- ON: 14:00 – 15:00 EST in Sudbury. New Year's Day March/Rally.

Assessment/Analysis: The protests have been peaceful in nature. However, some protests have disrupted rail operations and resulted in delays on various highways.

Departments and Agencies with further information on this incident are asked to report to the GOC.

Additional situation reports: Further situation reports will be issued as significant developments occur.

Additional Products: Geomatics and other products will be attached to a follow-on message.

Numéro d'incident : ST122-12 D

Incident : Manifestations des Premières nations

Date : Renseignements mis à jour le 31 décembre, 2012, à 14 h (HNE)

Description de l'incident : Diverses manifestations des Premières nations se déroulent dans le cadre d'une campagne populaire intitulée « Idle No More », qui critique le projet de loi omnibus C-45 du gouvernement portant sur le budget. Certaines manifestations reliées à la campagne populaire « Idle No More » sont aussi prévues pour certaines régions des États-Unis dans les prochains jours.

Source(s) des renseignements : Affaires autochtones et Développement du Nord Canada, les bureaux régionaux de Sécurité publique Canada, et les médias/sources générales.

Mesures en cours : Le COG surveille la situation et est en communication avec certains ministères et agences fédérales ainsi que les bureaux régionaux de Sécurité publique afin de maintenir un échange d'information cohérent.

La gestion des manifestations relève des autorités locales et des organismes d'application de la loi, le cas échéant.

En plus de la barricade sur la voie ferrée à Sarnia qui est encore en place, deux autres événements sont prévus pour le 31 décembre :

- Man. : Rassemblement éclair à 16 h (HNE) au centre commercial Portage Place, à Winnipeg.
- Man. : De 17 h à 18 h (HNE), festin « Idle No More » d'enseignement et gala de collecte de fonds, à Winnipeg.
- Ont. : De 16 h 30 à 17 h 30 (HNE), rassemblement éclair et danse en cercle de la veille du Jour de l'An, à Niagara Falls.

Le COG a appris que le groupe « Idle No More » prévoit les manifestations suivantes pour le 1er janvier 2013 :

- Ont. : Poursuivre le barrage de la voie ferrée à Sarnia.
- Ont. : De 14 h à 15 h (HNE), marche/rallye du Jour de l'An, à Sudbury.

Analyse/évaluation : Jusqu'à maintenant, les manifestations ont été pacifiques. Cependant, quelques manifestations ont causé l'interruption de services ferroviaires et des retards sur diverses routes.

Les ministères et les organismes qui ont plus de renseignements au sujet de cet incident sont priés de communiquer avec le COG.

Autres rapports de situation : D'autres rapports de situation seront émis au fur et à mesure que des développements importants se produisent.

Autres produits : Des produits de géomatique ainsi que d'autres produits seront joints à des messages subséquents.

Pat and Wendy - provided for situational awareness.

First Nations leaders, including between 50 to 60 chiefs from British Columbia to the Maritimes, have discussed plans to launch country-wide economic disruptions by the middle of January if the Prime Minister doesn't agree to meet with Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence.

During the discussions, some First Nations leaders suggested individual communities and treaty regions issue a "breach of treaty" declarations beginning 2013-01-01and setting 2013-01-16 as the day to launch a campaign of indefinite economic disruptions, including railway and highway blockades. Aside from blockades, chiefs discussed stepping up rallies at MP's offices, continuing letter campaigns and launching Twitter bombs. Idle No More organisers issued a statement on 2012-12-31, that distanced the movement from the chiefs.

There are also plans to hold ceremonies and vigils in Ottawa between 2013-01-10 and 2013-01-13 in support of Spence.

RESTRICTED Distribution Addendum to Situation Report

Incident Number: ST122-12F (Restricted Addendum)

Incident: First Nations Protests

Date: Information valid as of 02 Jan 2013, 15:30 EST

Source(s) of reporting: Ontario Provincial Police (OPP), Transport Canada, media/open source reporting.

Additional Restricted Information:

Potential bridge closures/disruptions planned for 05 Jan

The OPP indicated it is concerned about potential bridge closures/disruptions related to protest events, announced by Idle No More, for 05 Jan. The OPP expects slowdowns in the following areas:

- Three Nations Bridge (Cornwall)
- Blue Water Bridge
- Peace Bridge
- Tyendinaga Mohawk Territory
- Highway 17 in Nipissing

A representative from the Blue Water Bridge Authority indicated they would not tolerate any bridge closures/slowdowns on the Blue Water Bridge, citing public safety issues.

The Peace Bridge Authority (PBA) mentioned that they will treat any disruption in the same manner as they would deal with other events, such as the Niagara Marathon, Friendship Festival, etc. They noted the organizers will be applying to the PBA to conduct a "parade" across the Peace Bridge. The organizers have committed that they will not conduct a blockade of the bridge and will be entering into a written agreement with the PBA. The PBA will shut down the U.S bound curb lane for approximately an hour to accommodate the "parade". The other two lanes will remain open, one Canada-bound and one U.S.-bound. This event is scheduled to commence around 11:00 EST. It is anticipated that approximately 150-180 people will be participating. Participants will clear U.S. customs and then return to clear customs in Canada.

The OPP also advised it may be required to assist in Sarnia (rail blockade).

It was also discussed that social media indicated that Highway 403 at the Skyway may be impacted but this is unconfirmed.

Ongoing blockade in Sarnia

CN lawyers appeared in Ontario Superior Court in Toronto last week to have an earlier injunction, ordering an end to the blockade, extended for an indefinite period of time.

The Police Chief of the Sarnia Polices Services was ordered to appear in court on 02 Jan to justify his actions through the two injunctions. Superior Court Justice John Desotti indicated the Police Chief must find a means to enforce a court injunction issued on 21 Dec to end the blockade by FN protesters. Justice Desotti later adjourned court proceedings until 12:00 EST on 03 Jan. FN spokesperson Ron Plain agreed to work with protesters to end the blockade on 02 Jan. Of note, it was reported on 31 Dec that the Aamijwnaang Band Council does not support the rail blockade.

Assessment/Analysis: The GOC assesses that the court adjournment was likely initiated to provide time for all parties involved to find a peaceful resolution in order to avoid being found in contempt of Court when proceedings resume on 03 Jan.

Departments and Agencies with further information on this incident are asked to report to the GOC.

Additional Products: Geomatics and other products will be attached to a follow-on message.

Situation Report

Incident Number: ST122-12F

Incident: First Nations Protests

Date: Information valid as of 02 Jan 2013, 15:30 EST

Description of current incident: A number of First Nations (FN) Protests are occurring as a result of a grassroots campaign called "Idle No More" which is protesting Bill C-45, the government's omnibus budget legislation.

Source(s) of reporting: Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada, PS Regional Offices, media/open source reporting.

Current actions: GOC is monitoring the situation and has established contact with key federal departments/agencies and PS Regional Offices in order to maintain cohesive information sharing.

Event management of the protests falls under the purview of local jurisdictions and local law enforcement agencies, as appropriate.

On 02 Jan, approximately 50 people from the Gescapegiag FN are blocking Highway 132 in QC near the NB border.

In addition to the events mentioned in ST122-12E, two more Idle No More events are taking place on 02 Jan:

- ON: 16:00 to 18:00 EST in Sudbury. Rally at Tom Davies Square, followed by a march through the downtown area. Participants have indicated they are planning to occupy the northbound lanes of the Paris Street Bridge for 15 minutes.
- BC: 18:00 to 19:00 EST in Vancouver. A rally is planned to take place at the Waterfront Station.

At this time, the GOC is aware of the following "Idle No More" related protest planned for 03 Jan 2013:

- ON: Ongoing rail blockade in Sarnia.
- ON: 11:00 to 16:00 EST at Highway 144 across from Middle Stetham Road. Mattagami FN rally.
- QC: Since 27 Dec, demonstrators from the Listuguj Mi'gmaq FN have set up a blockade on the rail tracks at Pointe-à-la-Croix, QC in support of the Idle No More movement. The demonstrators are targeting cargo trains, and allowing passenger trains through the blockade. To date, no rail traffic has been disrupted.
- BC: 16:00 – 18:00 EST at North Island College, Port Alberni. Nuu-chah-nulth community gathering.

- SK: 18:00 – 19:00 EST in Saskatoon. Flash mob round dance.

An unconfirmed media report indicated 50 to 60 Assembly of First Nations (AFN) Chiefs have discussed plans to launch country-wide disruptions by the middle of January in support of Chief Spence. The date of 16 Jan was allegedly noted as a day to launch a campaign of indefinite economic disruptions, including railway and highway blockades. Of note, media reported that the Idle No More organizers issued a statement distancing the grassroots movement from potential actions by the Chiefs.

Assessment/Analysis: The protests have been peaceful in nature. However, some protests have disrupted rail operations and resulted in delays on various highways.

Departments and Agencies with further information on this incident are asked to report to the GOC.

Additional situation reports: Further situation reports will be issued as significant developments occur.

Additional Products: Geomatics and other products will be attached to a follow-on message.

Rapport de situation

Numéro de l'incident : ST122-12F

Incident : Manifestations des Premières nations

Date : Renseignements mis à jour le 2 janvier 2013, à 15 h 30 (HNE).

Description de l'incident : Diverses manifestations des Premières nations sont en train de se dérouler dans le cadre d'un mouvement populaire intitulé « Idle No More », qui critique le projet de loi omnibus C-45 du gouvernement portant sur le budget.

Sources des renseignements : Affaires autochtones et Développement du Nord Canada, les bureaux régionaux de Sécurité publique Canada, et les médias/sources générales.

Mesures en cours : Le COG surveille la situation et est en communication avec certains des ministères et agences fédérales clés ainsi que les bureaux régionaux de Sécurité publique Canada afin de maintenir un échange d'information cohérent.

La gestion des manifestations relève des autorités et des organismes d'application de la loi locaux, le cas échéant.

Le 2 janvier, environ 50 personnes de la Première nation de Gescapegiag ont bloqué l'autoroute 132 au Québec (Québec) près de la frontière avec le Nouveau-Brunswick (N.-B.).

En plus de celles mentionnées dans le rapport ST122-12E, deux autres activités sont prévues le 2 janvier dans le cadre du mouvement « Idle No More » :

- Ontario : De 16 h à 18 h HNE, à Sudbury. Rallye à la place Tom Davies, suivi d'une marche dans le centre-ville. Les participants ont fait savoir qu'ils prévoient occuper, pendant 15 minutes, les voies du pont de la rue Paris en direction nord.
- Colombie-Britannique : De 18 h à 19 HNE, à Vancouver. Un rallye doit se dérouler à la gare Waterfront.

À l'heure actuelle, selon les informations dont dispose le COG, les activités suivantes sont planifiées le 3 janvier 2013 dans le cadre du mouvement « Idle No More » :

- Ontario : Maintien du barrage ferroviaire à Sarnia.
- Ontario : De 11 h à 16 h HNE, sur l'autoroute 144, de l'autre côté de la route Middle Stetham. Rallye de la Première nation Mattagami.
- Québec : Depuis le 27 décembre, des manifestants de la Première nation des Mi'gmaq de Listuguj bloquent la voie ferrée à Pointe-à-la-Croix, au Québec, en soutien au mouvement « Idle No More ». Les manifestants bloquent les trains de marchandises, mais ils permettent aux trains de voyageurs de passer. Jusqu'à maintenant, la circulation ferroviaire n'a pas été perturbée.

- Colombie-Britannique: De 16 h à 18 h HNE, au North Island College de Port Alberni. Rassemblement communautaire des Nuu-chah-nulth.
- Saskatchewan: De 18 h à 19 h HNE à Saskatoon. Rassemblement éclair de danse en cercle.

Selon un reportage média non confirmé, de 50 à 60 chefs de l'Assemblée des Premières nations auraient discuté de la possibilité de lancer des mesures de perturbation à l'échelle du pays d'ici la mi-janvier en soutien à la Chef Spence. La date du 16 janvier aurait supposément été retenue pour lancer une campagne indéfinie de perturbations économiques, notamment au moyen de barricades sur des voies ferrées et des autoroutes. Il y a lieu de signaler que, selon les médias, les organisateurs du mouvement « Idle No More » ont publié un communiqué pour distancer le mouvement populaire des mesures potentielles que les Chefs pourraient prendre.

Évaluation/analyse : Jusqu'à maintenant, les manifestations ont été pacifiques. Cependant, quelques manifestations ont causé l'interruption de services ferroviaires et des retards sur diverses routes.

Les ministères et les organismes qui ont plus de renseignements au sujet de cet incident sont priés de communiquer avec le COG.

Autres rapports de situation : D'autres rapports de situation seront émis au fur et à mesure que des développements importants se produisent.

Autres produits : Des produits de géomatique ainsi que d'autres produits seront joints à des messages subséquents.

Idle No More grandira, prédit un chef qui songe à bloquer un poste frontalier (Radio-Canada, 2 janvier 2013 à 15h06)

http://www.radio-canada.ca/regions/colombie-britannique/2013/01/02/003-idle-no-more-stewart-phillip.shtml
Le président de l'Union des chefs autochtones de la Colombie-Britannique croit que le mouvement de protestation Idle No More gagnera en importance.
Le chef Stewart Phillip a également indiqué qu'il se préparait à une manifestation qui aura lieu samedi à l'important poste frontalier Peace Arch, au sud de Surrey, en Colombie-Britannique.
Selon lui, on reverra en 2013 des barrages comme ceux qui ont déjà été érigés en décembre dernier.
Des manifestants ont bloqué la voie ferrée (http://www.radio-canada.ca/regions/Ontario/2012/12/28/002-theresa-spence-blocus-sarnia-propane.shtml) du CN à Sarnia, en Ontario, et d'autres ont arrêté pendant cinq heures (http://www.radio-canada.ca/nouvelles/societe/2012/12/30/002-002-idle-no-more-bloquent-cn.shtml)la circulation sur le principal corridor de Via Rail entre Montréal et Toronto, dimanche soir dernier.
Stewart Phillip croit que le militantisme gagnera en importance en 2013, puisque les sympathisants du mouvement se battront contre le projet de loi omnibus du gouvernement fédéral, mais se préoccuperont aussi de questions plus larges comme l'inégalité et des droits issus de traités.
Pamela Palmater, qui mène le mouvement Idle No More, prédisait mardi que les manifestations évolueront pour inclure davantage d'actes de désobéissance civile, mais les appels à bloquer les postes frontaliers entre le Canada et les États-Unis n'ont pas reçu l'appui des organisateurs du mouvement.
Le mouvement de manifestations autochtones a pris de l'ampleur depuis qu'il a été lancé en appui à la chef Theresa Spence (http://www.radio-canada.ca/nouvelles/National/2013/01/01/001-autochtones-spence-visite.shtml), qui jeûne depuis quatre semaines pour tenter d'obtenir une rencontre avec le premier ministre Stephen Harper.
Mme Spence est chef de la communauté crie d'Attawapiskat, sur la rive ontarienne de la baie James, qui a connu l'an dernier une grave crise du logement et de santé publique.

The email below mentions a "national day of action" on Jan. 16th. Not sure if this is what the Chiefs are calling it. Should follow-up as historically a national day of action required the Ab JIG to provide 24-hr coverage and reporting on that day.

ATLEO requests PM HARPER and Gov. Gen. JOHNSTON to attend treaty mtg on Jan 24, the one year anniversary of the Crown-First Nations gathering last year.

APTN article references minutes obtained from a teleconference between Treaty 1 to 11 Chiefs that occurred on Dec 28, to discuss the upcoming National Day of Action on Jan 16th. During the call, they discussed plans to target "main economic and energy corridors, such as power sources, railways and highways."

Synopsis –

Idle No More is an ongoing protest movement originating among the First Nations and other Indigenous Peoples in Canada. It has quickly grown and garnered worldwide support from other Indigenous Peoples as well as sympathetic non-Indigenous Canadians and Americans. It has consisted of a number of political actions worldwide, inspired in part by the hunger strike of Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence and further coordinated via social media. The movement claims that the Canadian government's omnibus bill C-45 infringes on a number of historical treaty rights.

On December 21, 2012, a message was circulated by various social media and websites calling for the peaceful blockade of all border crossings on January 5, 2013.

Various protests have already taken place across the country including a rail blockade on December 30, 2012, disrupting travel for approximately 1,000 travellers on the Via Rail artery between Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa for two hours.

The movement has gained support from other similar mass movements, including Occupy Canada and Council for Canadians as well as Greenpeace.

Impact as of January 2, 2013, at 1400 EST –

Potential border service disruptions may occur on January 5, 2013, at the following ports of entry:

Atlantic Region

Fort Francis / International Falls
1100-1200 EST
Solidarity protest on the US side of the port of entry

Greater Toronto Area Region – No known planned protests

Southern Ontario Region

Fort Erie Peace Bridge
0900-1200 EST
Protest

Niagara Falls
0900-1200 EST
Protest

Walpole Island Ferry Unknown
Protest

Prairie Region

Emerson Possible
Protest

Pacific Region

Douglas Peace Arch
1100 PST
Peaceful protest to "block the border"

Coho / Seattle – Victoria Clipper Ferry

Terminal – Victoria, BC
1430-1730 PST
Peaceful protest / traditional bone game to be played at the entrance / exit of the terminal to coincide with the afternoon arrival of the MV Coho ferry from Port Angeles, Washington

Rykerts / Porthill
1400-1600 PST

Other potential impacts include:

- Extremists infiltrating the protest

- Movement of people and goods into Canada without being properly screened (contraband and inadmissible persons)

- Movement of emergency vehicles onto bridges

- Interruption of commercial goods being imported and its potential effect on commerce

- Extensive media presence and coverage

CBSA Action/Next Steps –

All regions are in the process of preparing operational plans. Border Alerts have been prepared by the Border Operations Centre in advance should such alerts need to be issued at a moment's notice in response to a port closure.

The BOC has participated in conference calls with Transport Canada.

The Minister's Office will be advised.

Bonjour,

Comme la plupart d'entre vous le savez, les événements des Premières nations dans tout le pays gagnent en popularité et dynamique et, comme tel, le Centre des opérations du gouvernement a mis en place cette téléconférence pour nous aider à déterminer les prochaines étapes et d'élaborer un cycle d'activité concernant les rapports. La téléconférence d'aujourd'hui est limité aux ministères clés qui ont le mandat de répondre ou de soutenir d'autres organisations. Nous avons également inclus la Police provinciale de l'Ontario à cet appel, car ils peuvent aussi avoir un rôle à jouer en cas de changement à la situation. La conférence débutera à 13h30 HNE le 03 janvier 2013.

UPDATE 19: First Nations Blockades for January3, 2013. (New information in red)

Ontario Region

Sarnia –The Sarnia blockade has been lifted as of midnight 2 January. Signals and engineering inspections were completed by 01:30 EST. CN will be moving goods non stop in order to get all the industries topped off. CN police will escort the trains through the reserve for the time being as all shipments are dangerous goods. (Source: Transport Canada Surface and Intermodal Security).

The following protests are anticipated on 5 January 2013:
- Three Nations Crossing Bridge (Cornwall, ON)
- Blue Water Bridge (Sarnia, ON)
- Peace Bridge (Fort Erie, ON)
- Niagara Falls, ON, border crossing (possibly the Rainbow Bridge)
- Rail blockages are anticipated in the Tyendinaga area (will affect VIA Rail and CP Rail)

Quebec Region

ViaRail Canada has advised that the blockade on Cascapedia subdivision (between Matapedia and Gaspé) has been cleared and tracks have been inspected. VIA Rail Train 16 will be in Matapedia around 09:30 - 10:00 EST this morning to receive passengers. No freight trains will be allowed through. (Source: Transport Canada Surface and Intermodal Security)

Via Rail Canada a indiqué que la manifestation sur la subdivision Cascapédia (entre Matapédia et Gaspé) est terminée et les voies ont été inspectées. Le train VIA 16 sera à Matapédia vers 9h30 – 10h00 HNE ce matin pour recevoir les passagers. Les trains de marchandises ne pourront pas passés. (Sûreté du transport terrestre et intermodal)

Commissioner (Mike, Tonia,)

A/Commr Wayne Lang gleaned this stuff from Regional AFN Chief Augustine today. You will see that the DECK speaks to an AFN National Strategy and National Action Plan on Safety and Security. It is a move forward strategy including "liaising with police services" and ensuring that emergency preparedness plans can be engaged.

It was also just recently announced that the Prime Minister will meet with AFN leaders next week. I will expect any meeting request with us may not take place now. We will see what next week brings and try to better understand what expectation are.

(Tonia - Mike's) I would share this DECK/Material with CROPs and Commanding Officers.

OFFICE OF THE NATIONAL CHIEF | BUREAU DU CHEF NATIONAL

Assembly of First Nations | Assemblée des Premières Nations

OPEN LETTER ON BEHALF OF THE FIRST NATIONS LEADERS TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE GOVERNOR GENERAL DAVID JOHNSTON AND THE RIGHT HONOURABLE PRIME MINISTER OF CANADA STEPHEN HARPER

On behalf of the National Executive of the Assembly of First Nations, we write today regarding an urgent matter requiring immediate attention. As First Nations leaders from coast-to-coast-to coast, those with inherent rights and title and those with whom the Crown has entered into Treaty, we collectively raise our voices about the critical situation facing First Nations.

On December 11th, 2012, Chief Teresa Spence commenced a hunger strike to call attention to the dire conditions which many First Nations communities and peoples face, and to protest the disrespect and shameful treatment of First Nations by the Government of Canada. She has stated that she will remain on this hunger strike until a meeting is achieved between the Crown (including provincial Crown representatives where the provincial Crown is involved as in Treaty 9) and all Treaty First Nations to discuss the Treaty relationship and our respective obligations and outstanding issues. This situation creates an urgency that is foremost in our minds and is a direct correlation to the humanitarian crises being faced in many First Nations communities today

The Government of Canada has not upheld nor fulfilled its responsibilities to First Nations, as committed to by the Crown including at the Crown-First Nations Gathering January 2012. Canada has not upheld the Honour of the Crown in its dealings with First Nations, as evidenced in its inadequate and inequitable funding relationships with our Nations and its ongoing actions in bringing forward legislative and policy changes that will directly impact on the Inherent and Treaty Rights of First Nations. Treaties are international in nature and further indigenous rights are human rights, both collective and individual and must be honoured and respected.

We seek an immediate commitment to a meeting with you as the representative of the Crown, together with the Prime Minister of Canada, to demonstrate respect and attention to the priorities set by First Nations. All First Nations across Canada stand united and in solidarity in advancing this urgent call for action and attention.

Respectfully,

National Chief Shawn A-in-chut Atleo on behalf of the National Executive of the Assembly of First Nations

AFN National Strategy
National Action Plan
Safety & Security

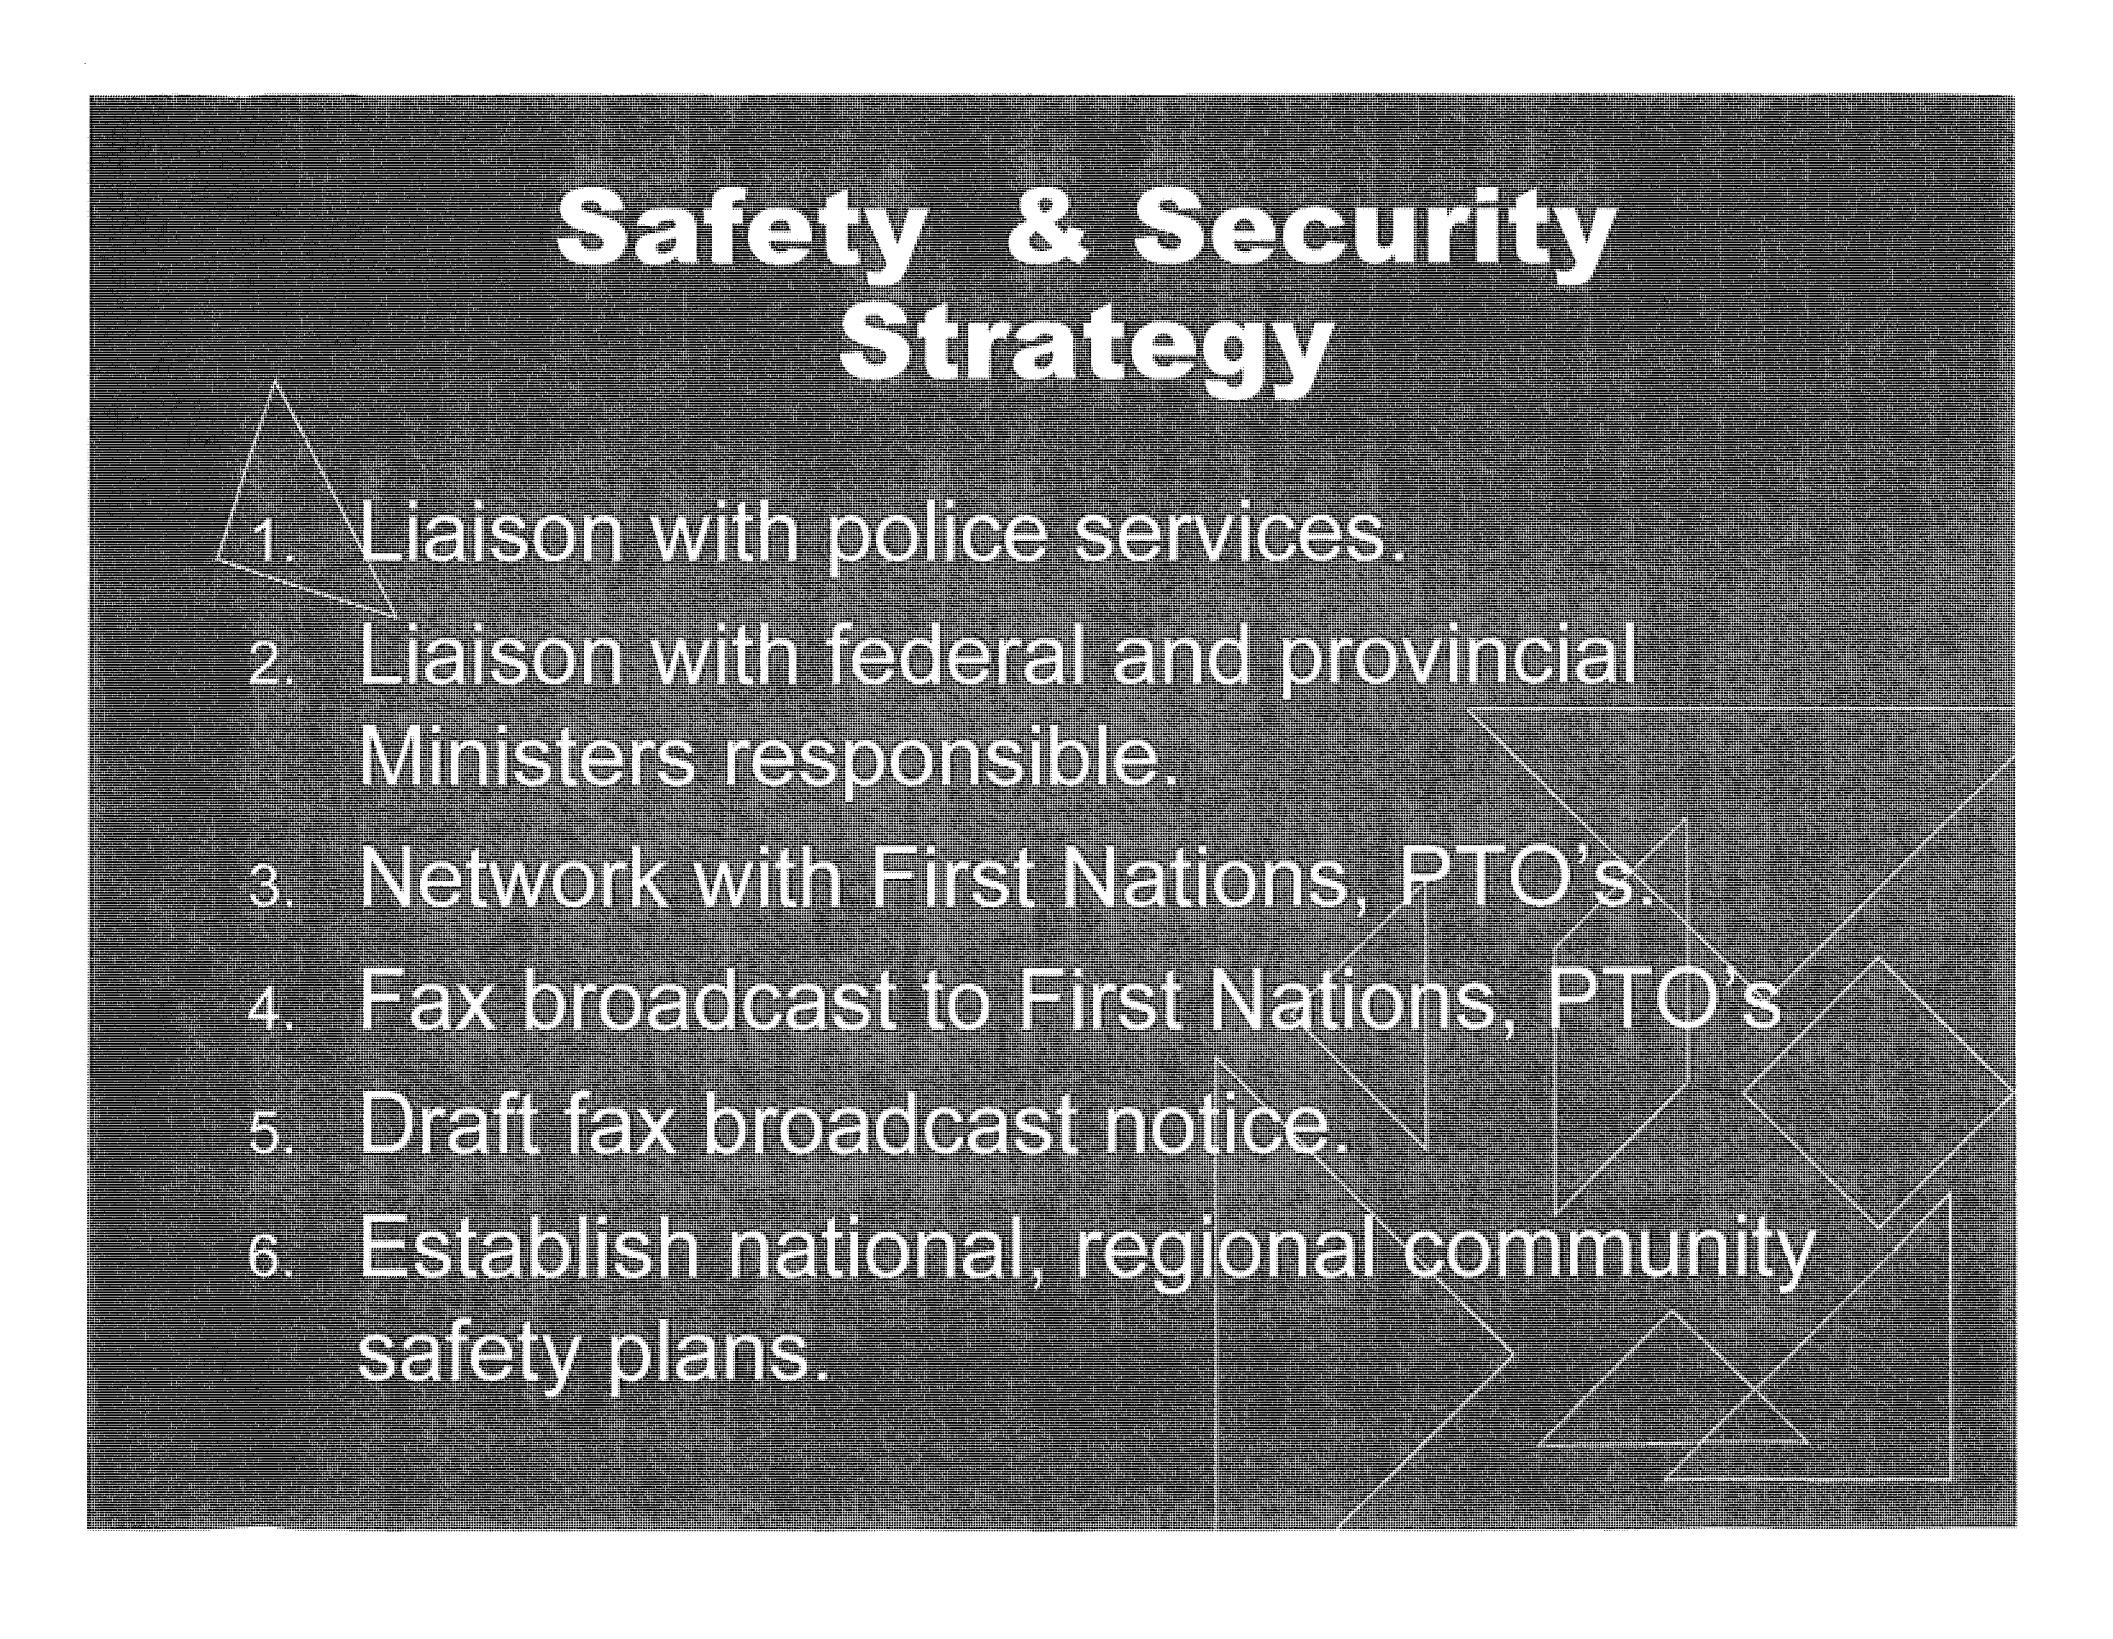
Protecting Inherent Treaty & Aboriginal Title & Rights

AFN International, National & Regional Strategy

- Maintain communication with Amnesty International, Quakers, KAIROS, MiningWatch Canada
- Develop constitutional challenge on impact of Bill C-30 on water and environment
- United action – January 16, 2013
- Spiritual movement
- External communications – with Canadian public
- Internal communications
- Work with all First Nations, PTO's for the safety and security of women and children before and after National Action Plan

Safety & Security Strategy

1. Liaison with police services.
2. Liaison with federal and provincial Ministers responsible.
3. Network with First Nations, PTO's.
4. Fax broadcast to First Nations, PTO's
5. Draft fax broadcast notice.
6. Establish national, regional community safety plans.



1. Liaise with police services

- Ensure that police services facilitate security measures to ensure the safety of citizens during implementation of an AFN National Action Plan.
  - Agenda

    Inform of AFN National Action Plan – safety and security
  - Ensure there are no jurisdictional barriers to implementation of a safety/security plan..

2.Liaise with Ministers Responsible for Safety & Security

- Minister of Public Safety, Minister of Justice, Minister of Defense:
  - Guided by federal policy for Emergency Management. Ensure federal government understands that activities will be peaceful, therefore any linkage or association with "extremism" is unwarranted and excessive.
  - Policy is for the exclusive jurisdiction for lands/properties under federal responsibility, including issues that have national implications.
- The Emergency Management Act requires that Public Safety exercise leadership by coordinating among federal institutions and in cooperation with the Provinces, Territories and other entities, emergency management activities as required.

3. Network with First Nations, PTO's & Public

- Include as an agenda item on weekly PTO calls
- Continue network with United Church, unions
- Send out fax broadcast to First Nations, PTO's asap
- Safety and security is also a community responsibility
- Provide regular updates

4. Key messages for First Nations, PTO's & Public

- AFN is in full support of Idle no More
- AFN supports peaceful protests guided by spiritual leaders and Elders
- AFN advocates engaging emergency preparedness plans with police, service providers for community safety
- AFN will liaise with the Canadian Red Cross, Friendship Centers and related agencies for national safety and security

5. Draft fax broadcast notice

Solidarity of Canada's Indigenous Nations!

The AFN stands in solidarity with international, national, regional and local organizations in peaceful assertion of First Nation rights and interests.

For the safety and security of our women and children, we ask regional and community to enact emergency preparedness plans.

Bill C-45 impacts include changes to: the Fisheries Act that impacts on your right to fish for a living; changes to the Environment Act endangers fragile ecosystems of our lakes and rivers; and changes to the Navigable Waters Act allows major pipeline and power line development projects to proceed without your consent and limited consultation.

Bill C-45 does not have your free, prior and informed consent!

Canada, by passing Bill C-45, is in violation of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous peoples!

6. Establish national, regional and community safety plans

- AFN work with Chiefs Committee on Education for the safety of children
- Chiefs/Leaders establish contact with local police departments
- Councils review emergency preparedness plans to include safety/security for women and children during implementation of AFN National Action Plan
- Councils appoint key contacts for safety/security.

Next Steps

- National Action Plan:
  - AFN Executive have developed a national action plan that includes a legal, political, safety and security and communications plan.
  - AFN is engaged with the international community.
  - AFN will facilitate a national day of action on January 16, 2013 to slow the economy.
- AFN will convene a national meeting January 24, 2012 in Ottawa on these important issues.

Good Afternoon Everyone,

Please see attached email that went to the NE/SW Detachment Commanders and CI Units regarding the above noted.

In an effort to coordinate the collection and dissemination of information/intelligence related to the "Idle No More" movement, "O" Division- CIB is implementing a Divisional protocol for the flow of information.

CIB will work closely with NHQ, Divisional Commanders, and our partners to ensure information and current reports are shared both internally and externally in a timely manner. This will ensure situational awareness, via "Sit Reports", as and when required which will provide timely/accurate information to all.

I would ask that you share this email with Detachment and Unit Commanders that report to you to ensure complete divisional coverage.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to give me a call or discuss the matter with a member of your local Intel Unit.

Thank you,

Rod

God Day All,

In an effort to coordinate the collection and dissemination of intelligence related to the "Idle No More" movement, CIB is implementing a Divisional protocol for the flow of information.

Cpl. Graham Turner (NCO i/c Kingston CIS) will be our point person for the collation of all information and he will be assisted by CM Rosemarie Perez (analyst).

We request that any high level information/intelligence that may be received by members under your command should be provided to your local Intel unit. They in turn will ensure that the information is funneled to Cpl. Turner. Cpl. Turner will be liaising on a daily basis and will be providing Divisional situational awareness reports as required.

Please keep in mind that we're maintaining an overview from a broad Divisional scope so only information of significant impact should be reported.

All media requests should be directed to Sgt. Rich Rollings for response.

I'm certain there may be tweaks to our process as it involves and I will make certain to keep you apprized accordingly.

Please note that the above does not pertain to Cornwall detachment. Due to their unique situation they will maintain their current reporting arrangements.

Regards,

Tino

Jenn,

notice that it indicates Chief Spence does not want to be associated with border blockades January 5th. Wonder if this will have any more implications at the Ontario borders.

Please find attached the updated " Idle No More" events in Manitoba as of 2013-01-03. Our Pros file 2012-1601206 refers should you require more detail. The attached document is in both PDF and word format.

There are no other events scheduled for Manitoba at this time.

The Canada / USA border blockades for 2013-01-05 have been cancelled officially by their organizers. The cancellation was done out of respect for the wishes of Chief Theresa SPENCE, who asked that her name not be associated with the blockade events.

however, no events have been identified for Manitoba.

Thank You.

We received information blockage of the Deh Cho bridge.

Update on happening in Yellowknife:

A blockage of the Deh Cho bridge is scheduled for 13-01-05 at 1400. The blockage is expected to last for one hour. The event is being organized out of Fort Providence. The Department of Highways (has been advised of the situation and are in the process of putting a plan in place.

A plan is being put in place by Yellowknife Community and Aboriginal Policing.

For Immediate Release

First Nations Leaders will meet on January 24, 2013

(January 2, 2013, Yellowknife) "The Dene Nation is lending their support for the proposed meeting of the Indigenous Nations leaders to be held on the 24h of January 2013. "On Monday 31 December 2012, the Chiefs called for an Assembly to discuss many issues confronting our peoples and nations. The leaders are calling for the meeting and inviting the Prime Minister to attend. In calling our own meeting, we are moving our own agenda forward as instructed by our People," said Dene National Chief Bill Erasmus.

This meeting is significant as it is the first anniversary of the gathering held last year in Ottawa.

"We continue to express concerns for the health of Chief Spence. As Nations, we need to create our own agenda and make it happen for our future generations. Chief Spence has put herself on the line for our Nations, we need to work for a solution. We continue to call on the government of Canada to step up" said Chief Erasmus.

In having a meeting, we are asking him to attend. We are going half way. He needs to go the rest of the way. As we show leadership, the people of Canada are increasing looking at the Prime Minister to show leadership. Many prominent Canadians are urging him to move towards a meeting. Canada's international reputation is under review.

"Our leaders and People do not want to see Chief Spence lose her life. Our priority is to find a way to work together. Chief Spence is starting a fourth week of a hunger strike, and another person has joined her. What does it take?" asked Chief Erasmus.

We call on all Canadians to write, fax, text, twitter and facebook the Members of Parliament, the Prime Minister, Senators, Premiers and the United Nations. We need support for the meeting being called by our Leaders to be successful.

Michael Den Tandt: Harper needs to concede defeat to Spence, if only symbolically
Postmedia News
A hunger strike is always a public ploy, on the part of the one fasting, to embarrass a stronger opponent into making concessions or displaying weakness. The fast is nominally an act of passive resistance; in fact it is a straight power reversal, made morally and politically effective by the willingness of the hunger striker to suffer, or even die, for his or her beliefs. The roles appear to be pre-appointed — in this case, with Harper as the loser.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper announces meeting with First Nations leadership

January 4, 2013
Ottawa, Ontario

Prime Minister Stephen Harper today issued the following statement on a planned meeting with a delegation of First Nations leaders coordinated by the Assembly of First Nations:

"On January 24, 2012, I was pleased to participate in the historic Crown-First Nations Gathering. On that day, the Government of Canada and First Nations committed to making progress in the following areas:

Improving relationships and strong partnerships between Canada and First Nations respectful of Aboriginal and Treaty rights as recognized and affirmed in the Constitution Act, 1982;
- Building effective, appropriate, transparent and fully accountable governance structures;
- Empowering success of individuals through access to education and opportunity;

- Enabling strong, sustainable, and self-sufficient communities;
- Creating conditions to accelerate economic development opportunities and maximize benefits for all Canadians;
- Respecting the role of First Nations' culture and language in our history and future.

"The Government and First Nations committed at the Gathering to maintaining the relationship through an ongoing dialogue that outlines clear goals and measures of progress and success. While some progress has been made, there is more that must be done to improve outcomes for First Nations communities across Canada.
"It is in this spirit of ongoing dialogue that, together with Minister Duncan, I will be participating in a working meeting with a delegation of First Nations leaders coordinated by the Assembly of First Nations on January 11, 2013. This working meeting will focus on two areas flowing from the Gathering: the treaty relationship and aboriginal rights, and economic development.
"The Government of Canada and First Nations have an enduring historic relationship based on mutual respect, friendship and support. The Government of Canada is committed to strengthening this relationship."

Le Premier ministre Stephen Harper annonce la tenue d'une rencontre avec les dirigeants des Premières Nations

Le 4 janvier 2013
Ottawa (Ontario)

Le Premier ministre Stephen Harper a fait la déclaration suivante aujourd'hui au sujet d'une rencontre prévue avec une délégation de dirigeants des Premières Nations coordonnée par l'Assemblée des Premières Nations :

« Le 24 janvier 2012, j'ai eu le plaisir de participer à la Rencontre historique entre la Couronne et les Premières Nations. Ce jour-là, le gouvernement du Canada et les Premières Nations se sont engagés à réaliser des progrès relativement aux objectifs suivants :

Améliorer les relations et renforcer les partenariats entre le Canada et les Premières Nations, dans le respect des droits autochtones et issus des traités reconnus dans la Loi constitutionnelle de 1982;
- Établir des structures de gouvernance efficaces, appropriées, transparentes et pleinement responsables;

- Favoriser le succès d'individus par l'accès à l'éducation et à des perspectives d'avenir;
- Habiliter les communautés de manière à les rendre fortes, viables et autosuffisantes;
- Mettre en place les conditions qui accéléreront les possibilités de développement économique et maximiseront les bénéfices pour tous les Canadiens;
- Respecter le rôle que jouent les cultures et les langues autochtones dans notre histoire et notre avenir.

« Le gouvernement du Canada et les Premières Nations entretiennent des relations durables fondées sur le respect mutuel, l'amitié et le soutien. Le gouvernement du Canada est résolu à renforcer ces relations. »

Overall situation for Friday January 4, 2013

A number of rallies in light of the 'Idle no more' movement, including possible Canada/US border crossings blockades, rail blockades and possible traffic slowdowns, have been scheduled for today, January 4 as well as Saturday, January 5. The Situation Centre has been activated as of January 4, 11:00 EST, until further notice.

Pacific

No known protests planned.

Prairie and Northern

No known protests planned.

Ontario

Surface

News media is reporting that CP tracks will be blocked today. It is expected that the blockade will be located at the crossing at MI 55.1 Heron Bay sub. Hwy 627. Canadian Pacific Police Service are responding and gathering more information. Local Ontario Provincial Police and First Nations Police will be contacted by CP Police. (Source: Canadian Pacific Police)

Quebec

Surface

The Société du Chemin de Fer de la Gaspésie Cascapedia subdivision is currently blocked for freight traffic near MP 11.8 (Qospem road). So far, VIA Rail passenger trains are not impacted. Band Council leaders and SQ are on site and monitoring. Expecting an update this afternoon. (Source: Transport Canada Surface and Intermodal Security)

Atlantic

Surface

Protestors are located at the CN Newcastle subdivision through Elsipogtog Reserve, NB. One vehicle is partially blocking the railway tracks, which would be hit should a train pass through that location. They have advised that they intend to continue to blockade the tracks for a period of 4 days. (Source: CN Police)

Diffusion RESTREINTE – Addenda au rapport de situation

Numéro de l'incident : ST122-12G (Addenda à diffusion restreinte)

Incident : Manifestations des Premières Nations

Date : Renseignements mis à jour le 3 janvier 2013, à 17 h (HNE)

Sources de renseignements : Agence des services frontaliers du Canada, Transports Canada

Autres renseignements à diffusion restreinte

Le COG mène des consultations auprès de partenaires fédéraux clés pour assurer une capacité de coordination et d'intervention pangouvernementale.

Des perturbations des services frontaliers pourraient survenir le 5 janvier 2013 aux points d'entrée suivants :

Région de l'Atlantique
Poste frontalier de Woodstock-Houlton, entre 7 h et 10 h (HNE) : Barrage pour exprimer la solidarité envers le barrage d'Akwesasne.

Région du Québec – Aucune manifestation n'est prévue.

Région du Nord de l'Ontario
Poste frontalier Akwesasne-Cornwall (pont Three Nations Crossing), à 10 h (HNE) : Manifestations à Massena (New York), traversant jusqu'à Cornwall.
Fort Francis-International Falls, entre 11 h et midi (HNE) : Manifestations en guise de solidarité du côté américain du point d'entrée.

Région du Grand Toronto – Aucune manifestation n'est prévue.

Région du Sud de l'Ontario
Pont Peace à Fort Erie, entre 11 h et 14 h (HNE) (La manifestations aura lieu de 11 h à 13 h (HNE) hors site et se dirigera seulement sur le pont entre 13 h et 14 h (HNE). Une seule voie sera fermée sur le pont pendant ce temps) : Manifestations Blue Water, heure inconnue.
Niagara Falls (possiblement au pont Rainbow), entre 9 h et midi (HNE) : Manifestations.
Traversier de Walpole Island, heure inconnue : Manifestations.

Région des Prairies
Emerson (Manitoba), heure inconnue : Manifestations possibles.

Région du Pacifique
Douglas (Peace Arch), à 14 h (HNE) : Manifestations pacifiques pour bloquer la frontière.
Poste Coho-Seattle, traversier de Victoria, terminal de Victoria (C.-B.), entre 17 h 30 et 20 h 30 (HNE) : Manifestations pacifiques et jeu d'os traditionnel à l'entrée et à la sortie du terminal au moment de l'arrivée (en après-midi) du traversier Coho de Port Angeles (Washington).
Rykerts-Porthill, entre 17 h et 19 h (HNE) : Rassemblement en guise de solidarité.

Il importe de souligner que des barrages pourraient être érigés sur des voies ferrées dans la région de Tyendinaga le 5 janvier. Ils auront des répercussions sur les chemins de fer VIA et CN.

Évaluation et analyse : L'ASFC précise que toutes les régions s'affairent à préparer des plans opérationnels. Le Centre des opérations frontalières a préparé des alertes à la frontière au cas où il serait nécessaire d'en diffuser au sujet de la fermeture d'un port.

Les ministères et les organismes qui détiennent d'autres renseignements sur cet incident sont priés d'en aviser le COG.

Autres produits : Des produits de géomatique ainsi que d'autres produits seront joints à un message subséquent.

Situation Report

Incident Number: ST122-12G

Incident: First Nations Protests

Date: Information valid as of 03 Jan 2013, 17:00 EST

Description of current incident: A number of First Nations (FN) Protests are occurring as a result of a grassroots campaign called "Idle No More" which is protesting Bill C-45, the government's omnibus budget legislation.

Source(s) of reporting: Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada, PS Regional Offices, media/open source reporting.

Current actions: GOC is monitoring the situation and has established contact with key federal departments/agencies and PS Regional Offices in order to maintain cohesive information sharing.

Event management of the protests falls under the purview of local jurisdictions and local law enforcement agencies, as appropriate.

The rail blockade in Sarnia has been removed. CN Police will be escorting trains as a precaution over the next few days.

At this time, the GOC is aware of the following "Idle No More" related protest activities planned for 04 Jan 2013:

- ON: Commencing 14:00 EST 04 Jan and ending 11:00 EST on 06 Jan at Sioux Lookout. "Idle No More" Public Pow Wow.
- QC: 09:00 – 15:00 EST in Gaspésie. Protesters from the Gesgapegiag Band Council plan to distribute pamphlets along Highway 132.

An unconfirmed media report indicated 50 to 60 Assembly of First Nations (AFN) Chiefs have discussed plans to launch country-wide disruptions by the middle of January in support of Chief Spence. The date of 16 Jan was allegedly noted as a day to launch a campaign of indefinite economic disruptions, including railway and highway blockades. Of note, media reported that the Idle No More organizers issued a statement distancing the grassroots movement from potential actions by the Chiefs.

There is a media report that Assembly of First Nations (AFN) National Chief Atleo announced that FN leaders will meet on 24 Jan, the anniversary of the Crown-First Nations Gathering. An invitation to the Prime Minister and the Governor General was sent on 01 Jan.

Assessment/Analysis: The protests have been peaceful in nature. However, some protests have disrupted rail operations and resulted in delays on various highways.

Departments and Agencies with further information on this incident are asked to report to the GOC.

Additional situation reports: Further situation reports will be issued as significant developments occur.

Additional Products: Geomatics and other products will be attached to a follow-on message.

Rapport de situation

Numéro de l'incident : ST122-12G

Incident : Manifestations des Premières nations

Date : Renseignements mis à jour le 3 janvier 2013, à 17 h (HNE).

Description de l'incident : Diverses manifestations des Premières nations sont en train de se dérouler dans le cadre d'un mouvement populaire intitulé « Idle No More », qui critique le projet de loi omnibus C-45 du gouvernement portant sur le budget.

Sources des renseignements : Affaires autochtones et Développement du Nord Canada, les bureaux régionaux de Sécurité publique Canada, et les médias/sources générales.

Mesures en cours : Le COG surveille la situation et est en communication avec certains des ministères et agences fédérales clés ainsi que les bureaux régionaux de Sécurité publique Canada afin de maintenir un échange d'information cohérent.

La gestion des manifestations relève des autorités et des organismes d'application de la loi locaux, le cas échéant.

La barricade à Sarnia a été enlevée. Par mesure de précaution, la Police du CN escortera les trains pendant les prochains jours.

À l'heure actuelle, selon les informations dont dispose le COG, les activités suivantes sont planifiées le 4 janvier 2013 :

- Ont. : De 14 h HNE le 4 janvier à 11 h HNE le 6 janvier, à Sioux Lookout. Pow-Wow public « Idle No More ».
- Québec : De 9 h à 15 h HNE, en Gaspésie. Des manifestants qui font partie du conseil de bande de Gesgapegiag comptent distribuer des brochures le long de l'autoroute 132.

Selon un reportage média non confirmé, de 50 à 60 chefs de l'Assemblée des Premières nations auraient discuté de la possibilité de lancer des mesures de perturbation à l'échelle du pays d'ici la mi-janvier en soutien à la Chef Spence. La date du 16 janvier aurait supposément été retenue pour lancer une campagne indéfinie de perturbations économiques, notamment au moyen de barricades sur des voies ferrées et des autoroutes. Il y a lieu de signaler que, selon les médias, les organisateurs du mouvement « Idle No More » ont publié un communiqué pour distancer le mouvement populaire des mesures potentielles que les Chefs pourraient prendre.

Des médias ont signalé que le chef national Atleo de l'Assemblée des Premières nations a annoncé la tenue d'une rencontre des chefs des Premières nations prévue pour le 24 janvier, soit à la date anniversaire du Rassemblement entre la Couronne et les Premières nations. Une invitation a été envoyée le 1er janvier au premier ministre et au gouverneur général.

Évaluation/analyse : Jusqu'à maintenant, les manifestations ont été pacifiques. Cependant, quelques manifestations ont causé l'interruption de services ferroviaires et des retards sur diverses routes.

Les ministères et les organismes qui ont plus de renseignements au sujet de cet incident sont priés de communiquer avec le COG.

Autres rapports de situation : D'autres rapports de situation seront émis au fur et à mesure que des développements importants se produisent.

Autres produits : Des produits de géomatique ainsi que d'autres produits seront joints à des messages subséquents.

Good morning Craig,

Unfortunately, Carrie Ann will be out of the office for a short period of time. In the interim, feel free to contact me directly with any information that you would have otherwise sent to Carrie Ann. I am an Intelligence Analyst working in Criminal Intelligence at the RCMP and have been reporting to Carrie Ann in regards to these protests. I am currently compiling information on the various events for my senior management.

Thank you for providing us with a copy of your Division's Threat Assessments.

Good morning Carrie,

As mentioned in my voicemail, I am an Intelligence Advisor at CBSA and am the point-person in our Intelligence Operations and Analysis Division for the planned border blockade that is scheduled to happen on Saturday.

We have been in contact (through Josée Therrien) with Tim O'Neil who provided us with a brief on the Force's current stance. Should that change and a threat assessment be produced, we would very much appreciate receiving a copy of that.

In the meantime, we have produced a Threat Assessment dealing specifically with the threatened border blockade. I have attached a copy of that document for your information and limited dissemination within the RCMP.

If you have any questions, or would like to discuss, my phone number is 613-952-4042.

Thanks,

Craig

Threat Assessment: Planned Border Blockade - January 5, 2013 Update #1

Key Updates

- Intelligence concerning the planning of protest activities as part of the January 5th Border Blockade indicate a high degree of fluidity in the level of organization and support for planned protests, making it difficult to accurately determine the exact nature, timing, and location of border-related protest activities. (A)

- Based on existing intelligence, the largest protest is expected to occur affecting the Cornwall, Ontario Port of Entry. There is a high probability that the protest will result in the temporary closure of the international bridges while the protest moves between Massena, New York and Cornwall, Ontario. There will be further disruptions to activities at the Port of Entry in Cornwall, Ontario as large numbers of demonstrators are processed by the Canada Border Services Agency (CBSA). (A)

- Other smaller protests may have a limited impact on CBSA operations at Ports of Entry in Atlantic Region (Woodstock); Southern Ontario Region (Sarnia, Fort Erie, and Niagara Falls); Northern Ontario Region (Fort Frances and Sault Ste. Marie); Pacific Region (Douglas and Victoria); and Prairie Region (Boissevain). (A)

- Idle No More protests continue to be peaceful, however there has been growing rhetoric encouraging more direct action to send the Government of Canada a message. If this rhetoric gains traction, future demonstrations may involve more direct action. (A)

- The Intelligence Operations and Analysis Division and Regional Enforcement and Intelligence Divisions are continuing to liaise with partner agencies, including the Ontario Provincial Police, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, US Customs and Border Protection, US Border Patrol, the Canadian Security and Intelligence Service, the Integrated Terrorism Assessment Centre, the Ontario Provincial Police, Transport Canada, and the Sûreté du Quebec to monitor and assess threats in relation to planned blockades. (A)

CBSA ASFC

CURRENT STATUS:

The planning of demonstrations at some border crossings continues to be fluid and unpredictable. For example, planned demonstrations at Niagara Falls, Ontario and Woodstock, New Brunswick have been organized and cancelled numerous times over the past week. There are indications from partner agencies that planning has in some cases moved offline in an intentional effort to thwart law enforcement monitoring and planning. These factors make it difficult to predict the exact timing, nature, size and location of potential border protests. (A)

Planning for demonstrations at Cornwall and Fort Erie, Ontario, and the Peace Arch crossing and Coho Ferry Terminal in British Columbia has been well coordinated and is in more advanced stages than in other locations, increasing the probability that events will be successfully staged there. The largest and most disruptive is expected to be the Akwesasne protest which will start in Massena, New York and end in Cornwall, Ontario. This protest may draw between 800 and 1,000 protestors. Contingency plans call for the closure of the bridges between Massena and Cornwall while the protestors are present on the bridge. There will also be high volumes at the Cornwall Port of Entry as demonstrators are processed by the Canada Border Services Agency (CBSA). The demonstrators are expected to remain in the Cornwall traffic circle adjacent to the Port of Entry for a number of hours before returning to Cornwall Island. (A)

The protest at Fort Erie is expected to cross the Peace Bridge between Fort Erie and Buffalo, New York. The bridge operator has negotiated with protestors to permit them to occupy one lane of traffic while crossing the bridge. Based on current traffic volumes, the operator does not expect it to have a significant impact on traffic. (A)

The protest at Peace Arch was one of the first to be organized as part of the border blockade. Current estimates, based on social media activity, are that upwards of 500 people will be taking part in the protest in the Peace Arch park. There is no specific information to indicate that the protest will move to the Port of Entry or seek to disrupt traffic leading to and from the Port of Entry. (A)

The protest at the Coho Ferry Terminal in Victoria has also been well-organized on social media sites and may draw as many as 500 protestors to coincide with the afternoon arrival of the MV Coho ferry from Port Angeles, Washington. Protestors are calling for displays of traditional sport and music at the terminal's entrance/exit. This will likely disrupt the movement of international traffic cleared off the afternoon sailing. (A)

Protests conducted under the Idle No More banner continue to be peaceful, but are escalating in terms of their impact on the public. For example, a protest on December 30, blocked a Via Rail line east of Belleville, preventing passenger trains from travelling between Ottawa, Montreal, and Toronto. This action affected up to 2,000 passengers. There are also increasingly confrontational messages being posted on some of the social media sites organizing the events calling for more direct action at border crossings on Saturday, to, "show the government that [they] are willing to escalate this to the point where we shut down the economy."[1] Should this rhetoric gain traction among those participating in the demonstrations, escalated actions could be seen, such as total blockades of a limited number of Ports of Entry or the blockade of traffic arteries into and out of border crossings. (A)

On 03 January 2013, the 13-day long rail blockade near Sarnia, Ontario was peacefully dismantled by protesters in response to a court order enforcing a temporary injunction that had been granted to Canadian National Railway (CN). The rail blockade had been considered by law enforcement as a potential flashpoint in the event that law enforcement had to intervene to remove the blockade. The manner in which the blockade was removed is a positive indicator of the peaceful tenor of the current activities. (A)

The Intelligence Operations and Analysis Division (IOAD) has been in daily contact with the Integrated Terrorism Assessment Centre (ITAC). As of this update, ITAC has not produced an assessment because there has been no violence associated with these protests, and no intelligence indicating extremist elements operating within the protest movement. (A)

The Royal Canada Mounted Police continues to monitor Idle No More protest activity, but considers the protests to be local or contract policing matters. A threat assessment has not be prepared by them and there is currently no RCMP national coordination surrounding these protests. (A)

The Intelligence Operations and Analysis Division (IOAD) at Headquarters and Regional Enforcement and Intelligence Divisions (E&I) are working with domestic and U.S. partners to monitor threats.

- The IOAD and Border Operations Centre (BOC) participated in teleconference with Transport Canada, the Government Operations Centre, US Customs and Border Protection, Public Safety, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the Ontario Provincial Police, the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, US Transportation Security Administration, bridge operators, and railways to share unclassified intelligence about the planned protests. (A)
- Pacific Region E&I met with US Customs and Border Protection, and CBSA Port of Entry Operations to review intelligence and discuss operational and communication plans. (A)
- Québec Region E&I has consulted with local partners, including the Autochtone l'Unité mixte d'enquête sur le crime organisé (UMECO-A) and the Valleyfield Integrated Border Enforcement Team to assess whether protest activity can be expected at Ports of Entry in their Region. (A)
- Northern Ontario Region E&I attended a meeting of between 40 and 50 representatives from the CBSA, Ontario Provincial Police, RCMP, Cornwall Community Police Service, US Customs and Border Protection, US Border Patrol, US Coast Guard, Akwesasne Mohawk Police, Sûreté du Québec, and Canadian Security and Intelligence Service. (A)
- Southern Ontario Region E&I have had discussions with local police, the RCMP, the Ontario Provincial Police, and US Customs and Border Protection. (A)

[1] "Idle No More movement grows as situation 'becoming more volatile'," National Post, January 3, 2013.

[redacted]

- Atlantic Region E&I has consulted with the RCMP and has developed plans to have an Intelligence Officer embedded at the Woodstock Port of Entry and an Intelligence Manager embedded with the RCMP's incident command. (A)
- Prairie Region E&I has been in communication with US Customs and Border Protection and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. (A)

The IOAD is continuing to host daily teleconferences with Regional Enforcement and Intelligence, the Border Operations Centre, and Border Operations Directorate to discuss intelligence relating to this threats. (A)

A further update of this Threat Assessment will be provided on Friday, January 4, 2013. (A)

Correction:

The Threat Assessment dated 2012-12-31 erroneously identified Sault Ste. Marie as the site of a protest by 250 – 300 demonstrators. The protests occurred at the Fort Frances Port of Entry, adjacent to the Fort Frances / International Falls border crossing.

Threat Assessment: Planned Border Blockade - January 5, 2013

Key Findings

- The Idle No More protest movement involving domestic First Nations activists and their supporters has called for a national blockade of the border on January 5, 2013.[2] Activity on social networking sites indicates that groups are planning a variety of protest activities at various border crossings on January 5. (U)

- Although a nationwide blockage of Canadian Ports of Entry is unlikely, there is a high probability of isolated protest activity at some Ports of Entry in Pacific, Southern Ontario, Northern Ontario and Atlantic Regions. These activities could include protests, rallies, demonstrations of traditional First Nations activities, traffic disruptions, and temporary blockades of border crossings or arteries leading to and from ports of entry. (A)

- The call for a border blockade is part of a series of ongoing protests, rallies and blockades being conducted under the Idle No More banner. The movement is organized through social media, is fractured, and lacks centralized leadership, making it difficult to accurately assess the movement's capacity and intent to carry out specific actions. The movement is seen as having gained momentum since first appearing in November 2012 and will likely sustain that momentum through January. (A)

- There is currently no credible intelligence to indicate that activities conducted under the Idle No More banner will be violent or extremist in nature; however, the fluid nature of the movement presents a number of risk factors that could change the dynamic of these protests and increase the risk of violence. (A)

[2] On Friday, December 28, 2012, messages began circulating on social media sites such as Twitter and Facebook purporting to be from the original organizers of the Border Blockade. The message stated that the border blockades were not supported by the Turtle Island Movement nor by Attawapiskat First Nation Chief Theresa Spence, and that out of respect for her, the call for a border blockade was canceled and the Facebook page creating the event was deleted. Over the weekend, a number of new Facebook pages have emerged continuing the call for a border blockade on January 5, 2013. As of Sunday, December 30, 2012, a number of postings on Twitter and Facebook confirm that plans are continuing for protests, rallies and blockades at a number of border crossings.

CBSA ASFC

BACKGROUND:

The Idle No More movement began in November 2012 as a First Nation protest of the government's omnibus bill C-45, which it claims infringes on a number of historical treaty rights. The movement has broadened its focus and is now calling for peaceful acts of protests to encourage dialogue on indigenous rights. Following the example of other mass movements such as "Occupy", Idle No More uses social media such as Twitter to convey its message and to encourage its supporters to take action. The movement is highly decentralized, lacking a structured leadership and planning organization. Although there is no official spokesperson for the Idle No More movement, its supporters have coalesced around Attawapiskat First Nation Chief Theresa Spence. (U)

Idle No More's lack of structure makes it difficult to accurately assess the direction the movement will take, its intentions, and its capacity to carry out specific protest activities in support of its cause, such as the border blockade. The decentralized nature of the movement also makes it vulnerable to usurpation by groups or individuals insistent on escalating the movement to a more confrontational or violent posture. (A)

On December 21, 2012, a message was circulated by various social media and posted on a number of websites purporting to have been issued by the Turtle Island Movement, calling for the peaceful blockade of all border crossings in Canada in solidarity with the Idle No More movement, and in protest of the Government of Canada's passage of legislation perceived as negatively impacting First Nations, and Canadian citizens. The message read: (U)

> We are calling for ALL border crossings to be shut down on January 5, 2013, to show the government that we are willing to escalate this to a point where we shut down the country. The reason Turtle Island Movement has called for a peaceful blockade of the borders in Canada is in solidarity of the idle no more movements happening all across Canada and America.
> Currently the Harper government is pushing bills through the Senate that affect not only the First Nations but also Canadian citizens. The general idea is to accomplish worldwide attention to the injustices happening to the First Nations and citizens of Canada - while also effecting the Canadian governments economy. We humbly ask you to share the event and spread the word of our peaceful gathering.

A Facebook page was also created to organize the protests, and as of Friday, December 28, 2012, had over 4,000 people indicating they would participate in the border blockade. (U)

On Friday, December 28, 2012, a second message was circulated to call off the border blockade, noting that neither the Turtle Island Movement nor its leadership supported the blockade. The Facebook page was also deleted. (U)

[redacted]

CBSA ASFC

Since then and despite the apparent cancellation of the border blockade, a number of social media sites have been created to take over planning of protests, rallies, and blockades at border crossings on January 5, 2013. Monitoring of these sites over the weekend has identified specific plans for unspecified protest activities at Peace Arch Park (British Columbia), the Coho Ferry Terminal (BC), the Woodstock / Houlton border crossing (New Brunswick), Akwesasne/Cornwall (Ontario), Peace Bridge (Ontario), and Niagara Falls (Ontario). (A)

The Idle No More movement has demonstrated significant momentum, with over 200 peaceful protest activities carried out in its name, throughout Canada, and in the United States, Europe, Central America, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa. The most significant ongoing protests are a hunger strike by Attawapiskat First Nation Chief Theresa Spence and an ongoing blockade of a Canadian National railway spur line near Sarnia, Ontario. Other examples of protests under the Idle No More banner include: (U)

- On December 30, protestors blocked the main Via Rail artery between Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa for approximately two hours, disrupting travel for approximately 1,000 passengers
- On December 30, demonstrators conducted a ceremonial protest outside of the CBSA office at the Walpole Island Port of Entry; a second peaceful demonstration occurred without incident as protestors disembarked the ferry in the evening and cleared through the Port of Entry
- On December 30, approximately 12 demonstrators handed out pamphlets to travelers exiting the Sault Ste. Marie Port of Entry
- On December 27, demonstrators temporarily blockaded the highway and train tracks through Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario
- On December 24, demonstrators protested at City Hall in Sarnia, Ontario and temporarily blocked traffic on Highway 402
- On December 23, 400 demonstrators protested at the Vancouver Art Gallery
- On December 22, 200 demonstrators protested at City Hall in Hamilton, Ontario
- On December 21, between 250 and 300 demonstrators briefly delayed traffic entering and exiting the Fort Frances Port of Entry
- On December 21, demonstrators blocked roads in Fredericton, New Brunswick and staged demonstrations throughout New Brunswick
- On December 21, demonstrators protested at various locations in Winnipeg, Manitoba and slowed traffic to and from the Winnipeg-Richardson Airport by blocking a single lane of traffic
- On December 21, 1,000 demonstrators protested on Parliament Hill in Ottawa, Ontario
- On December 20, demonstrators blocked highway 63 in Ft. McMurray, Alberta
- Between December 17 and 20, demonstrators participated in flash mobs in Saskatoon and Edmonton

Idle No More has gained support from other similar mass movements, including Occupy Canada and Council for Canadians. The Occupy Canada Facebook page is currently being used to organize activities and provide updates on Idle No More activities. The Council for Canadians has called on its supporters to participate in Idle No More actions. (U)

CBSA ASFC

ASSESSMENT:

The Idle No More movement has significant momentum that is expected to continue through January 5. It has demonstrated the capacity to mobilize large numbers of people to attend protest activities since mid-December. (A)

Despite the official cancellation of the border blockade by its original planners, the continued planning of border-related activities on social media websites demonstrates an ongoing intent to stage demonstrations at targeted border crossings on January 5. (A)

The combined demonstrated capacity and intent of Idle No More protesters makes it likely that organized protest activities will be staged at the limited number of border crossings identified in the attached matrix. These protests will likely be well organized and attended and are the most likely to impact border operations. There is also a risk, based on the pattern of planning and deployment used to date, that smaller protests may also be staged at other Ports of Entry with little warning. These protests will be less well attended and will have little or no impact on border operations. (A)

Current planning calls for peaceful demonstrations at border crossings, as opposed to blockades. However, supporters of the original plan to blockade the border are still indicating plans to participate and, as the rallies are staged, there is a risk that they could evolve into blockades of the border or traffic arteries leading to and from ports of entry. Based on the current pattern of blockade activity, it is anticipated that any blockades will not last longer than the day. (A)

Ports of Entry affected by the Idle No More protest activities may observe a range of activities, including: (A)

- Ceremonial demonstrations near Ports of Entry
- Rallies in public spaces near Ports of Entry
- Flash mobs
- Marches
- Movements of large numbers of demonstrators through Ports of Entry
- Partial to complete blockades of traffic arteries to and from Ports of Entry
- Partial to complete blockades of traffic at Ports of Entry

Although the Idle No More movement advocates peaceful protests, there are a number of risk factors that could cause border protest activities to escalate: (A)

- The broad-based nature of the movement attracts people with a variety of grievances, goals, and viewpoints on how to achieve the goals. There is a risk that small groups of supporters will seek to escalate activities beyond peaceful protest; evidence of this is seen in some of the statements appearing on social networking websites. There is also a risk that uninvited agitators will use planned protest activities to incite violence. (A)

- Although to date Idle No More activities have been carried out peacefully, there is a risk that this stance could change should there be perceived provocations such as the enforcement of a court injunction at the CN blockade near Sarnia, or a change in the condition of Chief Spence as a result of a prolonged hunger strike. (A)

- Should a border crossing be blockaded, there is a risk that affected travelers will become frustrated and become confrontational with demonstrators, increasing the risk of violence. (A)

IMPLICATION FOR THE CBSA:

Since supporters of Idle No More first called for a border blockade, the idea has gained a widespread and persistent following on social networking sites. This following has persisted despite cancellation of the original call to blockade the border. Given the movement's momentum, it is probable that CBSA operations at border crossings will be affected by activities carried out under the Idle No More banner on January 5, 2013. Although these activities will most probably be peaceful, resulting in at most traffic slow-downs or temporary blockades, there are risk factors that could see such activities escalate. (A)

The focus is on grassroots voices, treaty and sovereignty;

The National Day of Solidarity & Resurgence was called for December 10th, 2012, to oppose all legislation and to build solidarity while asserting inherent rights and nationhood while protecting the lands for all people.

Bill C 45:

C-45 is a large omnibus bill implementing numerous measures, many of which activists claim weaken environmental protection laws. The First Nationspeople believe that Bill C 45 is not just about a budget, it is a direct attack on First Nations lands and on the bodies of water that they all share from across this country. In particular, laws protecting all of the country's navigable waterways were limited in scope to protect only a few waterways of practical importance for navigation. Many of the affected waterways pass through land reserved to First Nations.The Bill brings forward changes specifically to the Indian Act that will lower the threshold of community consent in the designation and surrender process of Indian Reserve Lands.

When Bill C45 was brought to the House of Commons for a vote, First Nations leaders joined the efforts against Bill C 45 and went to Parliament Hill where they were invited into the House of Commons by the New Democratic Party. However, they were refused entry. This refusal to allow First Nations leadership to respectfully enter the House of Commons triggered an even greater mobilization of First Nations people across the country.

Other legislation on its way through the legislative process that will directly affect First Nations people:

Bill C-27 First Nations Financial Transparency Act
Bill S-2 Family Homes on Reserve and Matrimonial Interests or Right Act
Bill S-6 First Nations Elections Act
Bill S-8 Safe Drinking Water for First Nations
Bill C-428 Indian Act Amendment and Replacement Act
Bill S-207 an Act to amend the Interpretation Act
Bill S-212 First Nations Self-Government Recognition Bill and the "First Nations" Private Ownership Act

First Nations people believe that all of these Bills are in direct violation of Article 18, 19 &20 of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples.

In reference:

Article 18:Indigenous peoples have the right to participate in decision-making in matters which would affect their rights, through representatives chosen by themselves in accordance with their own procedures, as well as to maintain and develop their own indigenous decision- making institutions.

Article 19: States shall consult and cooperate in good faith with the indigenous peoples concerned through their own representative institutions in order to obtain their free, prior and informed consent before adopting and implementing legislative or administrative measures that may affect them.

Article 20:

a) Indigenous peoples have the right to maintain and develop their political, economic and social systems or institutions, to be secure in the enjoyment of their own means of subsistence and development, and to engage freely in all their traditional and other economic activities.

b) Indigenous peoples deprived of their means of subsistence and developments are entitled to just and fair redress.

Some other Articles for Reference:

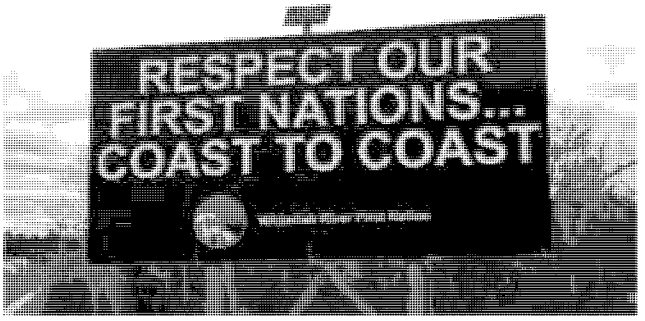
Article 38:States, in consultation and cooperation with indigenous peoples, shall take the appropriate measures, including legislative measures, to achieve the ends of this Declaration.

Mission:

Idle No More calls on all people to join in a revolution which honors and fulfills Indigenous sovereignty which protects the land and water.



On December 10th, Indigenous people and allies stood in solidarity across Canada to assert Indigenous sovereignty and begin the work towards sustainable, renewable development. Idle No More seeks to create solidarity and further support these goals.

Plan of Action:

Support and encourage grassroots to create their own forums to learn more about Indigenous rights and our responsibilities to our Nationhood via teach-ins, rallies and social media.
Build relationships and create understanding with allies across Canada. Take steps to contribute to building relationships with international agencies such as the UN to raise awareness to the conditions Indigenous people have been subjected to and assert our sovereignty in the international arena. Acknowledge and honor the hard work of all grassroots people who have worked, and continue to work towards these goals.

Protest up to date:

The protests started and were timed to coincide with the announcement that Chief Theresa Spence of Attawapiskat was launching a hunger strike to demand a meeting with Prime Minister Harper and the Queen on Aboriginal rights. The Assembly of First Nations then issued an open letter on December 16th, to Governor General David Johnston, calling for a meeting to discuss Spence's demands.

Members of the Sandy Bay First Nations in Manitoba blocked the Trans-Canada Highway.

Members of the Drift pile First Nations also blocked a road on December 18th.

Also onDecember 17th, the Confederacy of Treaty No. 6 First Nations issued a press release saying that they did not recognize the legality of any laws passed by the Government of Canada "including but not limited to Bill C-45, which do not fulfill their constitutionally recognized and affirmed Treaty and Aboriginal rights; as well as the Crown's legal obligations to meaningfully consult and accommodate First Nations."

The group executed their second round dance flash mob in Saskatchewan on December 20th, this time at Midtown Plaza in Saskatoon. 400 people filled the upper and lower levels of the mall for the 10 minutes long flash mob. Also on this day, organizers started gathering people around the Vimy war memorial on the Saskatoon riverbank.

At this time there is a Nation-Wide call by the movement for a peaceful blockade of all Canadian/American border crossings (along with airports) set for January 5th, 2013, in an effort to disturb the Canadian economy.

There is also a local calling (Akwesasne) for a Border Shutdown currently scheduled for January 5th, 2012, between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The local movement are calling for it to start in the United States and then for participants to walk the bridge north to Cornwall Island. Then Canadians will join in and continue to walk the second bridge until reaching Cornwall's traffic circle where they are planning to stop and dance, thus possibly impeding traffic and shutting down the point of Entry.

CONCLUSIONS / FINDINGS

In the previous weeks the Canadian federal government has indicated it will not meet the demand of a meeting with First Nations groups over environmental concerns.Following this decision, Idle No More called on all people to join in a revolution which honors and fulfills Indigenous sovereignty which protects the land and water.

Cornwall CIS with the help of our local partners (CCPS, OPP, CSIS, CBSA, USBP and CBP) are monitoring the movement and the potential blockade.

Writer will add future updates on this Intelligence report as needed.

OUTLOOK / RECOMMENDATIONS

This report is submitted for your perusal and any information your agencies can share with our unit and the Intelligence Community. The goal is to foresee and/or prevent any disruption to a peaceful protest which criminal/extremist groups or lone individual (s) may see as an opportunity to cause concern for public safety.

RCMP "O" DIVISION CRIMINAL INTELLIGENCE PROGRAM INTELLIGENCE BULLETIN
IDLE NO MORE

Date: 2012-12-31
Reference Number: CIB-IB-2012-164

PURPOSE

To provide the RCMP "O" Division Criminal Operations Officer and Senior Management with an overview of the ongoing IDLE NO MORE First Nations-based solidarity movement and its potential impact in Ontario.

ISSUE

The IDLE NO MORE movement has an international following through protests, blockades and border shutdowns.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

The IDLE NO MORE movement emerged on December 10, 2012, during the National Day of Solidarity & Resurgence. A number of rallies were held nation-wide to oppose Bill C45 which aims to amend the Indian Act. Changes to the Indian Act would make it easier to sell reserve lands to non-natives. Indigenous people claim that selling reserve land to non-Indigenous people will eventually erode their culture, language and sovereignty. The Conservative government claims the Indian Act changes will make it easier to buy or lease reserve land.

Bill C45 also changes the Navigable Waters Act which affects waterways in First Nations territories and throughout Canada which has prompted environmentalists to join in the IDLE NO MORE movement. First Nations leaders complain that Bill C45 was created without consultation with the First Nations people and therefore in violation of their treaty rights. Treaty nine states that no claim to native land can be made without consent from their tribe and government Attawapiskat Chief, Theresa Spence, began a hunger strike on December 11, 2012 when she pitched a tent on Victoria Island in the Ottawa River. She is only drinking fluids in the morning and at night and claims she will starve herself to death if the Prime Minster doesn't meet with her to discuss First Nations issues and sovereignty. The IDLE NO MORE movement and Theresa Spence have gained support from Justin Trudeau, Marc Garneau, religious groups, several major unions and academics.

The IDLE NO MORE organizers encourage all Canadians to join in the movement. Social media outlets Twitter and Facebook have helped the movement gain momentum on both a national and international scope. Protests and demonstrations have expanded beyond Canada to various locations including Oklahoma, Michigan, and Ohio, as well as European nations such as The Netherlands.

CURRENT STATUS

In recent days there have been several blockades of CN Railways and highways:

Sarnia Blockade (ONGOING)

As of 2012-12-30, the blockade continues. The estimated number of participants ranges from 4 to 10. CN Police and Sarnia PD have a second injunction signed to remove the protestors from the site, but are discussing the best way to resolve the situation given the potential spin off.

Protests have been peaceful so far,

Deseronto /Tyendinaga Blockade

On 2012-12-30 the Wyman Road crossing in Deseronto, Ontario was blocked for approximately 4 hours.

There were 10 to 12 protestors,

Sault Ste. Marie Blockade

On 2012-12-27, there was a transportation blockade where Trans Canada Hwy #17 intersects with Hwy 17B as it comes into Sault Ste. Marie area and through the Garden River First Nations Reserve.

Espanola Blockade

On 2012-12-27, there was a transportation blockade of rail line planned near Whitefish First Nations reserve.

Additional protest activities have been planned or occurred in numerous other Ontario cities including Fort Erie (Peace Bridge), Thunder Bay, Toronto, St Catharines, Sudbury, Ottawa, Cornwall, and Hamilton.

After 24 days, hunger striker Spence wants action from Ottawa within 72 hours (http://www.thespec.com/news/canada/article/864026--after-24-days-hunger-striker-spence-wants-action-from-ottawa-within-72-hours) Jan 03, 2013 Attawapiskat chief's health is failing; pressure on to address treaty rights concerns

Local supporters of the Idle No More movement are staging a march on Highway 403 in Hamilton Saturday afternoon.

It's one of a number of protests planned for Jan. 5 across the country, including at the Queenston/Lewiston bridge and the Peace Bridge between Fort Erie and Buffalo.

The grassroots movement broke out last month in support of Attawapiskat First Nation Chief Theresa Spence's hunger strike in Ottawa. She wants a meeting with Prime Minister Stephen Harper to address disparities between First Nations and the rest of Canada.

Meanwhile, protesters are expected to greet Harper Friday when he visits the Ford plant in Oakville to make an announcement with Oakville MP Terence Young and Labour Minister and Halton MP Lisa Raitt. Protesters are planning to congregate at the plant at 10 a.m. The prime minister is set to take part in a photo opportunity at 11:45 a.m. and the announcement at noon.

Organizers of the Saturday event held a community information meeting Thursday night at the Aboriginal Health Access Centre to brainstorm. The plan is to gather at 1 p.m. at the Dundurn Plaza, between Main Street West and King Street West.

The event will see marchers travel down the King Street West ramp onto Highway 403. They will leave at the Aberdeen Avenue exit and head back to the plaza via Longwood Road and Main Street West. It is not known how many will attend, but a Facebook page Thursday night indicated more than 2,000 people had been invited, 212 said they were going and 115 replied as maybes.

Amanda Dale, a co-ordinator of the local movement, said the OPP are working with the group. There was talk of blocking the highway, but Dale said "the preference is to gain attention and to gain friendship so we can help them understand what is happening in their own country. Our point is join us. We are trying to inform Canadians."

Subject: Article in Cornwall Standard Freeholder FYI

http://www.standard-freeholder.com/2013/01/03/march-across-bridge-about-solidarity-peace

Akwesasne residents haven't been idle, with hundreds in the community joining protests, discussions and rallies near and far as part of the Idle No More campaign.

The movement mobbed Cornwall Dec. 21 with a round dance flash mob at Cornwall Square and will be making a mark locally once again Saturday with a rally at the border.

Hundreds of supporters from Akwesasne, nearby reserves and Occupy New York are expected to gather at the south end of the International Bridge Saturday morning and march across.

The movement is about "solidarity" and "peace," said Kanentakwas David, who helped organize the flash mob. "All nations coming together."

Idle No More grew out of concern over the omnibus budget bill, which changed regulation of waterways, as well as concern that companies can more easily buy reserve land.

First Nations groups have said they were not consulted on legislative changes.

"A lot of it has to do with the water and the land . . . because the water isn't going to be protected anymore. And this doesn't just affect indigenous people, it affects all of Canada," said David.
David said dozens of Akwesasne youth have taken up this cause, speaking out and taking action.
She added that she would like to see Cornwall residents join the Akwesasne community in the cause.
Communities around the world have joined as well, holding Idle No More rallies in support.

David said she traveled to Niagara Falls on New Year's Eve, where the group got a shout out from singer Nelly Furtado.

A busload also headed up to Ottawa Dec. 21 to join 40,000 other Canadians marching in solidarity.
Several international border crossings are expected to see rallies Saturday, including the Peace Arch crossing in Surrey, B.C. and a crossing at the Maine-New Brunswick border.

More disruptive blockades have hit some communities.

The CN line in Sarnia was blocked for 13 days and stopped VIA Rail trains Sunday in Napanee for four hours.

January 4, 2013
Ottawa, Ontario

Prime Minister Stephen Harper today issued the following statement on a planned meeting with a delegation of First Nations leaders coordinated by the Assembly of First Nations:
"On January 24, 2012, I was pleased to participate in the historic Crown-First Nations Gathering. On that day, the Government of Canada and First Nations committed to making progress in the following areas:
Improving relationships and strong partnerships between Canada and First Nations respectful of Aboriginal and Treaty rights as recognized and affirmed in the Constitution Act, 1982;
Building effective, appropriate, transparent and fully accountable governance structures;
Empowering success of individuals through access to education and opportunity;
Enabling strong, sustainable, and self-sufficient communities;
Creating conditions to accelerate economic development opportunities and maximize benefits for all Canadians;
Respecting the role of First Nations' culture and language in our history and future.

"The Government and First Nations committed at the Gathering to maintaining the relationship through an ongoing dialogue that outlines clear goals and measures of progress and success. While some progress has been made, there is more that must be done to improve outcomes for First Nations communities across Canada.
"It is in this spirit of ongoing dialogue that, together with Minister Duncan, I will be participating in a working meeting with a delegation of First Nations leaders coordinated by the Assembly of First Nations on January 11, 2013. This working meeting will focus on two areas flowing from the Gathering: the treaty relationship and aboriginal rights, and economic development.
"The Government of Canada and First Nations have an enduring historic relationship based on mutual respect, friendship and support. The Government of Canada is committed to strengthening this relationship."The Prime Minister's Office - Communications

Tim,

FYI, CAPS is looking after further redistribution of the daily sit rep after it is sent to D/Comm Lang and Mike Lesage. I was told that NOC is forwarding the sit rep to the CROPS, so it should hopefully be making its way down the chain to the DCAS. As long as the distribution stays within the RCMP.

Warren,

As per our conversation this afternoon, I forwarded a copy of Jan 2 and Jan 3 situation report to Tim O'Neil in CIIT. He has come back asking to share with national security across Canada.

Please advise on next steps.

In light of this afternoon's discussion, it was reiterated that the report is compiled for senior management situational awareness, and obviously senior management can further disseminate to their discretion. However, if national security across Canada is going to be recipients of this document, that might cause the Divisional Criminal Analytical sections/Criminal Intelligence sections to question why this document is not being distributed to them in a similar fashion. The exception is that Heather Lewis in O Div DCAS asked for our assistance in assisting her prepare to brief the O Div CROPS, and we provided her with copies of the sit reps to that date.

Warren,

We have received a request from CIIT for a copy of our daily sit reps. This issue was raised earlier by Scott Foster. Carrie Ann informed Scott that the daily sit rep covered events of the day, and anticipated in the next 24 hours only. Yesterday's report was the first that ventured into events before the next 24. No arrangements were previously made with CIIT to share info.

Please advise if you wish CIIT to be included on the distribution list.

Carrie Ann, we had a meeting with CAPS this morning during which we agreed that to the greatest extent possible they should be the (as in single) point of dissemination. We are still awaiting confirmation that there will be an Idle No More mailbox set up.

Once confirmed CAPS will be sending out the message to the Divisions advising each to send their emails to that address. At the same time it would make sense to explain that CAPS will disseminate to CROPs who would be responsible for distribution within the Division. That will avoid having multiple HQ sources sending out info. to the Divisions. (At least that is the tentative plan)

Good morning Carrie,

As mentioned in my voicemail, I am an Intelligence Advisor at CBSA and am the point-person in our Intelligence Operations and Analysis Division for the planned border blockade that is scheduled to happen on Saturday.

We have been in contact (through Josée Therrien) with Tim O'Neil who provided us with a brief on the Force's current stance. Should that change and a threat assessment be produced, we would very much appreciate receiving a copy of that.

In the meantime, we have produced a Threat Assessment dealing specifically with the threatened border blockade. I have attached a copy of that document for your information and limited dissemination within the RCMP.

If you have any questions, or would like to discuss, my phone number is 613-952-4042.

Hello Lori,

This is the translation of the Quebec Jan 4 events from the C Div Sit Rep.

For your spreadsheet.
Christine

Compilation from C Division Jan 04 Sit Rep

Jan 4, 2013

Maria (Gesgapédiac Reserve)

Members of the Gesgapédiac Micmac community continued to protest along a portion of route 132. A previous blockade of the road was lifted on January 3, 2013.

Maniwaki

A blockade of route 117 was scheduled at KM 322 by members of the Kitigan Zibi reserve.

Pointe à la Croix / Restigouche

A blockade of the rail road continued for freight trains while passenger trains were allowed to travel through the area.

Temiscamingue

Organized march scheduled at unspecified locations in the city.

Kingston Montreal Via Rail Line

Possible blockade by members of Tyendinaga FN of the VIA Rail line between Toronto and Montreal. This would impact VIA rail and freight trains along that portion of the line.

Roberval

Manifestation scheduled at Boulevard Saint-Joseph by the building of the Minister of Transportation, Infrastructure and Communities and Canada Economic Development Agency, Mr. Denis Lebel.

Quebec

Flash-mobs scheduled at Quebec City shopping malls: Place Laurier and Galeries de la capitale.

Next 5-10 days:

Montreal

Members of the Kahnawake Mohawk FN are possibly organizing the following in the next 5-10 days:

- blockade of Mercier Bridge
- March toward Ottawa starting from the Wendake Huron Reserve
- Protest at Quebec City public place Carré D'Youville (Jan. 11, 2013)

CONTEXTE

De nombreux rapports et médias sociaux font état de mouvement de protestations en appui au mouvement autochtone Idle No More. Ce rapport se veut un récapitulatif des actions en cours ainsi qu'annoncées sur le territoire québécois, cela dans un but informatif et pour la sécurité de la population et des forces de l'ordre (PROS 2012-1617463). Il importe de mettre en garde que les événements peuvent changer rapidement et devenir obsolètes.

ÉVÉNEMENTS

Les informations nous indiquent un total de 4 événements organisés pour le 4 janvier 2013. Ces actions incluent un blocage de pont et de routes ainsi qu'une manifestation piétonnière.

LE 4 JANVIER 2013

Heure	Endroit	Description	Participation
Inconnue	Maria, QC (réserve Gesgapédiac)	La communauté micmaque de Gesgapédiac a complètement bloqué la route 132 depuis le 2 janvier 2013 alors qu'une voie était fermée depuis le 31 décembre 2012. Le ministère des Tansports du Québec (MTQ) a prévu une voie de contournement. Le blocage a été levé le 3 janvier mais des manifestations se poursuivent.	10 à 30 participants
Inconnue	Maniwaki, QC (réserve Kitigan Zibi, parc de La Vérendrye)	Blocage d'une durée d'une heure de la route 117 prévu au km 322 (dans le parc de La Vérendrye) par la communauté algonquine de Kitigan Zibi. Aucun manifestant encore sur les lieux mais le même groupe avait bloqué la route 105 le 30 décembre dernier.	Inconnue
Inconnue	Pointe-à-la-Croix / Restigouche / Listuguj, QC	Un blocage de la voie ferrée est toujours en cours, et ce, depuis le 28 décembre 2012. Les manifestants laissent passer les trains de passagers mais bloquent toujours les trains de marchandises. Selon certaines sources, les manifestants ont suffisamment de bois de chauffage pour résister jusqu'au printemps.	Inconnue
14h	Témiscamingue	Marche de protestation prévue dans les rues de la ville (sans plus de précision).	Inconnue

Il avait été question d'initier un mouvement national de blocages des points d'entrée à la frontière canado-américaine le 5 janvier 2013 mais certains ont été annulés (particulièrement au Manitoba) à la demande de la chef Spence qui tenait à se distancer du mouvement Idle No More ou de toutes actions violentes. Les mouvements de protestation se veulent pacifiques.

LE 5 JANVIER 2013

Heure	Endroit	Description	Participation
Inconnue	Kingston, ON Montréal, QC	Blocage possible par la communauté Tyendinaga de la ligne ferroviaire entre Toronto et Montréal qui causerait une perturbation de la circulation ferroviaire pour VIA et les trains de marchandises du CN. Des blocages avaient précédemment été organisés à cet endroit en décembre.	Inconnue
13h30-15h30	Québec, QC	Mobilisation- éclair (de son expression anglophone flash mob) prévue à la Place Laurier vers 13h30 jusqu'à 13h50. Une autre est prévue plus tard aux Galeries de la Capitale. Ce type d'événements avait déjà eu lieu le 28 décembre 2012 à Montréal.	Inconnue
14h-16h	Maria, QC (réserve Gesgapédiac)	Marche contre le projet de loi C-45 partant du Conseil de bande (100 boul. Perron) pour se rendre dans un parc (non précisé) où il y aura une allocution. MTQ va prévoir une voie de contournement.	200 participants attendus

Le projet de bloquer la frontière dans la région d'Akwesasne semble toujours en cours pour le 5 janvier 2013, entre 10h et 14h. La manifestation doit débuter aux États-Unis et traverser le pont *Three Nations Crossing Bridg*e au nord de l'île de Cornwall pour se rendre au point d'entrée du Pont Seaway et bloquer toute circulation.

De plus, certains leaders autochtones ont annoncé le lancement d'une vaste campagne de perturbations économiques et de blocages de voies ferroviaires et routières dès le 1er janvier 2013 avec une intensification à la mi-janvier. Il a également été question de lancement de pétitions et de rassemblements devant des bureaux ministériels.

Il aurait également été question de fermer complètement le Pont Mercier d'ici les 5 à 10 prochains jours par la communauté mohawk de Kahnawake dans la région métropolitaine, d'une marche vers Ottawa à partir de la réserve huronne de Wendake et d'une manifestation au Carré D'Youville dans la région de la capitale québécoise (prévue pour le 11 janvier 2013).

Christine,

Could you please review the info from the Idle No More box, especially the new things, and let me know of significant events for today? I'm currently looking list of events and it is very long. I also still have about 24 e-mails in my box from late yesterday that I haven't looked at either.

The e-mails I forwarded to the Idle No More box earlier this morning, I have not yet reviewed either.
Thanks

Cornwall: Cornwall bridge to U.S.

Cornwall police say they are closing the International Bridge Saturday morning in response to an Idle No More protest planned for 10 a.m

Fort Frances/International Falls

Solidarity Protest on U.S. side of the Ft. Frances / International Falls border crossing. Expecting Canadian residents to cross into the US to attend the protest and return in the evening. Possible protest to be staged on Canadian side near the Fort Frances Port of Entry. Reports now indicating that demonstrators will attempt to close the bridge for an unknown period of time. (Source CBSA Jan 05 Sit Rep)

Protest expected to close Blue Water Bridge

The Blue Water Bridge is expected to be closed to motorists between noon and 1 p.m. Saturday because of a protest. Idle No More, a movement of First Nations, said it will block international border crossings in protest of the Canadian federal government's neglect of the groups. Ron Plain, spokesperson for the Aamjiwnaang First Nation, which started a blockade of the CN railroad in Sarnia on Dec. 21, said he thinks the international border blockades will deliver a clear message. The Times Herald (Port Huron, MI)

As of 10:25 EST, approximately 100 people and 50 cars are now at the First Nations memorial (underneath the Blue Water Bridge near the St. Clair River). There are no impacts to bridge operations at this time. Media crews are reported to being on site. (Source: Transport Canada, Ontario Region)

Fort Erie/Buffalo Peace Bridge Saturday

Niagara's Idle No More movement will spread its message on the Peace Bridge Saturday. The grassroots movement, part of a national campaign to raise awareness about Canadian legislation affecting government's infringement on Indigenous land and rights, will march to the middle of the bridge starting at 1 p.m. Niagara Falls Review

Hi Cindy,

We are compiling information in regards to the various protests happening throughout Canada and providing that to our senior management here at HQ for their situational awareness. We are mindful that the report contains third party information, as we are getting information from our external partners. We are compiling information only; there is no analysis nor are there judgements contained in the document. The report is not intended for distribution outside the RCMP.

Does this alleviate any concerns? If you have concerns, please let me know.

CN obtained an Injunction through the Moncton Court of Queens Bench late this afternoon. The Injunction was served by a third party about an hour ago. The protesters removed the barricade and left the area. There is no clear indication of their intentions for tomorrow.

RCMP members on site were not required to intervene; the protest was peaceful for its duration.

Initially, their plans were to protest during the day onlyj over a period of four days. So, they could be following this plan.

We will have our members periodically check this location to determine if the protesters return. CN police are keeping a presence on site.

Members from Richibucto District will be contacting the protest leader from Elsipogtog First Nation to find out their plans for tomorrow.

Have a good evening.

PROS 2012 1642112
ABORIGINAL PROTEST - RAILWAY BLOCKADE

ISSUE:

• To inform of a protest movement by Elsipogtog First Nations in District 5, which is aimed at blocking the CN Railway for seven days.

BACKGROUND:

• Earlier today, a group of protesters set up to block a portion of the CN Railway parallel to Route 126 in Adamsville, 50 kilometres north of Moncton.

• This is a continuation of the Idle No More Protest in Rexton on December 21st to December 24th where Aboriginal protesters blocked Route11 for 4 days.

CURRENT STATUS:

• Protesters, are communicating openly with the RCMP and plan to protest peacefully 24 hours a day, each day.

• Additional resources are being deployed to assist with highway and railway safety concerns and general security. This resource will be maintained until the situation is resolved..

Hello Laurie,

Sorry for this occurring. You should have received it through the DIO first as it is a CI product, and not through NSIS. I have included in this email Lori, who is currently authoring the sit reps and my manager, However, in the mean time, the PROS # where the sit reps are being uploaded is 2012-1617463. You should be able to retrieve them there.

Carrie Ann,

FYI...This is the only thing we have going on in New Brunswick currently. Information at one time indicated that there would be a blockade at the Woodstock-Houlton border on the Canadian side on 2013-01-05. The majority of information has indicated that this has been canceled, although there is still some information that continue to show this event. There has also been information that there will be a blockade at the same border, however on the US side. CBSA has been following this.

Please be advised of the following events taking place in the NWT:

A blockage of the Deh Cho bridge is scheduled for 13-01-05 at 1400. The blockage is expected to last for one hour. The event is being organized out of Fort Providence. The Department of Highways(has been advised of the situation and are in the process of putting a plan in place.

Late last night we received information that a group are planning to block highway 3 going though by the community on Saturday January 5, 2013, at @1400hrs. The local RCMP detachment is aware of the situation and are communicating with the organizers.

We have resources in place to deal with both events.

We're presently in the process of preparing a media release to deal with the delays on the highways.

RCMP
ROYAL CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE

Executive Summary

•"Idle No More" organization publicly stated their intent to protest at the Victoria COHO ferry terminal on January 5th, 2013.

•Protest activity is assessed to include; drumming, singing, dancing and social awareness.

•The nature and demeanor of the planned protest in Victoria is assessed to be peaceful and lawful.

•The Idle No More group remains independent of aboriginal leadership in Ottawa.

RCMP ROYAL CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE

Background 'Idle No More' movement.

1. The "Idle No More" movement is a leaderless organization using web technologies and social media like IRC, Facebook, Twitter, and Meetup to coordinate civil resistance, which is political action that relies on the use of non-violent methods by civil groups to challenge a particular power, force, policy or regime. "Idle No More" is part of a larger indigenous movement that is purposefully distanced from political and corporate influence. There is no elected leader, no paid executive director, and no hierarchy that determines what any person or First Nation can and can not do. The "Idle No More" movement protests are opposing the omnibus Bill C-45 introduced by the Conservative Government.

2. There are indications that individuals intend to participate in a protest directed at Victoria BC, COHO ferry facility, on January 05, 2013. The nature of this participation is assessed to be peaceful and lawful:

3. Other Indigenous movements in Canada, in support of "Idle no More", have called for all border crossings in Canada to be shut down on January 5th, 2013. We asses this as Highly Unlikely to occur.

RCMP ROYAL CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE

Assessment

5. RCMP MSOC(W) assesses that "Idle No More" supporters in Victoria will likely participate in the protest at the Victoria COHO ferry terminal. The nature of this participation is assessed to be peaceful and lawful.

6. It is assessed that the "Idle No More" movement would not be able to muster more than 300 persons at the moment due to the leaderless state of the organization . The group continues to deliberate the future of the movement. It is probable that the "Idle No More" movement at this time would not be able to support more than 100 persons on January 5, 2013 for overt action at the port of Victoria .

7. Due to the fluid and dynamic nature of the "Idle No More" movement the possibility of an individual actor participating in violence cannot be excluded.

8. RCMP MSOC(W) assesses that the B.C Ferry systems will not be affected or targeted on January 5, 2013.

THREAT of a Port of Victoria shutdown is NEGLIGIBLE

Negligible: A vessel / individual/ organization has been identified that could have hostile intention, but are highly unlikely to have the capability to carry out the defined threat. It is unlikely that this threat will manifest itself.

Situation Report

Incident Number: ST122-12H

Incident: First Nations Protests

Date: Information valid as of 04 Jan 2013, 16:30 (HNE)

Description of current incident: A number of First Nations (FN) Protests are occurring as a result of a grassroots campaign called "Idle No More" which is protesting Bill C-45, the government's omnibus budget legislation.

Source(s) of reporting: Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada, PS Regional Offices, ON Ministry of Transportation (MTO), New Brunswick Department of Public Safety, Transport Canada, Canada Border Services Agency, media/open source reporting.

Current actions: GOC is monitoring the situation and has established contact with key partners in order to maintain cohesive information sharing.

Event management of the protests falls under the purview of local jurisdictions and local law enforcement agencies, as appropriate.

On 04 Jan, the Prime Minister announced he will be meeting with a delegation of FN leaders, coordinated by the Assembly of First Nations (AFN), on 11 Jan. The meeting will include the AANDC Minister and focus on two areas: 1) the treaty relationship and aboriginal rights and 2) economic development. Media reporting indicates Chief Spence will take part in the meeting.

The protest activities are dynamic in nature and subject to change. At this time, the GOC is aware of the following "Idle No More" related protest activities planned for 05 Jan 2013.

Protest Events (Possible Disruptions)

Ontario

- 11:00 – 14:00 EST at Fort Erie. The Peace Bridge Border blockade will occur between 13:00 – 14:00 EST.
- 11:00 EST at Cornwall. Seaway International Bridge blockade.
- 11:00 – 12:00 EST at Sarnia. Blue Water Bridge blockade.
- 13:00 EST in the Hamilton area. Closure of Highway 403 at Main Street.
- Oshawa (Time unknown). Rally at Albert Street over Highway 401.
- Potential protest on the CN Rail Line through Tyendinaga in Eastern ON. Note: Via Rail issued a travel advisory regarding a potential blockade at Marysville.
- Pic River - Marathon (10:00 – 16:00 EST). Rail blockade on CP Railway line at Highway 627.

- Walpole Island Ferry (Time unknown): Protest

New Brunswick
- There is currently a blockade of the CN Rail line near Adamsville, Kent County. The blockade may continue for several days.
- A peaceful protest is taking place near, but not on, Highway 102 (the former TransCanada Highway) – near Kingsclear FN. No end time is indicated.
- Woodstock, NB. Houlton, Maine Border blockade (reportedly cancelled).

Saskatchewan
- 13:00 EST Peaceful Slow Down Barricade on the Trans-Canada Highway. (exact location not yet determined).

Alberta
- 08:00 – 09:00 EST in Hardisty. "Turn off the Taps! blockade at the Pipeline Terminal".

British Columbia
- Douglas Peace Arch 14:00 EST: Peaceful protest to "block the border".
- Rykerts / Porthill 17:00-19:00 EST: Solidarity gathering.
- Coho / Seattle - Victoria Clipper Ferry, Terminal – Victoria, BC 17:30 – 20:30 EST: Peaceful protest / traditional bone game to be played at the entrance / exit of the terminal to coincide with the afternoon arrival of the MV Coho ferry from Port Angeles, Washington.

Northwest Territories
- 12:00 – 13:00 EST at Fort Providence. Highway 3 blockade at the Deh Cho Bridge.

United States
- 11:00 – 12:00 EST at International Falls MN. "Idle No More Solidarity Round Dance International Falls, MN Border Crossing (at Fort Frances, ON).

Other Protest Events

Quebec
- Unknown time in Gaspésie. Protesters from the Gesgapegiag Band Council are planning a march.

Saskatchewan
- 12:00 – 13:00 EST at the White Buffalo Youth Lodge in Saskatoon. "Idle No More Saskatoon Rally".
- 11:00 – 12:00 EST at Buffalo Narrows. Peaceful gathering.

Alberta
- 15:00 – 18:00 EST at the West Edmonton Mall. "Latin@s in Edmonton in Solidarity with Idle No More".

British Columbia
- Osoyoos 16:00 EST: Demonstration to be staged outside the Port of Entry (not expected to impact operations).
- 16:00 – 18:00 EST at Centennial Park, Ganges, Salt Spring Island. Solidarity with First Nations event.

- 17:00 – 18:00 EST at Orchard Park Shopping Centre, Kelowna. Flash Round Dance.

United States
- Presque Isle Mall, Maine (Time unknown). Flash mob drum circle event.

Assessment/Analysis: Although it may have a mitigating effect, it is unclear what implications the 11 Jan meeting between the Prime Minister and FN leaders, including Chief Spence, will have on planned protest activities. To note, some activities planned for 05 Jan have been cancelled as of 04 Jan.

The protests have been peaceful in nature. However, some protests have disrupted rail operations and resulted in delays on various highways.

Departments and Agencies with further information on this incident are asked to report to the GOC.

Additional situation reports: Further situation reports will be issued as significant developments occur.

Additional Products: Geomatics and other products will be attached to a follow-on message.

Rapport de situation

Numéro de l'incident : ST122-12H

Incident : Manifestations des Premières Nations

Date : Renseignements mis à jour le 4 janvier 2013, à 16 h 30 (HNE).

Description de l'incident : Diverses manifestations des Premières nations sont en train de se dérouler dans le cadre d'un mouvement populaire intitulé « Idle No More », qui critique le projet de loi omnibus C-45 du gouvernement portant sur le budget.

Sources des renseignements : Affaires autochtones et Développement du Nord Canada, les bureaux régionaux de Sécurité publique Canada, le ministère des Transports de l'Ontario, le ministère de la Sécurité publique du Nouveau-Brunswick, Transports Canada, l'Agence des services frontaliers du Canada et les médias/sources générales

Mesures en cours : Le COG surveille la situation et est en communication avec des partenaires afin de maintenir un échange d'information cohérent.

La gestion des manifestations relève des autorités et des organismes d'application de la loi locaux, le cas échéant.

Le 4 janvier, le Premier ministre a annoncé qu'il rencontrerait une délégation de chefs des Premières Nations le 11 janvier; l'Assemblée des Premières Nations (APN) va coordonner cette rencontre. La réunion, à laquelle participera le ministre des Affaires autochtones et du Nord canadien, portera, d'une part, sur les relations découlant des traités et les droits autochtones et, d'autre part, sur le développement économique. Les médias ont indiqué que la chef Spence participera à la rencontre.

Les activités associées aux manifestations peuvent changer à tout moment. À l'heure actuelle, selon les informations dont dispose le COG, les activités suivantes sont planifiées le 5 janvier 2013.

Manifestation (perturbations possibles)

Ontario
- 11 h – 14 h (HNE) à Fort Erie. Le passage frontalier du pont Peace sera bloqué de 13 h à 14 h (HNE).
- 11 h (HNE) à Cornwall. Le pont international de la Voie maritime sera bloqué.
- 11 h – 12 h (HNE) à Sarnia. Le pont Blue Water sera bloqué.
- 13 h (HNE) dans la région d'Hamilton. Fermeture de la route 403 au niveau de la rue Main
- Oshawa (heure non précisée). Regroupement dans la rue Albert au-dessus de la route 401.

- Il pourrait y avoir une manifestation sur la ligne ferroviaire de CN Rail à Tyendinaga dans l'Est de l'Ontario. Rem. : Via Rail a émis un avis aux voyageurs concernant un barrage possible à Marysville.
- Pic River - Marathon (10 h – 16 h [HNE]). Barrage sur la voie ferrée de CP Railway au niveau de la route 627
- Traversier de l'île Walpole (heure non précisée) : Manifestation

Nouveau-Brunswick
- La voie ferroviaire de CN Rail est actuellement bloquée près d'Adamsville, dans le conté de Kent. Le barrage pourrait être maintenu pendant plusieurs jours.
- Une manifestation pacifique se déroule, sans barrage, près de la route 102 (ancienne route transcanadienne) – à proximité de la Première Nation Kingsclear. On ne sait pas quand la manifestation prendra fin.
- Woodstock (N.-B.). Barrage à Houlton, sur la frontière avec le Maine (aurait été annulé).

Saskatchewan
- 13 h (HNE) Barrage de ralentissement pacifique sur la route transcanadienne. (Le lieu exact n'a pas encore été indiqué).

Alberta
- 8 h – 9 h (HNE) à Hardisty. « Turn off the Taps! blockade at the Pipeline Terminal » (« Fermez les robinets! Barrage au terminal pipelinier »)

Colombie-Britannique
- Douglas (Peace Arch), 14 h (HNE) : Manifestation pacifique pour « bloquer la frontière »
- Rykerts/Porthill, 17 h - 19 h (HNE) : Rassemblement de solidarité
- Coho/Seattle – Gare portuaire du traversier Victoria Clipper – Victoria (C.-B.) 17 h 30 – 20 h 30 (HNE) : Manifestation pacifique/les manifestants joueront au « jeu de l'os », jeu traditionnel, à l'entrée et à la sortie de la gare, dans l'après-midi, au moment où le traversier Coho arrivera de Port Angeles (État de Washington).

Territoires du Nord-Ouest
- 12 h – 13 h (HNE) à Fort Providence. Barrage sur la route 3 au pont Deh Cho

États-Unis
- 11 h – 12 h (HNE) à International Falls (Minnesota). Ronde pour exprimer la solidarité envers le mouvement « Idle No More » au poste frontalier d'International Falls (à Fort Frances, Ontario).

Autres manifestations

Québec
- Heure non précisée, en Gaspésie. Des manifestants venant du conseil de la bande Gesgapegiag prévoient un défilé.

Saskatchewan
- 12 h – 13 h (HNE) au White Buffalo Youth Lodge à Saskatoon. Rassemblement de soutien au mouvement « Idle No More » de Saskatoon
- 11 h – 12 h (HNE) à Buffalo Narrows. Rassemblement pacifique

Alberta

- 15 h – 18 h (HNE) au centre commercial de West Edmonton. « Latin@s in Edmonton in Solidarity with Idle No More » (personnes originaires d'Amérique latine manifestant pour soutenir le mouvement « Idle No More »)

Colombie-Britannique

- Osoyoos, 16 h (HNE) : Manifestation organisée à côté du poste frontalier (ne devrait pas perturber la circulation)
- 16 h – 18 h (HNE) au parc Centennial de Ganges, sur l'île Salt Spring. Élan de solidarité envers les Premières Nations
- 17 h – 18 h (HNE) au centre commercial Orchard Park de Kelowna. Rassemblement éclair pour faire une ronde

États-Unis

- Centre commercial Presque Isle, Maine (heure non précisée). Rassemblement éclair avec cercle de tambours

Évaluation/analyse : Bien que la rencontre du 11 janvier entre le Premier ministre et des chefs des Premières Nations, dont la chef Spence, puisse avoir un effet d'atténuation, on ne sait pas quelles seront les implications pour les manifestations prévues. Certaines activités qui devaient avoir lieu le 5 janvier ont été annulées le 4 janvier.

Jusqu'à maintenant, les manifestations ont été pacifiques. Cependant, quelques manifestations ont causé l'interruption de services ferroviaires et des retards sur diverses routes.

Les ministères et les organismes qui ont plus de renseignements au sujet de cet incident sont priés de communiquer avec le COG.

Autres rapports de situation : D'autres rapports de situation seront émis au fur et à mesure que des développements importants se produisent.

Autres produits : Des produits de géomatique ainsi que d'autres produits seront joints à des messages subséquents.

ISSUE:
Supporters of the Idle No More movement have planned a protest 2013-01-05 at the entrance to the Hardisty, Alberta Petroleum "Tank Farm" (junction of Highway 13 and Range Road 95).

Information received to date suggests a full blockade may occur.

BACKGROUND

Neither the town of Hardisty nor the "Tank Farm" are situated on First Nations land and there are no First Nations Bands in the immediate area.
Planning for this event has been ongoing for the past week and indications are the Idle No More group may enact a full blockade of the main entrance to the Hardisty petroleum "Tank Farm".

Eastern Alberta District has been fully engaged assisting Killam detachment since learning of this planned event.

CURRENT STATUS

anticipates a peaceful protest as their goal is to raise awareness about pipelines on First Nations land and to educate people about Bill C-45.

not intending a full blockade of the highway and agreed that allowing traffic flow would better serve his purpose regarding the negative impact of Bill C-45.

Following the conversation with RCMP,
The majority were in favour of a full blockade at the Hardisty "Tank Farm".

Eastern Alberta District management has engaged "K" Division Criminal Operations and strategic plans have been created with adequate resources identified and deployed.

Contingency plans have also been created to address a full blockade of the "Tank Farm" should this occur.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

STRATEGIC COMMUNICATIONS:
"K" Division Strategic Communications Unit has been engaged and have prepared multiple media strategies to employ dependent on the circumstances.

RECOMMENDATIONS/STRATEGIC ADVICE:

Continue to engage the participants

BOC ACTIONS/ACTIONS DU COF

The BOC is taking the following steps in preparation of the planned protests:
- Continue to participate in teleconferences with IOAD, Regional Enforcement and Intelligence and the Border Operations Directorate to discuss intelligence related to this threat
- Continue to participate in daily teleconferences with the GOC
- Border Alerts have been prepared in advance should an alert need to be issued at a moment's notice in response to a port closure and/or disruption
- Act as the point of communication for Regional Operations Centres (ROCs)
- Issue appropriate significant event notifications as information is received from various locations

COMMUNICATIONS/COMMUNICATIONS
· Support the Border Alert process for advising the public of any closures and/or significant disruptions
· Address service disruptions at points of entry as would happen with any other disruption.
· Activities will focus on informing the public that access to our POEs is limited and offering advice on alternate ports of entry.
· Respond to questions directly relating to the status of our operations.
· Provide high-level responses to admissibility questions that may arise if Idle No More protestors who are inadmissible to Canada attempt to enter the country from the United States.
· Any other questions will be referred to the appropriate Government of Canada department of law enforcement agency for response.
· Conduct media monitoring.

SYNOPSIS/SYNOPSIS

Idle No More is an ongoing protest movement originating among the First Nations and other Indigenous Peoples in Canada. It has quickly grown and garnered worldwide support from other Indigenous Peoples as well as sympathetic non-Indigenous Canadians and Americans. It has consisted of a number of political actions worldwide, inspired in part by the hunger strike of Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence and further coordinated via social media. The movement claims that the Canadian government's omnibus bill C-45 infringes on a number of historical treaty rights, however, according to open sources, Chief Theresa Spence is not supporting these protests.

Large protests are expected to take place on January 5, 2013, in various regions, with the largest protest expected to occur at the Cornwall Port of Entry in Ontario. Other smaller protests may have a limited impact on CBSA operations at ports of entry in the Southern Ontario Region (Sarnia, Fort Erie and Niagara Falls); Northern Ontario Region (Fort Francis and Sault Ste. Marie); Pacific Region (Douglas, Osoyoos, Kingsgate and Victoria) and the Prairie Region (Boissevain and Carway).

The movement has gained support from other similar mass movements, including Occupy Canada and Council for Canadians as well as Greenpeace.

Although protests conducted under the Idle No More banner remain peaceful, there is the potential for violence the more they impact the public.

The Intelligence Operations and Analysis Division (IOAD) and Regional Enforcement and Intelligence Divisions (E&I) are continuing to liaise with partner agencies, including the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP), the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP), US Customs and Border Protection (US CBP), US Border Patrol, the Canadian Security and Intelligence Service (CSIS), the Integrated Terrorism Assessment Centre (ITAC), Transport Canada (TC) and the Sûreté du Québec to monitor and assess threats in relation to planned blockades.

« Idle No More » est un mouvement de protestation en cours d'origine entre les Premières Nations et d'autres peuples autochtones du Canada. Il s'est rapidement développé et il a recueilli un soutien dans le monde entier à partir des peuples autochtones ainsi que les Canadiens et Américains non autochtones, sympathique au mouvement. Il a consisté en une série d'actions politique dans le monde entier, inspirée en partie par la grève de la faim de la chef Thérèse Spence d` Attawapiskat et plus coordonnée via les medias sociaux. Le mouvement affirme que le projet de loi omnibus du gouvernement canadien C-45 viole un certain nombre de droits issus des traités historiques. Cependant, selon des sources ouvertes, la chef Theresa Spence ne soutient pas ces protestations.
De grandes manifestations devraient avoir lieu le 5 janvier 2013, dans différentes régions et la plus grande manifestation devrait avoir lieu au port d'entrée de Cornwall en Ontario. D'autres manifestations plus petites peuvent avoir un impact limité sur les opérations de l`ASFC aux points d'entrée dans la Région Sud de l`Ontario (Sarnia, Fort Erie et Niagara Falls); Nord de l`Ontario (Fort Francis et Sault Ste Marie); Région du Pacifique (Douglas. Osoyoos, Kingsgate et Victoria) et la région des Prairies (Boissevain et Carway).
Le mouvement a gagné l'appui de d'autres mouvements de masse similaires, y compris « Occupy Canada » et le Conseil des Canadiens, ainsi que Greenpeace.
Bien que les protestions menée sous la bannière d'inactivité « Idle No More » ont restées pacifiques, il y a un potentiel de violence qui ont plus un impact sur le public.
Les opérations de renseignement et de l'analyse (IOAD) et application régionale et les divisions du renseignement (E&I) continuent d'assurer la liaison avec les organismes partenaires, y compris la Police provinciale de l`Ontario (PPO), la Gendarmerie royale du Canada (GRC), US Customs and Border Protection (US CBP), la US Border Patrol, le service canadien du renseignement de sécurité (SCRS), le Centre d'évaluation intégrée terrorisme (ACTI), Transport Canada (TC) et la Sureté du Québec pour surveiller été évaluer les menaces pas rapport aux blocages prévus.

CBSA Media Monitoring
"Idle No More" Aboriginal Protest Movement
December 30, 2012 to January 4, 2013

Overview

On December 11, 2012 Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence began a hunger strike to protest the passing of the omnibus budget legislation Bill C-45. Spence and her supporters contend that the legislation violates treaty rights and undermines environmental laws.

Spence, whose community received heavy media coverage in the winter of 2011 when it declared a state of emergency, affirmed that she would continue her hunger strike until receiving a one-on-one meeting with Prime Minister Stephen Harper. As part of her protest, Spence established a campsite on Victoria Island, a small island on the Ottawa River located only a few blocks from Parliament Hill.

Spence's protest movement, labelled "Idle No More" (INM), quickly gained prominence through extensive coordination in social media. In the weeks that followed the start of the hunger strike, aboriginal and other activist groups organized protest activities and events under the banner of the INM movement to highlight local and national issues.

As of January 4, 2012, several of these events have been planned around ports of entry (POEs) across the country and will likely have a significant impact on the Agency.

Key topics appearing in the media coverage

"Too big to track"

- It was reported that the explosive growth of the INM movement both nationally and internationally has become "too big" for the original creators of INM to track. The administrators for the INM official website and social media accounts said that they have become unable to keep their channels updated for every event being planned (Globe and Mail, January 1, 2013)

International prominence

- Pamela Palmater, one of the leaders of the INM movement, travelled to Washington, D.C., to provide interviews to American media outlets in conjunction with the spread of the Aboriginal protest movement beyond Canadian borders. Palmater said that while INM was started in response to Bill C-45, the movement had evolved beyond the individual piece of legislation towards broader issues such as inequality and treaty rights (Montreal Gazette, January 2, 2013).

Civil disobedience

- The evolution of the INM movement has resulted in increasing protest events which incorporate elements of civil disobedience, including several disruptions at commercial and passenger rail lines. The original organizers of the INM urged supporters to only engage in peaceful forms of protest, saying that "any acts that are not in line with peace and solidarity only detract attention from our ultimate mission" (Vancouver Sun, January 2, 2013).

- On January 2, 2013 an Ontario judge ruled that the two-week long INM blockade of a CN railway in Sarnia, Ontario could be dismantled by police authorities at their discretion. The protestors had erected barriers on the grounds that the railway had been installed illegally on Aamjiwnaang First Nation territory. Within hours of the ruling, authorities had removed the blockade (CTV, January 2, 2013).

Meeting with Aboriginal Affairs Minister John Duncan

- This past week Aboriginal Affairs Minister John Duncan offered to meet with Chief Spence, but Spence refused on the grounds that she is seeking a meeting with Prime Minister Stephen Harper. In response, the federal government stated that it has made an effort to consult with aboriginal leaders and work on pressing issues on reserves (Calgary Herald, January 2, 2013).

Blockades

- It was reported that certain activist groups in the INM movement are preparing to create border blockades at various POEs across the country on Saturday, January 5, 2013. The cross-border activities have not been endorsed by the INM leaders (Toronto Star, January 2, 2013).

- On the social media sites promoting the planned blockades, organizers called on protesters to "show the government that we are willing to escalate this to a point where we shut down the country" (National Post, January 3, 2012).

- It was also reported that additional blockades could potentially be planned Wednesday, January 16, 2013 as certain Aboriginal bands engage in "indefinite economic disruptions" by erecting blockades at POEs, railways, and highways under the INM banner (Toronto Sun, January 3, 2013).

Situation becoming "volatile"

- In a statement release on January 2, 2013, Chief Spence warned Prime Minister Harper that his continued refusal to meet with her was making the situation "more volatile" as protesters escalate from peaceful events to nationwide economic disturbances. Spence also affirmed her determination to starve herself to death if Prime Minister Harper does not speak to her in person (National Post, January 3, 2013).

- Andrew MacDougall, a spokesperson for Prime Minister Harper, said that the Government of Canada urges an "end to illegal blockades" and expects "the rule of law to be upheld" (Ottawa Citizen, January 3, 2013).

Event at the Douglas POE

- It was reported that INM activists are planning a "major blockade" at the Douglas (a.k.a Peace Arch) POE on January 5, 2012. Chief Stewart Phillip, President of the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs, confirmed that an event at the POE is planned for Saturday and that he believes the INM movement will continue to gain momentum (Times Colonist, January 3, 2013).

- Prior to the planned blockade this weekend, activists in the Pacific region held a peaceful protest downtown Vancouver at the Waterfront Station on January 2, 2013. The event was attended by more than 300 individuals and lasted just over an hour (Times Colonist, January 3, 2013).

- During an event at the University of British Columbia, Chief Phillip said that the planned rally at the Douglas POE will be peaceful in nature and that there are no plans to block traffic. Phillip also stated that he expects "hundreds and hundreds of indigenous and non-indigenous people" to attend the rally, which will begin at 13h00 (Metro Vancouver, January 3, 2013).

- Jennifer Bourque, a CBSA spokesperson, said that while the Agency is expecting an increased police presence at the Douglas POE on January 5, 2013, it will be "be business as usual at all of CBSA's port of entry," that the Agency's priority is the "smooth and safe flow of legitimate travel and trade across Canada," and that the CBSA will alert travellers of any services interruptions or increased border wait times (Metro Vancouver, January 3, 2013).

Event at the Osoyoos POE

- It was reported that there will also be a rally at the Osoyoos POE in coordination with the event taking place at the Douglas POE on January 5, 2013 (Metro Vancouver, January 3, 2013).

Event at the Cornwall POE

- Members of the Mohawk Akwesasne community confirmed that they are planning a march from Massena to the Cornwall POE at 10h00 on January 5, 2013. Jose Verdugo, the organizer of the event, affirmed that they will walk cross onto Cornwall Island from the U.S. side and then continue their march to the POE on the Canadian side of the river (North Country Public Radio, January 4, 2013).

- Hundreds of supporters are expected to participate in the march, including members of the "Occupy New York" protest movement (Cornwall Standard Freeholder, January 4, 2013).

- Massena State police have confirmed that they are aware of the planned cross-border march (North Country Public Radio, January 4, 2013).

- Prior to the planned march on Saturday, INM activists in the Cornwall area held several events, including a round dance flash mob at the Cornwall Square on December 21, 2012 (Cornwall Standard Freeholder, January 4, 2013).

Event at the Blue Water Bridge POE

- It was reported that INM activists are planning a border blockade on the Canadian side of the Blue Water Bridge for an hour starting at 11h00 on January 5, 2013. According to the event's Facebook page, some 370 protesters have confirmed their plans to attend and will block traffic going both ways (Sun News Network, January 4, 2013).

- Authorities with the Ontario Provincial Police are expected to provide more information on the imminent blockade sometime today (Sun News Network, January 4, 2013).

Other border events

- It was briefly mentioned that there will be a protest event at a POE in New-Brunswick, but the specific crossing was not named (Cornwall Standard Freeholder, January 4, 2013).

- There were also reports that blockades are scheduled in the Niagara Falls and Fort Erie regions (Newstalk 650 CKOM, January 4, 2013).

International events

- In response to the growing international awareness of INM, several events have been taken place in other countries as a show of solidarity for the movement. Over the past weeks, protests have taken place in countries such as the U.S., France, and New-Zealand (La Presse, January 4, 2013).

"Urgent" meeting requested

- First Nations chiefs issued an "urgent" invitation to Prime Minister Harper to meet with them in an effort to address the increasing number of hunger strikes and demonstrations taking place in the name of INM. Assembly of First Nations National Chief Shawn Atleo called on Prime Minister Harper and Governor General David Johnston to accept the invitation so that they can respond to the health of those undertaking hunger strikes and address those currently engaging in demonstrations (Vancouver Sun, January 4, 2013).

- Chief Spence disavowed the meeting, saying she would not stop her hunger strike without a face-to-face meeting with Prime Minister Harper. Danny Metatawabin, a spokesperson for Chief Spence, warned that Spence's health is deteriorating rapidly as she nears a month of fasting and strongly urged Prime Minister Harper to meet with her within the next 72 hours out of fear that Spence may not last much longer (Edmonton Journal, January 4, 2013).

- Maxwell Cameron, director of the Centre for the Study of Democratic Institutions at the University of British Columbia, advised the federal government and First Nations chiefs to address the INM as soon as possible before the movement "spirals out of control", as its current growth pattern suggests it will in the very near future (Vancouver Sun, January 4, 2013).

Meeting request confirmed

- Shortly after 12h00 on January 4, 2013 the Prime Minister's Office (PMO) confirmed that Prime Minister Harper will meet with the First Nations leaders on Friday, January 11, 2013. The PMO said that meeting would address the key issues of aboriginal rights and economic development, but made no mention of the INM movement (La Presse, January 4, 2013).

Protesters feeling "anxious"

- It was reported that protesters with the INM movement were beginning to feel "anxious" over the perceive disinterest by the federal government towards their cause and that INM social media sites are "alive with talks of new ways to attract attention," including the planned border and railway blockades (Newstalk 650 CKOM, January 4, 2013).

- Some activists have shown support for the blockades in the hopes that they will increase the INM's prominence, but some others have expressed concern that the blockades will prove unpopular and may do more harm than good to the movement (Newstalk 650 CKOM, January 4, 2013).

Protest at the Oakville Ford Assembly Plant

- INM protesters were present at the Ford plant in Oakville, Ontario today where Prime Minister was scheduled to visit. Nearly 100 protesters rallied at a nearby intersection, but were blocked by police when they tried to enter the plant (CTV, January 4, 2013).

Please be advised of the following events taking place in the NWT:

A blockage of the Deh Cho bridge is scheduled for 13-01-05 at 1400. The blockage is expected to last for one hour. The event is being organized out of Fort Providence. The Department of Highways(has been advised of the situation and are in the process of putting a plan in place.

Late last night we received information that a group are planning to block highway 3 going though by the community on Saturday January 5, 2013, at @1400hrs. The local RCMP detachment is aware of the situation and are communicating with the organizers.

We have resources in place to deal with both events.

We're presently in the process of preparing a media release to deal with the delays on the highways.

Carrie Ann,

FYI...This is the only thing we have going on in New Brunswick currently. Information at one time indicated that there would be a blockade at the Woodstock-Houlton border on the Canadian side on 2013-01-05. The majority of information has indicated that this has been canceled, although there is still some information that continue to show this event. There has also been information that there will be a blockade at the same border, however on the US side. CBSA has been following this.

Hi Warren,

I have given all of you proxy access. However I did not succeed in setting the rule for forwarding to Insp. Lesage due to a technical issue surrounding a difference in post office/servers between him and I. I will have to resolve this with IT tomorrow morning when I return to the office.

I believe that I was successful in setting up the forward to myself though, so I will continue to monitor my email for the next few hours to cover what comes into the mailbox.

I would suggest that you proceed as per usual should you receive pertinent correspondence.

The box was tested and is operational.

Regards,
Christine

Christine,

Further to Carrie Ann's message have you set up "a forwarding email rule on the new mailbox?"

Please advise as it will impact the monitoring of e-mail traffic tonight.

Thanks
Warren

Thanks for letting me know. I will forward the emails I receive to this new mailbox.

Not sure if you are already aware, but you need to set up a forwarding email rule on the new mailbox (the mailbox owner sets it up) so others can automatically receive the emails on their BBs. Otherwise, you can only proxy in via GroupWise, or via the sole BB attached to the mailbox....unless they changed the technology since we set up

Situation Report

Incident Number: ST122-12I

Incident: First Nations Protests

Date: Information valid as of 05 Jan 2013, 12:30 (EST)

Description of current incident: A number of First Nations (FN) Protests are occurring as a result of a grassroots campaign called "Idle No More" which is protesting Bill C-45, the government's omnibus budget legislation.

Source(s) of reporting: Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada, PS Regional Offices, New Brunswick Department of Public Safety, Transport Canada, Canada Border Services Agency, media/open source reporting.

Current actions: GOC is monitoring the situation and has established contact with key partners in order to maintain cohesive information sharing.

Event management of the protests falls under the purview of local jurisdictions and local law enforcement agencies, as appropriate.

On 04 Jan, the Prime Minister announced he will be meeting with a delegation of FN leaders, coordinated by the Assembly of First Nations (AFN), on 11 Jan. The meeting will include the AANDC Minister and focus on two areas: 1) the treaty relationship and aboriginal rights and 2) economic development. Media reporting indicates Chief Spence will take part in the meeting.

The protest activities are dynamic in nature and subject to change. At this time, the GOC is aware of the following "Idle No More" related protest activities planned for 05 Jan 2013.

Rail Operations

As of 10:45 EST, CN and VIA Rail advise that operations are normal across Canada.

Ongoing Protest Events

Ontario

- 12:00 – 13:00 EST at Sarnia. Blue Water Bridge (BWB) blockade. As of 11:33 EST, the BWB Authority is holding traffic coming into Canada. Approximately 200 protesters are present. The Blue Water Bridge was closed as of 11:39 EST. At 11:46 EST, CBSA issued a Border Alert to advise that the Port of Entry (POE) is experiencing a service disruption and to expect possible delays.
- 13:00 - 14:00 EST at Fort Erie. Peace Bridge Border blockade. As of 11:33 EST, approximately 70 protesters are present in the vicinity of the Peace Bridge.
- 11:00 EST at Cornwall. Seaway International Bridge blockade. The Seaway International Bridge was closed at 10:30 EST. As of 11:50 EST, approximately 300 protesters had started to arrive at the Cornwall POE from the U.S. side; it is estimated protesters will have crossed by approximately 12:30. CBSA has issued a Border Alert to advise the POE is experiencing a service disruption and to expect possible delays.

- 13:00 EST in the Hamilton area. Closure of Highway 403 at Main Street.
- Oshawa (Time unknown). Rally at Albert Street over Highway 401.
- Potential protest on the CN Rail Line through Tyendinaga in Eastern ON. Note: Via Rail issued a travel advisory regarding a potential blockade at Marysville.
- Pic River - Marathon (10:00 – 16:00 EST). Rail blockade on CP Railway line at Highway 627.

Saskatchewan
- 13:00 EST Peaceful Slow Down Barricade on the Trans-Canada Highway. (exact location not yet determined).

British Columbia
- Douglas Peace Arch 14:00 EST: Peaceful protest to "block the border".
- Rykerts / Porthill 17:00-19:00 EST: Solidarity gathering.
- Coho / Seattle - Victoria Clipper Ferry, Terminal – Victoria, BC 17:30 – 20:30 EST: Peaceful protest / traditional bone game to be played at the entrance / exit of the terminal to coincide with the afternoon arrival of the MV Coho ferry from Port Angeles, Washington.
- 16:00 EST at the Kingsgate POE (south of Cranbrook). Potential protest.

Northwest Territories
- 16:00 – 18:00 EST at Fort Providence. Highway 3 blockade at the Deh Cho Bridge.

United States
- 14:00 EST at International Falls MN. "Idle No More Solidarity Round Dance International Falls, MN Border Crossing (at Fort Frances, ON). No attendees have been noted yet.

Concluded Protest Events

New Brunswick
- Blockade of the CN Rail line near Adamsville, Kent County.
- Protest near Highway 102 (the former TransCanada Highway) – near Kingsclear FN.
- Woodstock, NB. Houlton, Maine Border blockade (reportedly cancelled).

Ontario
- Walpole Island Ferry (Time unknown): Protest

Alberta
- 08:00 – 09:00 EST in Hardisty. "Turn off the Taps! blockade at the Pipeline Terminal".

Assessment/Analysis: Although it may have a mitigating effect, it is unclear what implications the 11 Jan meeting between the Prime Minister and FN leaders, including Chief Spence, will have on planned protest activities. To note, some activities planned for 05 Jan have been cancelled as of 04 Jan. However, media is reporting on 05 Jan that an organizer of the Idle No More rallies in Metro Vancouver advised that rallies will continue even though the Prime Minister has agreed to meet with FN leaders.

The protests have been peaceful in nature. However, some protests have disrupted rail operations and resulted in delays on various highways.

Departments and Agencies with further information on this incident are asked to report to the GOC.

Additional situation reports: Further situation reports will be issued as significant developments occur.

Additional Products: Geomatics and other products will be attached to a follow-on message.

Subject: Re: Brief on Idle No More Movement

we monitor the events on a daily basis as well but we're more concerned with what is going in the NCR as opposed to the rest of the country. Having said that, we still keep an eye out on what is going on across the world, we just don't necessarily report it back unless there is any concerns or potential impact for us in the NCR.

>>> Lori Schnittker 1/7/2013 10:04 AM >>>
Sure, no problem. On or around Dec 19/20th, Carrie was asked to provide a brief concerning the protests across Canada to D/Commr. Cabana (Federal Policing) in order to keep him, and about 6 other senior managers, up-to-date on what is happening across Canada in respect to any protests related to Idle No More. She is the one who told me you had prepared a document that would be good to review.

I was asked to work on this file, under Carrie Ann's supervision, as of Dec 24th, and have been preparing daily reports on events since that time. This is just a compilation of events as best we can determine from a variety of sources, there is no analysis.

Christine is now the supervisor, and they have brought Guillame in to work on the file as of Friday, Jan 4th. Not sure what the future holds though.

I expect there is duplication happening elsewhere in the Force, but the info we're providing is primarily for the Deputy.

The daily reports have been uploaded to 2012-1617463 is you wanted to take a look at what we've been doing. As far as I know at this point in time, I am to continue working on the daily reports.

What about you? What have you been tasked with? Maybe we can help make each other's life easier!

Lori

>>> Stephanie Laplante 2013-01-07 09:50 >>>
not a problem,

if you don't mind me asking, what exactly have you been tasked to do? I just don't want to duplicate the work on my end.

Stéphanie

>>> Lori Schnittker 1/7/2013 9:48 AM >>>
Thanks Stephanie. I would appreciate it if you could keep me in the loop for any info you have. I rather have too much info than not enough.

At the moment, myself and Guillame are working on this issue, for at least the next week or so.

Lori

>>> Stephanie Laplante 2013-01-07 09:46 >>>
no problem. Here is the timeline but it was last updated on the December 21. I will work on updating it this week and can send you the more updated one when it's done.

Yes we are still following the issue closely.

Stéphanie

Thanks for the attachment. Sure forward the timeline as every little bit helps. It would give us another source of info in case we have missed something.

Are you still following the issue on behalf of your unit?

Lori

>>> Stephanie Laplante 2013-01-07 07:39 >>>
Good morning Lori,

See attached the report my unit wrote on December 18, 2012. The attached report concentrates NCR and Carrie Ann also wrote a report on the events for a more nationwide perspective. I have also a timeline of the events that have happened nationwide, would that be something you would like as well?

Regards,

Stéphanie

>>> Lori Schnittker 1/3/2013 6:08 PM >>>
Stephanie,

Carrie Ann mentioned that you had prepared a brief on the Idle No More Movement for Protective. Would you be able to share that with me?
I have been assigned with compiling a daily sit rep, and I haven't had much time to do any background reading to get up to speed on the movement's history.

Thanks
Lori

Northern Ontario Region
Akwesasne/Cornwall (OPEN) # of Demonstrators: 800 – 1,100 (based on social media responses, actual numbers may be lower due to weather and requirement to carry identity documents)	2013-01-05 11:00 EST Weather: Sunny, -7° to -6°C, wind-chill of -15°C predicted	January 5, 2012 (CONCLUDED – No further reporting) At 1440 EST. Cornwall & Massena International Bridges on both sides of the border re-open. All marchers that returned to the USA POE presented themselves for inspection. CBSA Cornwall

		E&I and Cornwall POE are all clear. At 1346 EST, Bridge still closed from USA and from Cornwall City to the island. But in an attempt to get traffic moving people will be allowed to leave Cornwall island to Cornwall POE and Massena POE. Marchers carrying the 6 Nations (Purple Flag). At 1309 EST, Cornwall Community Police Service (CCPS) will re-open Brookdale to regular city traffic but the bridge is still closed until all marchers are off the roads and all vehicles with this group are parked and off the roads at the Peoples Fire on Cornwall Island. Then CCPS will make the call once Akwesasne Mohawk Police Service (AMPS) give the all clear that all is safe and the bridge will re-open. Presently the large group is moving fast but there are still a lot of smaller groups moving much slower back up the bridge. It will still be some time before the walkers are all off the bridge. 2 Emergency vehicles were facilitated during this march by Police and CBSA At 1250 EST, All marched through toll booth heading back on Bridge to Cornwall Island. Any persons carrying the black flags that have covered faces who stay in Cornwall will be approached by CCPS. At 1218 EST, all 300 or so marched through the POE. . The Group is staking 2 flags beside the existing polls in the traffic circle, the warrior flag and the 6 nations flag (Purple flag). More than 60 people are expected to gather at the sails in City Park this afternoon for a flash mob and round dance as the Idle No More movement makes it's way to Kelowna. The protest is part of a nationwide movement with at least three more demonstrations scheduled for today. In the South Okanagan 100 people are expected to meet at the Osoyoos border crossing for a drumming session. AM 1150

"Idle No More protest shut down by CN in New Brunswick"
An Idle No More protest that was blocking commercial trains on Canadian National Rail tracks between Moncton and Miramichi, N.B. on Friday has been shut down. CN Rail filed the order Friday afternoon. It stated that the dozen protestors from the Elsipogtog First Nation had to stop blocking the railway along Highway 126 in Adamsville immediately or face arrest. The group had planned to continue the blockade until Monday. The protesters peacefully left the picket lines, but said their fight isn't over. CBC News

"Idle No More activists to block Deh Cho Bridge'
Drivers who plan to N.W.T.'s Deh Cho Bridge this afternoon could have trouble as Idle No More activists plan to disrupt traffic. Event organizers say the prime minister's commitment to meet with First Nation leaders has only fuelled the Idle No More fire. Organizer Nellie Norwegian said they chose to block the recently opened Deh Cho Bridge to show, even though the federal and territorial governments built the link, it is still on Dene land. She said they do not expect the upcoming meeting to change any of the government's priorities. They hope to draw attention to the need for environmental protection for land and water in the North. The rally and a round dance are expected to block bridge traffic from 2 to 4 p.m., followed by a feast. CBC News

"Idle No More protests target bridges, roads across Canada"
The Idle No More protest movement continues to gain steam with more demonstrations Saturday, after Prime Minister Stephen Harper announced he would meet with a delegation of First Nations chiefs, including Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence, who is now on day 26 of a hunger strike. A number of groups have pledged to block bridges, several of which straddle the Canada-U.S. border. Police in Cornwall, Ont., closed the International Bridge for more than three hours in response to an Idle No More protest that began mid-Saturday morning. About 350 protesters crossed the bridge.The bridge reopened by 2 p.m. local time. And in Saskatchewan, RCMP say they've close off Highway 624 from Highway 1 to Highway 46 for safety precautions due to a protest of about 300 people. CBC News; Toronto Star; Canadian Press (The Province); CTV News

SYNOPSIS | SYNOPSIS

Idle No More is an ongoing protest movement originating among the First Nations and other Indigenous Peoples in Canada. It has quickly grown and garnered worldwide support from other Indigenous Peoples as well as sympathetic non-Indigenous Canadians and Americans. It has consisted of a number of political actions worldwide, inspired in part by the hunger strike of Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence and further coordinated via social media. The movement claims that the Canadian government's omnibus bill C-45 infringes on a number of historical treaty rights, however, according to open sources, Chief Theresa Spence is not supporting these protests.

Large protests are expected to take place on January 5, 2013, in various regions, with the largest protest expected to occur at the Cornwall Port of Entry in Ontario. Other smaller protests may have a limited impact on CBSA operations at ports of entry in the Southern Ontario Region (Sarnia, Fort Erie and Niagara Falls); Northern Ontario Region (Fort Francis and Sault Ste. Marie); Pacific Region (Douglas, Osoyoos, Kingsgate and Victoria) and the Prairie Region (Boissevain and Carway).

The movement has gained support from other similar mass movements, including Occupy Canada and Council for Canadians as well as Greenpeace.

Although protests conducted under the Idle No More banner remain peaceful, there is the potential for violence the more they impact the public.

The Intelligence Operations and Analysis Division (IOAD) and Regional Enforcement and Intelligence Divisions (E&I) are continuing to liaise with partner agencies, including the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP), the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP), US Customs and Border Protection (US CBP), US Border Patrol, the Canadian Security and Intelligence Service (CSIS), the Integrated Terrorism Assessment Centre (ITAC), Transport Canada (TC) and the Sûreté du Québec to monitor and assess threats in relation to planned blockades.

« Idle No More » est un mouvement de protestation en cours d'origine entre les Premières Nations et d'autres peuples autochtones du Canada. Il s'est rapidement développé et il a recueilli un soutien dans le monde entier à partir des peuples autochtones ainsi que les Canadiens et Américains non autochtones, sympathique au mouvement. Il a consisté en une série d'actions politique dans le monde entier, inspirée en partie par la grève de la faim de la chef Thérèse Spence d` Attawapiskat et plus coordonnée via les medias sociaux. Le mouvement affirme que le projet de loi omnibus du gouvernement canadien C-45 viole un certain nombre de droits issus des traités historiques. Cependant, selon des sources ouvertes, la chef Theresa Spence ne soutient pas ces protestations.
De grandes manifestations devraient avoir lieu le 5 janvier 2013, dans différentes régions et la plus grande manifestation devrait avoir lieu au port d'entrée de Cornwall en Ontario. D'autres manifestations plus petites peuvent avoir un impact limité sur les opérations de l`ASFC aux points d'entrée dans la Région Sud de l`Ontario (Sarnia, Fort Erie et Niagara Falls); Nord de l`Ontario (Fort Francis et Sault Ste Marie); Région du Pacifique (Douglas. Osoyoos, Kingsgate et Victoria) et la région des Prairies (Boissevain et Carway).
Le mouvement a gagné l'appui de d'autres mouvements de masse similaires, y compris « Occupy Canada » et le Conseil des Canadiens, ainsi que Greenpeace.
Bien que les protestions menée sous la bannière d'inactivité « Idle No More » ont restées pacifiques, il y a un potentiel de violence qui ont plus un impact sur le public.
Les opérations de renseignement et de l'analyse (IOAD) et application régionale et les divisions du renseignement (E&I) continuent d'assurer la liaison avec les organismes partenaires, y compris la Police provinciale de l`Ontario (PPO), la Gendarmerie royale du Canada (GRC), US Customs and Border Protection (US CBP), la US Border Patrol, le service canadien du renseignement de sécurité (SCRS), le Centre d'évaluation intégrée terrorisme (ACTI), Transport Canada (TC) et la Sureté du Québec pour surveiller été évaluer les menaces pas rapport aux blocages prévus.

The following is new information received, in addition to what was disseminated at 1200 EST on January 5, 2013.

Potential border service disruptions may occur on January 5, 2013, at the following ports of entry:

Region Port of Entry/Location	Date/Time[1] Weather Forecast	Activity Type
Northern Ontario Region
Akwesasne/Cornwall (OPEN) # of Demonstrators: 800 – 1,100 (based on social media responses, actual numbers may be lower due to weather and requirement to carry identity documents)	2013-01-05 11:00 EST Weather: Sunny, -7° to -6°C, wind-chill of -15°C predicted	January 5, 2012 (CONCLUDED – No further reporting) At 1440 EST. Cornwall & Massena International Bridges on both sides of the border re-open. All marchers that returned to the USA POE presented themselves for inspection. CBSA Cornwall E&I and Cornwall POE are all clear. At 1346 EST, Bridge still closed from USA and from Cornwall City to the island. But in an attempt to get traffic moving people will be allowed to leave Cornwall island to Cornwall POE and Massena POE. Marchers carrying the 6 Nations (Purple Flag). At 1309 EST, Cornwall Community Police Service (CCPS) will re-open Brookdale to regular city traffic but the bridge is still closed until all marchers are off the roads and all vehicles with this group are parked and off the roads at the Peoples Fire on Cornwall Island. Then CCPS will make the call once Akwesasne Mohawk Police Service (AMPS) give the all clear that all is safe and the bridge will re-open. Presently the large group is moving fast but there are still a lot of smaller groups moving much slower back up the bridge. It will still be some time before the walkers are all off the bridge. 2 Emergency vehicles were facilitated during this march by Police and CBSA At 1250 EST, All marched through toll booth heading back on Bridge to Cornwall Island. Any persons carrying the black flags that have covered faces who stay in Cornwall will be approached by CCPS. At 1218 EST, all 300 or so marched through the POE. . The Group is staking 2 flags beside the existing polls in the traffic circle, the warrior flag and the 6 nations flag (Purple flag). Smaller groups arriving on foot and are reporting into POE properly. At 1150 EST, protesters are starting to arrive at the Cornwall POE. At 1123 EST, march continuing to Cornwall. Approx. 300 people going North. Vehicles approx. 10-15. Media (CBC) is with them.Bridge closure. CBSA POE STILL OPEN Movement started from GM plant. Approx. 30 people on island and a lot of children. A few vehicles with warrior signs and a few known warriors. A few confirmed warriors and signs and flags. Lawyer and First Nations activist Frank Horn at POE At 0847 EST, Organizers will let the crowd decide at the staging location today if they will do both bridges or not. Protest activity commencing in Roosevelt, New York, proceeding by foot across Cornwall Island through CBSA Port of Entry to the City of Cornwall traffic circle. The demonstrators will then return to Cornwall Island. According to Facebook, 1,100 people have indicated they will participate and organizers are expecting a large number of participants. However, inclement weather and the requirement of demonstrators to be processed by CBSA may reduce the number of participants. Indications that criminally inadmissible persons may be part of the demonstration entering Canada. Indications of possible participation by members of the Mohawk Warrior Society, The bridge will be closed to vehicle traffic during the protest (4-6 hours).

Fort Frances/International Falls # of Demonstrators: 70-80 on the US	2013-01-05 13:00 EST Weather: Sunny/cloudy, -15° to -6°C	January 5, 2013 At 1615 EST, the protest activity at Fort Frances concluded. At 1520 EST, 75-80 people estimated to be on US side but nothing to indicate at this point that they will be marching to Canada. At 1434 EST, Intel on site at Ft Frances report that a traveller just returned from US and indicated that a group on US side were lining up for a march across bridge to Canada. There are approximately 70 in total at the gathering in International Falls. Intel is expecting confirmation of any staging for cross border walk in the next few minutes through US CBP contacts . 11:15 CST, IO on site reports approx. 12 participants outside Ft Frances Ontario Tourist Information Bureau at. They have Native dress and drums and are heading to US via pedestrian walkway. At 1127 EST, A meeting took place at USCBP at 1000 hrs EST attended by CBSA POE Chief, Supt & IO , Ft Frances OPP Sgt & Intel unit Sgt / International Falls MN police/CN Police / USBP/Boises Cascade/MD&W rail - bridge OPS - Rally in International Falls MN still scheduled for 1300 CST hrs (1400 hrs EST) at the parking lot of Border Bobs (just south of USCBP) . No attendees have been noted yet. - Approximately 10-12 supporters from American Indian Movement (AIM) have indicated through social media that they will attend US rally . - Believed that Canadian participants may gather at Ontario Tourist center near CBSA POE for 1200 EST . - OPP & International Falls Police will stop vehicle traffic & MD&W will close bridge if protest crosses international bridge . - MN State Patrol will advise of vehicles observed travelling north towards International Falls MN - CN Police will monitor Rainier Bridge – International Rail crossing several KM east of POE - CBSA shift briefing underway now at POE and another at 1215 EST At 0830 EST, No new information was reported. Solidarity Protest on U.S. side of the Ft.

		Frances / International Falls border crossing. Expecting Canadian residents to cross into the US to attend the protest and return in the evening. Possible protest to be staged on Canadian side near the Fort Frances Port of Entry. Reports now indicating that demonstrators will attempt to close the bridge for an unknown period of time.
Sault Ste. Marie # of Demonstrators: unknown		January 5, 2013 (CONCLUDED – No further reporting) Local police and OPP Liaison team in Sault Ste. Marie have met with band chiefs and they have both said that plans have been cancelled. At 1130 EST, No new information was reported. Plans for a small demonstration have been cancelled; however a small protest may be staged at the Port of Entry, similar to what has been staged there before as part of Idle No More.
Southern Ontario Region
Fort Erie Peace Bridge # of Demonstrators: 100	2013-01-05 11:00 EST Weather: Cloudy, -1° to 1°C	January 5, 2013 (CONCLUDED – No further reporting) There were no reported issues. At 1346 EST, crowds were dispersing. A small contingent remains on the Peace Bridge. Handing out flyers to provide some background on Idle No More. At 13:00 EST, marching in unity on to the plaza heading towards the mid-point of the bridge carrying flags, banners and signs, it is a peaceful demonstration. The Peace Bridge Authority has closed one US bound lane to accommodate this peaceful demonstration. The PBA have staff stationed near the entrance from Mather's Arch onto the plaza in order to facilitate their lawful and safe entrance onto the plaza. The PBA and the organizers have agreed that this demonstration will conclude at 14:00 EST at which time the participants will begin making their way back to Canada towards Mather's Arch. Canadian residents attending the US rally are travelling by car. Local Intel / OPP Intel on site at POE and will contact US CBP at 1400 EST to determine number of Canadian residents destined to attend rally. One warrior flag and 120-140 persons in attendance. At 1133 EST, Fort Erie is reporting 70 protesters near regional office (Garrison Rd/ Mathers Park (near Peace Bridge). CBC and Parks Police on site – all peaceful – no extremist flags/banners. No reports from CBP of any US protesters marshalling on US side. At 0830 EST, No new information was reported. Protest with two contingents – demonstrators gathering on the Buffalo, NY side and a demonstration in Fort Erie. Bridge operator allowing protestors to march across the bridge occupying one lane of traffic.

Niagara Falls # of Demonstrators: 2013-01-05 11:30 EST	Weather: Cloudy, -1° to 1°C	January 5, 2012 (CONCLUDED – No further reporting) 1050 EST, no observations of any protest activity in Windsor or Niagara Falls. At 0830 EST, No new information was reported. No specific POE targeted protests are known, however a small protest is planned near Rainbow Bridge.
Sarnia - BWB (OPEN) # of Demonstrators: 370 (based on statements by protest organizers)	2013-01-05 10:00 EST Weather: Cloudy/flurries, -5° to -2°C	January 5, 2013 (CONCLUDED – No further reporting) There were no reported issues. At 1344 EST, The Blue Water Bridge has been reopened following the conclusion of the Idle No More protest. At 1221 EST, presence of a few Mohawk warrior flags, all peaceful at this time. POE SEN reporting temporary blockage of traffic, commercial trucks being diverted around protest group. At 1133 EST, BWB is holding traffic coming into Canada and both CBSA and CBP is clearing any traffic in queue. Sarnia is reporting approximately 200 protesters – no extremist members observed. According to the social media (Facebook) there is a possibility of 420 attending. Participants are to gather at the 'Soul's Monument' located under the bridge at 1000 EST . Beginning between 1100-1130 EST, participants will march from the monument to Front Street via Venetian Boulevard. Previous information indicated participants will then enter onto Highway 402 and block traffic in both directions. As Highway 402 links directly to the Bluewater Bridge, a traffic stoppage affecting both directions of this highway will have a direct impact on bridge traffic. Information indicates that this event will include members of Aamjiwnaang First Nation and Kettle Point First Nation. Event organizers will also be advising Walpole Island First Nation, Chippewa of the Thames First Nation, Munsee-Delaware First Nation and Stoney Point First Nation should members of these communities wish to participate. Information was received from organizers of today's demonstration of the potential of a "rogue" group planning a protest on Indian Road in Sarnia. This apparent protest is not being promoted by the Idle No More demonstration. The number of demonstrators, exact location and time is unknown. At 0830 EST, No new information was reported.

		Protest and march starting at 10:00 under the bridge, then proceeding to Highway 403 with the intention of blocking traffic, possibly affecting access to the Port of Entry. Sun Media is reporting that protestors plan to block the Canadian side of the Bluewater Bridge for one hour.
Pacific Region
Peace Arch Border Crossing # of Demonstrators: 1,200 (including approximately 700 from Canada and 500 from the United States, according to social media)	2013-01-05 11:00 PST Weather: Rain, 2° to 5°C	January 5, 2013 1445 PST –Demonstrators have started to leave the Peace Arch Monument area. There are still approximately 250 people in attendance. 1411 PST – There are approximately 500 demonstrators at the Peace Arch Monument. There are no impacts to operations at this time. 1248 PST– Demonstrators have started marching towards the Peace Arch monument. Approximately 400 demonstrators in attendance. RCMP Sgt. has met with a Semiamhmoo band councillor. She confirmed that demonstrators will do a grand entry, gather at the parking lot and walk and cross over to the Peace Arch. Demonstrators intend to be there for an hour. The band has their own security personnel in attendance who will report any suspicious participants or activity that are not part of the peaceful gathering to CBSA and the RCMP. At 1130 PST Numerous local band flags had been observed and the red Mohawk flag has been seen which is a common flag in the area that has been adopted nationally not associated to any violence. Reports received that one full bus, approximately 50 cars and media outlet Global have left the Friendship Centre (East Hastings) headed to Peace Arch. 3 flag bearers present (teal and white) There are a few vehicles beginning to gather on the US side of Peace Arch. At 1400 EST, schedule on social media indicates gathering from 1100 PST to 14:00 PST. Peaceful gathering, not a blockade. At 1130 EST, No new information was reported. Peaceful protest at Peace Arch Park; 3,000 invited to participate on Facebook, in excess of 700 indicating they will attend.

SYNOPSIS | SYNOPSIS

Idle No More is an ongoing protest movement originating among the First Nations and other Indigenous Peoples in Canada. It has quickly grown and garnered worldwide support from other Indigenous Peoples as well as sympathetic non-Indigenous Canadians and Americans. It has consisted of a number of political actions worldwide, inspired in part by the hunger strike of Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence and further coordinated via social media. The movement claims that the Canadian government's omnibus bill C-45 infringes on a number of historical treaty rights, however, according to open sources, Chief Theresa Spence is not supporting these protests.

Large protests are expected to take place on January 5, 2013, in various regions, with the largest protest expected to occur at the Cornwall Port of Entry in Ontario. Other smaller protests may have a limited impact on CBSA operations at ports of entry in the Southern Ontario Region (Sarnia, Fort Erie and Niagara Falls); Northern Ontario Region (Fort Francis and Sault Ste. Marie); Pacific Region (Douglas, Osoyoos, Kingsgate and Victoria) and the Prairie Region (Boissevain and Carway).

The movement has gained support from other similar mass movements, including Occupy Canada and Council for Canadians as well as Greenpeace.

Although protests conducted under the Idle No More banner remain peaceful, there is the potential for violence the more they impact the public.

The Intelligence Operations and Analysis Division (IOAD) and Regional Enforcement and Intelligence Divisions (E&I) are continuing to liaise with partner agencies, including the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP), the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP), US Customs and Border Protection (US CBP), US Border Patrol, the Canadian Security and Intelligence Service (CSIS), the Integrated Terrorism Assessment Centre (ITAC), Transport Canada (TC) and the Sûreté du Québec to monitor and assess threats in relation to planned blockades.

« Idle No More » est un mouvement de protestation en cours d'origine entre les Premières Nations et d'autres peuples autochtones du Canada. Il s'est rapidement développé et il a recueilli un soutien dans le monde entier à partir des peuples autochtones ainsi que les Canadiens et Américains non autochtones, sympathique au mouvement. Il a consisté en une série d'actions politique dans le monde entier, inspirée en partie par la grève de la faim de la chef Thérèse Spence d` Attawapiskat et plus coordonnée via les medias sociaux. Le mouvement affirme que le projet de loi omnibus du gouvernement canadien C-45 viole un certain nombre de droits issus des traités historiques. Cependant, selon des sources ouvertes, la chef Theresa Spence ne soutient pas ces protestations.
De grandes manifestations devraient avoir lieu le 5 janvier 2013, dans différentes régions et la plus grande manifestation devrait avoir lieu au port d'entrée de Cornwall en Ontario. D'autres manifestations plus petites peuvent avoir un impact limité sur les opérations de l`ASFC aux points d'entrée dans la Région Sud de l`Ontario (Sarnia, Fort Erie et Niagara Falls); Nord de l`Ontario (Fort Francis et Sault Ste Marie); Région du Pacifique (Douglas. Osoyoos, Kingsgate et Victoria) et la région des Prairies (Boissevain et Carway).
Le mouvement a gagné l'appui de d'autres mouvements de masse similaires, y compris « Occupy Canada » et le Conseil des Canadiens, ainsi que Greenpeace.
Bien que les protestions menée sous la bannière d'inactivité « Idle No More » ont restées pacifiques, il y a un potentiel de violence qui ont plus un impact sur le public.
Les opérations de renseignement et de l'analyse (IOAD) et application régionale et les divisions du renseignement (E&I) continuent d'assurer la liaison avec les organismes partenaires, y compris la Police provinciale de l`Ontario (PPO), la Gendarmerie royale du Canada (GRC), US Customs and Border Protection (US CBP), la US Border Patrol, le service canadien du renseignement de sécurité (SCRS), le Centre d'évaluation intégrée terrorisme (ACTI), Transport Canada (TC) et la Sureté du Québec pour surveiller été évaluer les menaces pas rapport aux blocages prévus.

good evening,

The Mohawkes of the Bay of Quinte have blocked the CN tracks at Wymans Road. Anticipated time is 6 hours. CN police have been notified. This is all part of the Idle No More protest movement and all is peaceful at this time.

CIS is monitoring the situation and working closely with the OPP.

Hi

There is about 20 people there now at Wyman's Road. Two fires burning on either side of the tracks. Preliminary accounts are indicating they want to block the tracks for 6 hours.
Tyendinaga Police have notified OPP Napanee and CN. No doubt you will be updated by Napanee Det

Subject: FYI- Judge slams Ontario police for not breaking up Idle No More protests

National Post - 42 minutes ago

http://news.nationalpost.com/2013/01/07/judge-slams-ontario-police-for-not-breaking-up-idle-no-more-protests/

That protest ended about midnight the same night, but as Judge Brown noted dryly, "not, as it turns out, because the police had assisted in enforcing the order" he granted.
When the judge read in the media Sunday morning that the blockade had ended, he asked CN to submit an affidavit how it had happened.
As the same judge who last month watched — "shocked," he said later, at "such disrespect" — as Sarnia Police ignored his court orders to end another Idle No More blockade on a CN spur line, he was right to be skeptical.
And sure enough, what Judge Brown learned was that once the local sheriff got a copy of his order, by about 10:30 p.m. Saturday, she contacted the Ontario Provincial Police on scene.

The staff-sergeant there told her "it was too dangerous" to attempt to serve the order – on all of 15 protesters.
But, the judge said, he'd made "a time-sensitive order" precisely because the evidence showed that the railway suffered "from each hour the blockade remained in place, yet the OPP would not assist the local sheriff to ensure the order was served...
"Such an approach by the OPP was most disappointing," Judge Brown said, "because it undercut the practical effect of the injunction order.
"That kind of passivity by the police leads me to doubt that a future exists in this province for the use of court injunctions in cases of public demonstrations."

Just spoke with CN Police Inspector and Officer on site.

Update: Jan 5th

Approx 20 protesters. One protester rest of protesters wearing masks. They have a fire on the north and south side of tracks. They activated the crossing. (

Complete shut down of both tracks.

Nothing physical on tracks at this time. Protesters are just walking back and forth across tracks.

PLT was advised that they will blockade for 6 hrs but protesters recently back tracked and now saying it will be longer than the last one - no time line set at this time.

Apparently reports of firewood being brought in so possible long haul with this one.

They advised that they are not aligned with Idle No More. More in support with FN meeting with PM

I was advised there is a conf/call scheduled for 20:00, I will be updated.

Protesters are not so friendly with PLT.

Idle No More Protests - Divisional / National Monitoring

Good morning
I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who has been contributing information to National Aboriginal Policing Service and Criminal Intelligence's National Situation Report. A dedicated email account has been created for this. If your Division has relevant information on a developing protest, please forward this information to Idle_no_more@rcmp-grc.gc.ca. The frequency of national bulletins will be determined as we assess need and the volume of the information collected. In an effort to control the distribution of the National Situation Report, we will continue to provide this to all Criminal Operations Officers.

National Aboriginal Policing is also seeking input from CROPS Officers on what additional information or assistance may be required from your respective Division. NAPS will also be working with NOC to streamline reporting and reduce redundancy. For Situation Awareness information a formal BN is not required however, if a related incident meets the usual criteria for a BN, forward one in the usual fashion.

Subject: FYI - Aamjiwnaang plans for roving blockades of Sarnia oil refineries

APTN - National News (2013-01-04)

When members of the Aamjiwnaang First Nation in Sarnia agreed to shut down their blockade of a CN Rail line Wednesday at midnight that was believed to be the end of it.
But it's not over.
Saturday they will attempt to block traffic on the Blue Water Bridge that also serves as the US/Canada border access.
And then they're going to get strategic explains spokesman Ron Plain, who has been the face of the blockade almost from the beginning and as result is facing possible punishment from the Superior Court of Justice.
"Now that the blockade is down there will be a Phase 2 and that will include roving blockades," he said at his home in Sarnia Thursday.
They intend to shut down access to selected factories here for up to days at a time in the area known as Chemical Valley.
"In my vision of what can happen I'll look at the research of a company, for example Imperial Oil. I will look globally at what Imperial Oil's record is with Indigenous peoples, as well as their record of dealing with us here in Aamjiwnanng," said Plain, as part of wide-ranging interview with APTN National News that will look at the intimate details of the nearly two-week blockade to be aired next week.
He said he will use that research to determine how to proceed, but a site hasn't been picked yet.
"From that we will base a campaign against Imperial Oil saying this is what we want as we block you," he said. "It may be a 12-hour blockade, a 24-hour blockade, 36-hour blockade."

Were you able to confirm with Warren whether Tim O'Neil was added to CAPS distribution list? Further to this distribution, we've just received a request to add names from J Div to receive the report directly. I believe this was part of the conversation last Friday about distribution -- that CAPS would be responsible for the distribution and that CI resources would only be sending to the 7 names listed at the top of our Daily Sit report, as of Monday, Jan 7th.

This seems to be the 2nd request from J Division -- the first being from Laurie MacNeil -- to add them to the distribution list.

the meeting they held last Saturday was sort of successful having a good crowd present.

the attached document where a request was made to the Chief and Council of WPN, basically requesting approval for a protest at MP Mike Allen's office located at 672 Main Street, Woodstock, NB (Woodstock Police Force jurisdiction).

Approval has been provided on the condition it remains peaceful. should anyone get out of hands will be requested to leave and may request the assistance of the local police to intervene on their behalf.

A highway blockade is in the planning stages for January 16th, this pending the outcome of January 11th meeting with the PM. Plans are such that this time around, they want to have the opportunity to provide literature to motorist. I will consult with Brunway on what would be the safest way to provide WFN people that opportunity.

Karen, Robert,

Thank you on this.

We had the Idle No More mailbox created last Friday. Thank you for stressing the point that it is to be used for all correspondence to HQ (information that is).

Also, please be aware that we have discussed J Division's request (through Robert) to have the national sit rep sent to DCAS. In light of our recent streamlining, it was decided that since CROPs already receive the report, that any divisional unit seeking a copy of this document should liaise with their respective CROPs.

I agree. Let's do today's and Friday's until the Monday the 14th, and then see what transpires tomorrow. That may give us an idea if they will go ahead with events on the 16th, which was the original date for a national day of protest prior to the meeting being set for Jan 11th. The events of the 11th may change everything.

Christine,

The reports this week have included events up to and including Sunday, Jan 12th. In tomorrow's report, perhaps we should extend this time frame out a bit to include part of next week, as the past reports have been trying to incorporate events in the upcoming week.

What is your opinion concerning how far into next week we should go in reporting known scheduled events? Obviously everything hinges on the events occurring on Friday, which could change everything, but at the moment we have information for a few events scheduled up to next weekend.

Hi Lori,

Could you please review what I have so far?

Thank you,
Christine

First Nation and Non Aboriginal Groups have organized protests to voice their concerns with Bill C-45 which is the Government's omnibus budget implementation bill. On 2013-01-08, Atlantic Region Chiefs held their regular All Chiefs Forum in Moncton, NB. It has been reported that while the Chiefs themselves are not planning events, they are supporting their community and grassroots members by participating in their planned events. Peaceful events are being organized in support of the pending meeting between the Prime Minister and Aboriginal Leaders on Jan 11th, 2013 in Ottawa and also to carry on with the education, awareness and action of Idle No More. Some of the protests have included flash mobs, marches, and railway blockings in the Moncton area (?). These activities have caused traffic disruptions (What about disruption of freight transportation?)

The following relates to the "Idle no more" movement and related activities.

In "H" Division:

- Since December 14th, 2012, there have been 9 peaceful protests in the province with more to follow.
- On 2013-01-09 Mi'kmaq Rights Initiative advises informally through open source that the Assembly of NS Mi'kmaq Chiefs are considering legal action to protect the Moderate Livelihood Fishery.

In "J" Division:

- Records indicate 22 peaceful events in "J" Division since the beginning of the movement.
- Some of the protests have included flash mobs, marches, and railway blockings in the Moncton area. These activities have caused traffic disruptions. (A)

First Nation and Non-Aboriginal Groups have organized protests to voice their concerns with Bill C-45 which is the Government's omnibus budget implementation bill. There have been protests/demonstrations in both "H" and "J" Division, since December 2012. On 2013-01-08, Atlantic Region Chiefs held their regular All Chiefs Forum in Moncton, NB. It has been reported that while the Chiefs themselves are not planning events, they are supporting their community and grassroots members by participating in their planned events. Peaceful events are being organized in both provinces in support of the pending meeting between the Prime Minister and Aboriginal Leaders on ~~Jan 11th, 2013~~ 2013-01-11 (change date format for consistency) in Ottawa and also to carry on with the education, awareness and action of Idle No More. ~~Some of the protests have included flash mobs, marches, and railway blockings in the Moncton area (?). These activities have caused traffic disruptions (What about disruption of freight transportation?)~~

The following relates to the "Idle No More" movement and related activities.

In "H" Division:

- Since 2012-12-14 ~~December 14th, 2012~~, there have been nine (9) peaceful protests in the province with more to follow.
- On 2013-01-09 Mi'kmaq Rights Initiative advises informally through open source that the Assembly of NS Mi'kmaq Chiefs ~~are~~ is considering legal action to protect the Moderate Livelihood Fishery.

In "J" Division:

- Records indicate ~~22~~ peaceful events in "J" Division since the beginning of the movement. (There have been 15 events between Dec 21 and Jan 9. There are 6 planned for Jan 11, and 1 for Jan 16th, so far)
- Some of the protests have included flash mobs (did not see mention of flash mobs in the spread sheet), marches, and railway blockings in the Moncton area (I don't know the province well enough to know how close some of these events are to the Moncton area). These activities have caused traffic disruptions. (A)

Alternate suggestion for "J" Division: Records indicate 15 peaceful events in "J" Division since the beginning of the movement. The majority of demonstrations/protests have focused on the transportation industry – partial blockades/traffic slowdowns on major highways and blockades of the rail lines – causing both traffic disruptions and interruption of rail service.

Subject: Media - Details of the meeting

Aboriginal communities in Quebec are planning various protests across the province, as a meeting between Prime Minister Stephen Harper and Assembly of First Nations chiefs is expected to take place today in Ottawa.
In Montreal, a protest is planned for this afternoon near the Palais des Congrès.
Pressure tactics and protests are also planned by members of the Listuguj community in the Gaspé region and in Uashat, an Innu community near Sept-Îles.
The Idle No More movement, which began in November and quickly spread across the country, stemmed from discontent among First Nation's people towards the federal government's general stance on indigenous rights and, more specifically, omnibus Bill C-45 (http://www.cbc.ca/news/canada/story/2013/01/04/f-idlenomore-faq.html). Groups have expressed concern that the bill erodes the rights of native peoples and have been angered by what they say is a lack of consultation on changes to environmental protection regulations.
The grassroots movement gained a serious following and significant media attention through rallies (http://www.cbc.ca/news/canada/montreal/story/2012/12/22/montreal-oka-idle-no-more.html), teach-ins, and social media. The hunger strike of Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence has also drawn support to the cause.
The Facebook page of the movement says it wants to "stop the Harper government from passing more laws and legislation that will further erode treaty and indigenous rights and the rights of all Canadians."
Questions over who will attend today's meeting — and new demands about where it should be held — created confusion yesterday (http://www.cbc.ca/news/politics/story/2013/01/10/pol-first-nations-chiefs-day-before-pm-meeting.html).
Chiefs gathered at a meeting at the Delta hotel in Ottawa on Thursday evening, with some saying they will attend the meeting with the prime minister, but "many" saying they won't, Evan Solomon, host of CBC News Network's Power & Politics, reported via Twitter.
http://www.cbc.ca/news/canada/montreal/story/2013/01/11/montreal-quebec-protests-idle-no-more-harper.html

A meeting between Prime Minister Stephen Harper and Assembly of First Nations chiefs is in question amid demands that the Governor General be present at the gathering.
Questions over who will attend the meeting — and new demands about where it should be held — created confusion on the eve of the gathering called to discuss concerns about the relationship between the federal government and First Nations.
Chiefs gathered at a meeting at the Delta hotel in Ottawa on Thursday evening, with some saying they will attend the meeting with the prime minister, but "many" saying they won't, Evan Solomon, host of CBC News Network's Power & Politics, reported via Twitter.
"The meeting is up in the air," another Solomon tweet said at about 9:30 p.m. ET
As chief after chief got up to announce support for Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence's stance that the Governor General must attend, Atleo eventually took the microphone to plea for unity. He admitted he had made mistakes and that the membership of the Assembly of First Nations was divided. What he left unsaid was whether any meeting with Harper would take place at all, or how he would proceed.
"This is not a perfect organization and I am not a perfect person. I accept a share of responsibility and I have responded to criticisms from last January," Atleo told a rowdy crowded room of chiefs and delegates.
"We need to continue to stand united — chiefs, delegates.... If we are to be divided at a moment like this, the governments will see that."
He then left the conference hall, with insiders indicating he would work through the night with his executive in order to figure out the best way forward.
Some of his allies insisted he would meet with Harper and cabinet ministers as planned on Friday afternoon — in private, in the Prime Minister's Office with a relatively small delegation of chiefs.
"It is our intention to move forward with the meeting," said B.C. Regional Chief Jody Wilson-Raybould.
Atleo himself suggested he would hold the meeting, and then push for a broader meeting on Jan. 24, and a commitment to hold broad, open meetings with chiefs at regular intervals.
"We need them to commit to sit with you on a regular, ongoing basis, look you in the eye the way it was done in the treaty-making, in a sacred manner. And let's transform this relationship. Because our kids are dependent on every single one of us," he said.'Very dictatorial and unrelenting'
Grand Chief Stan Louttit, of the Mushkegowuk territory that includes Attawapiskat First Nation, told Solomon on his program Thursday that the chiefs were united in the belief that the meeting would be off unless both Harper and Gov. Gen. David Johnston were in attendance.
"That's what the chiefs debated this afternoon," Louttit said. "And there is unanimity on the floor from our meeting at the conference centre that we want both the Governor General and the prime minister at our meeting tomorrow."
Manitoba chiefs said they would not attend Friday's meeting unless it was moved to the hotel.
"Unfortunately, the prime minister has been very dictatorial and unrelenting in his position to control and set the agenda for this meeting," the Manitoba chiefs said in a release.
Meanwhile, Harper's director of communications, Andrew MacDougall, said the government will stick with the plan for Harper to attend the working meeting at his office, and for the Governor General to host a separate ceremonial meeting at Rideau Hall Friday evening.
Johnston had said that he wouldn't attend a working meeting on public policy, despite demands by some First Nations leaders, including Spence, that he be there in his role as the Queen's representative in Canada.

Spence has limited her food intake for the past month, consuming only herbal tea and fish broth since Dec. 11. She says she will continue her protest until the meeting happens and said she wouldn't stop unless Johnston was at the meeting.Spence's fast may continue

It's not clear yet whether a ceremonial meeting will meet those demands. Spence's spokesman, Danny Metatawabin, first told CBC News that the meeting with Johnston was a positive step, but then said if he isn't at the same meeting as Harper then it would be a failure.

Spence has maintained Harper, Johnston, Ontario Premier Dalton McGuinty and First Nations leaders must be in the same room, having discussions together. Louttit said on Power & Politics that Spence won't be attending.

McGuinty has an unrelated news conference in Toronto Friday morning and then leaves for a trade mission to China.

The working meeting is to be held at Langevin Block, the building that houses the Prime Minister's Office, and is closed to media, a spokeswoman for Harper said in an email.

The meeting, if it goes ahead, will start at 1 p.m. ET with remarks by Harper and Atleo, with a plenary session from 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. to discuss the treaty relationship, aboriginal rights and economic development.

Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Minister John Duncan and Treasury Board president Tony Clement will be at the plenary sessions.

Harper and Atleo will "engage in a dialogue" about the outcomes of the plenary session from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m.

NDP Leader Tom Mulcair was to meet with 20 national and regional First Nations chiefs Thursday night at Stornoway, the residence of the Opposition leader. However, that meeting was delayed and eventually cancelled due to the evening meeting at the Delta. Spence will not be at that meeting.'Poverty is killing First Nations people'

Earlier Thursday, the country's top chief said poverty is killing First Nations people, as he laid out goals for the meeting with the Harper.

Atleo said the AFN has heard the voices of Idle No More activists calling for action.

"We are absolute in our convictions and in our determination to achieve our rights," he said.

Referring to the number of missing and murdered aboriginal women, Atleo's voice caught as he recalled going with a family to a morgue after a 16-year-old girl was killed.

"This is what our people are saying. That poverty is killing our people. That the history of colonization and unilateral action on the part of governments will stop now," he said.

Atleo, along with regional chiefs Jody Wilson-Raybould and Perry Bellegarde, laid out a number of specific requests, including treaty implementation, treaty enforcement and a new financial relationship with the Crown. Bellegarde says one funding formula is 19 years old and hasn't kept up with either inflation or the total First Nations population.

Wilson-Raybould and Bellegarde both pointed to the need for a new division within the Prime Minister's Office or the Privy Council office to manage the policy changes they're asking for.

"The second point we talked about is, again, lands and resources being unilaterally developed without our involvement. That creates poverty. That's not good for our country. We need to deal with that," Bellegarde said, recommending Natural Resources Minister Joe Oliver should be working on that file with the AFN.'Poor in our own homelands'

The chiefs also mentioned disputes over changes to environmental legislation the Conservative government made in its two omnibus budget implementation bills in 2012.

"Our treaties were not meant to make us poor in our own homelands. But that's what we see," Bellegarde said.

Wilson-Raybould said the Indian Act needs to be fundamentally changed.

"Imposed solutions will not work," she said. "We have the solutions right across the country in terms of developing and extricating ourselves from the Indian Act."

The meetings comes after nearly two months of Idle No More protests by First Nations people, as well as Spence's month-long hunger strike.'Nothing left to lose'

First Nations people in Canada have "nothing left to lose," the grand chief of the Assembly of Manitoba Chiefs told reporters Thursday morning, pointing to the problems with lack of housing, unsafe drinking water and poor health in the community.

Derek Nepinak said the Idle No More movement has enough people to "bring the Canadian economy to its knees."

"It can stop Prime Minister Harper's resource development plan and his billion-dollar plan to develop resources in our ancestral territories. We have the warriors that are standing up now that are willing to go that far. So we're not here to make requests. We're here to demand attention and to demand an end to 140 years of colonial rule," Nepinak said.

The Manitoba chiefs distributed a list of 10 treaty principles in advance, affirming their sovereignty and that Canada "has an ongoing obligation to fulfil the treaty according to the spirit and intent."

À moins de 24 heures d'une rencontre avec le premier ministre Stephen Harper, le chef national de l'Assemblée des Premières Nations (APN), Shawn Atleo, a reconnu jeudi soir qu'il exitait des divisions entre les chefs autochtones, et que lui et son organisation avaient commis des erreurs.

Des négociations entre les représentants autochtones ont eu lieu jeudi soir et se poursuivront vendredi. Lors d'une conférence de presse, M. Atleo a souhaité que ceux-ci mettent de côté leurs différends pour éviter que les gouvernements fédéral, provinciaux et territoriaux en profitent.

En fin de soirée, le chef Bill Erasmus a affirmé au journaliste de CBC Evan Solomon que les chefs voulaient que le premier ministre et le gouverneur général soient tous deux présents à la réunion, dans un endroit suffisamment grand pour accueillir tous les chefs autochtones voulant y participer, et non seulement une délégation.

Plus tôt dans la journée, les chefs des Premières Nations du Manitoba et de l'Ontario ont annoncé qu'ils refusaient de participer aux discussions avec le premier ministre si le gouverneur général est absent. Le grand chef de l'Assemblée des chefs du Manitoba, Derek Nepinak, a insisté sur le fait que les communautés autochtones en ont assez (http://www.radio-canada.ca/regions/manitoba/2013/01/10/004-idle-no-more-nepinak-ottawa.shtml) et qu'elles n'ont plus rien à perdre. Le gouverneur général David Johnston

Pour le moment, le gouverneur général, David Johnston, a accepté d'être l'hôte d'une cérémonie protocolaire à sa résidence, Rideau Hall, vendredi soir, après la réunion du premier ministre et d'une délégation de chefs autochtones.
Le bureau du premier ministre a demandé au gouverneur général de rencontrer la délégation de chefs autochtones à la suite d'un entretien avec Shawn Atleo et les chefs régionaux de la Saskatchewan, Perry Bellegarde, et de la Colombie-Britannique, Jody Wilson-Raybould, membres du Comité exécutif national de l'APN.
La chef d'Attawapiskat, Theresa Spence, qui réclamait la présence du représentant de la reine (http://www.radio-canada.ca/nouvelles/National/2013/01/09/001-ottawa-autochtones-rencontre.shtml) à la réunion de travail, a fait savoir qu'elle poursuivrait sa grève de la faim. Plus tôt dans la journée, son porte-parole avait toutefois affirmé que la rencontre à Rideau Hall était un pas dans la bonne direction.
Mme Spence n'était pas présente à une rencontre entre 20 chefs autochtones et le chef de l'opposition officielle à la Chambre des communes, Thomas Mulcair, à la résidence officielle de ce dernier, Stornoway.

Les attentes des chefs autochtones

Toujours jeudi, les chefs autochtones ont fait le point sur leurs attentes. Ils estiment que la réunion de vendredi est cruciale pour l'avenir des relations entre le Canada et les Premières Nations.
« Nous sommes arrivés à un moment sans pareil dans l'histoire de nos peuples », a soutenu le chef national Shawn Atleo.« Les gouvernements doivent comprendre que notre détermination est inébranlable. » — Shawn Atleo, chef de l'APN

Le chef de l'APN était accompagné des chefs Bellegarde et Wilson-Raybould qui l'ont aidé à déterminer les priorités à présenter à la réunion.
Les chefs autochtones souhaitent insister sur trois points :
une mécanique de mise en oeuvre des traités signés, avec une implication du bureau du premier ministre;

le partage des revenus tirés des ressources naturelles;
un meilleur financement des programmes, qu'ils souhaiteraient voir indexés au coût de la vie et ajustés à leur taux de croissance démographique.

Le chef Atleo a expliqué que le contexte, avec la force du mouvement Idle No More et la grève de la faim de la chef d'Attawapiskat, fait en sorte que c'est, pour eux, le moment d'agir.« Notre peuple demande une transformation fondamentale de notre relation avec le gouvernement du Canada maintenant. Nous avons besoin de vraies solutions et d'un vrai changement pour notre peuple immédiatement. » — Shawn Atleo, chef national de l'APN

À huis clos

La réunion de travail de vendredi se tiendra dans l'édifice Langevin, à Ottawa. Les médias n'y auront pas accès.
Voici les activités prévues lors de la rencontre :
13 h - Séance d'ouverture et allocution du premier ministre Stephen Harper et du chef national Shawn Atleo;

16 h - 17 h - Le premier ministre, Stephen Harper, et le chef national, Shawn Atleo, dialogueront avec les présidents au sujet des résultats de la séance plénière.

National Day of Action: Campaign of indefinitie economic disruptions will include railway and highway blockades

50-60 AFN Chiefs have discussed plans to launch country-wide disruptions by mid-Jan in support of Chief Spence. The date of Jan 16th was allegedly noted as a day to launch a campagin of indefinite economic disruptions, including railway and highway blockades. Of note, meda reported that INM organizers issued a statement distancing the grassroots movement from potential actions by the Chiefs.

Hi Lori,
I will give you a summery update in a few minutes.
You can find below a summary of main items on the various dynamics for the time being
Christine
Chiefs who boycotted the meeting had wanted the Governor General to attend it, but David Johnston planned instead to host native leaders late in the day, after formal talks ended.
some chiefs who boycotted the meeting suggested that they weren't happy that executives from the AFN were inside Harper's office.
These chiefs reportedly planned to meet at a downtown Ottawa hotel later in the day.

The boycott was a sign of discontent with the federal government, but also with AFN national chief, Shawn Atleo, who was in the four-hour meeting with Harper along with First Nations' representatives from some, though not all, provinces

We've put everything in writing and that's being discussed and dialogued right now."
Spence decried the devolution of power in Canada from the Crown to the prime minister, and suggested the news media were misleading Canadians. A spokesperson said she would continue her liquid-only diet, which she has been on for the last month.
Meanwhile, Andrew MacDougall, Harper's director of communications, said the AFN talks with the prime minister were proceeding as planned and were aimed at addressing First Nations' concerns on the treaty relationship and aboriginal rights, and economic development.
"We're looking forward to having a productive discussion about that and hope we'll be able to make some progress. Progress is made at the table. The prime minister is willing to meet and work with First Nations and aboriginal leaders who do want to make progress on this and other issues," MacDougall told Postmedia News.
For her part, Spence argued the federal government has for years been violating longstanding treaties with First Nations and that Friday's meeting should be an opportunity to help "resolve broken promises" and renew the Crown's relationship with aboriginals.
First Nations deserve better housing, health care and revenue sharing from the federal government, Spence said.
"This government has been abusing us, raping the land," she added. "The treaty was not about control, it's about sharing, honouring and respecting each other."
Indeed, the night before the meeting, many chiefs from across the country declared their support for Spence and demanded the prime minister and Governor General both attend the working meeting, which Johnston did not do.
Pam Palmater, the Ryerson University professor who was Atleo's chief rival in last summer's national chief elections, suggested Atleo's decision to meet Harper undercut the validity of the AFN.
"Atleo has no choice but to listen to the chiefs, because he has no independent political authority," she added.
Chiefs are demanding the federal government respect long-standing treaty rights, create a new agreement on natural resource development and revenue sharing, and revisit contentious federal government legislation, including the Indian Act.
Sharp divisions were evident as up to 200 chiefs gathered at the hotel Thursday evening.
"If we have to shut down this economy, then we will."

OTTAWA — The sounds of drumming, singing and chanting filled the steps of the Prime Minister Stephen Harper's office Friday afternoon, as chiefs from the Assembly of First Nations met with senior cabinet ministers under a cloud of displeasure from many regional chiefs who boycotted the meeting.

Chiefs who boycotted the sit-down with Harper wanted the Governor General at the get-together. Gov. Gen. David Johnston plans to host native leaders late in the day, after formal talks end.

Speaking to a few thousand protesters on Parliament Hill, many of those chiefs who boycotted the meeting — some threatened to prevent chiefs from entering Harper's office — suggested that they weren't happy that executives from the AFN were inside Harper's office in the Langevin building. A spokesman for Chief Theresa Spence, the Attawapiskat chief who pushed for the sit-down with Harper and Johnston, said chiefs were meeting at a downtown Ottawa hotel later in the day to plot their next move, which could signal a challenge to AFN National Chief Shawn Atleo's leadership.

Atleo was in the meeting with Harper, as were First Nations' representatives from some, though not all, provinces. The Prime Minister's Office said Stephen Harper will be on hand for the entire four-hour meeting, not just the beginning and end, as initially planned.

"We're tabling our position formally there in writing to the prime minister that we need a high-level process committed from the prime minister's office and cabinet for treaty and implementation of inherent rights. It's got to be pushed forward," said Chief Perry Bellegarde, Saskatchewan's regional chief, who boycotted the meeting with Harper.

"We've put everything in writing and that's being discussed and dialogued right now."

None of it was enough to convince Spence, a northern Ontario chief who has been on a protest fast for a month, to begin eating solid food.

Spence emerged briefly Friday morning from the teepee where she has been holding a fast to protest the government's treatment of aboriginal people. She talked briefly about the hardships native Canadians face and urged the government to "renew" the relationship.

She was interrupted by shouting as she tried to make a statement. A spokesperson said she would take no questions.

In a rambling but defiant statement, Spence decried the devolution of power in Canada from the Crown to the prime minister, and suggested the news media were misleading Canadians. A spokesperson said she would continue her liquid-only diet, which she has been on for the last month.

Spence said it's important for both Harper and Johnston to participate in the meeting with the Assembly of First Nations.

Not everyone felt she should continue her strike, however.

An eminent judge who chairs the government's Truth and Reconciliation Commission urged her to start eating again.

Murray Sinclair, the Manitoba judge and chairman of the federally created commission — which emerged from the residential schools apology process — praised a "new, bright and younger leadership" of Canadian aboriginals that make up the "Idle No More" movement, in the face of what he called "tremendously negative backlash and outright racism."

He said on his Facebook page that the movement, and Spence's protest, have achieved enormous results for aboriginal people, but he urged her to return to eating solid food.

Andrew MacDougall, Harper's director of communications, said the AFN talks with the prime minister were proceeding as planned and are aimed at addressing First Nations' concerns on the treaty relationship and aboriginal rights, and economic development.

"We're looking forward to having a productive discussion about that and hope we'll be able to make some progress. Progress is made at the table. The prime minister is willing to meet and work with First Nations and aboriginal leaders who do want to make progress on this and other issues," MacDougall told Postmedia News.

Spence, meanwhile, argued the federal government has for years been violating longstanding treaties with First Nations and that Friday's meeting is an opportunity to help "resolve broken promises" and renew the Crown's relationship with aboriginals. First Nations deserve better housing, health care and revenue sharing from the federal government, Spence said.

"We share the land all these years and we never got anything from it," she said.

"This government has been abusing us, raping the land," she added. "The treaty was not about control, it's about sharing, honouring and respecting each other."

Protests were planned across Canada Friday as part of the Idle No More movement — following a day of drama Thursday among First Nations chiefs and a week that has catapulted aboriginal issues onto the national stage.

Bellegarde — one of the leaders initially scheduled to meet with Harper on Friday — said late Thursday he would not attend the talks and stood in solidarity with Spence and other leaders about the need for the Governor General to attend the entire meeting, not just a ceremonial one late in the day.

Indeed, in speech after speech Thursday, the day before the meeting, chiefs from across the country declared their support for Spence and demanded the prime minister and Governor General both attend the meeting.

"If the AFN decided to go to that meeting against the will and decision of the chiefs, then the AFN would no longer be a valid representative organization of the chiefs," said Pam Palmater, the Ryerson University professor who was Atleo's chief rival in last summer's national chief elections.

"Atleo has no choice but to listen to the chiefs, because he has no independent political authority," she added.

Chiefs are demanding the federal government respect long-standing treaty rights, create a new agreement on natural resource development and revenue sharing, and revisit contentious federal government legislation, including the Indian Act.

The tough talk and emotional pleas threatened to scuttle progress.

Sharp divisions were evident as up to 200 chiefs gathered at the hotel Thursday evening.
"No longer will the prime minister dictate to us," said Onion Lake First Nation Chief Wallace Fox.
"If we have to shut down this economy, then we will."

KINGSTON, ONT.—Police in Ontario are investigating after a Sir John A. Macdonald statue was vandalized overnight, saying it may have been politically motivated.
On what would have been the 198th birthday of Canada's first prime minister, the statue in a Kingston park was splattered with red paint and the words "This is stolen land," "murderer" and "colonizer" were sprayed on the statue's base.
Kingston police Const. Steve Koopman says city crews are working to clean the monument and an event at the statue site to mark the former prime minister's 198th birthday will continue as planned.
Koopman says a forensics officer is on the scene gathering evidence and that police intend to speak to nearby residents for information on who attacked the statue.
He says police are not ruling out a possible link with an Idle No More protest occurring in Kingston Friday, but that they currently have no evidence the two are connected.
Koopman says the defacement could be part of an effort to smear the aboriginal movement.
"It would look to be a political statement but at the same time people might be seeking that for political purposes," he said.
"We're going to be cautious as to what the motive is at this point."

Good Morning Lori,

I just noticed this morning that I had the date as 2013-01-23. Not sure how that happened but I will confirm that it should be 2013-01-11 and has already occurred. I apologize for the error.

As for information regarding the 2013-01-16, according to detachment sources at Grand Rapids information suggests that on January 16, 2013 another long term road closure may be initiated. It was not specific to this location.
Information provided to Gypsumville members indicated that the big protest is going to be on Wednesday January 16th, 2013 everywhere all over the country and in Fairford (near Gypsumville).

I have cc'd this email to Sgt. Jim Glavin as he is the INM coordinator for the Division and should any further concrete information surface, it will be provided accordingly.

Good morning Sgt. Arsenault,

My name is Lori Schnittker. I work in Criminal Intelligence in Ottawa, and I have been tasked with preparing a daily situation report for D/Comm Cabana, as well as other members of senior management at NHQ, on the daily events/protests associated with Idle No More. We have received a copy of your BN from NOC, as they are forwarding relevant information to us through the Idle_No_More mailbox which we have created to collect information on protest/events around the country.

In the Background section of the BN, you mentioned two protests. The first, a road closure at PTH#6 near Grand Rapids involving about 12 people, and that it occurred on 2013-01-23 at 17:05 hrs.; the second, a possible protest near Gypsumville on 2013-01-11. There was obviously a typo in regards to the first event, and I would like to confirm if the closure near Grand Rapids was on the 11th of January or the 13th of January.

At the end of your BN under Current Status, it is indicated that information suggests further protests may occur at these locations on Jan 16th. This is information that we did not have previously, and I would like to indicate this in our list of upcoming events as possibly occurring. If you receive information that firms this up, I would appreciate it if you or someone in your area could drop us a line. Please send it to Idle_No_More.

I would appreciate confirmation of the date of the event at Grand Rapids as soon as your are able so that we can include it in our list of upcoming events.

Thanks
Lori

The following persons attended the meeting of Friday (2012-01-11):

From the government
PM Harper.
Aboriginal Affairs Minister John Duncan.
Treasury Board president Tony Clement.
Health Minister Leona Aglukkaq.
Parliamentary Secretary Greg Rickford.
AANDC officials, including Deputy Minister Michael Wernick and senior assistants.
Senior officials from the Privy Council, Natural Resources and HRSDC (U)

From the Assembly of First Nations
National Chief Shawn Atleo.

Regional Chief Roger Augustine, George Ginnish (New Brunswick/P.E.I.).
Regional Chief Ghislain Picard, Grand Chief Matthew Coon Come (Quebec).
Leo Omani, Norma Johnstone, Marcel Head (Saskatchewan).
Regional Chief Jody Wilson-Raybould, Grand Chief Ed John, Doug White (B.C.).
Regional Chief Mike Smith, Eric Fairclough (Yukon).

Despite that meeting, some AFN Chiefs continue their plans for a national day of protest on January 16, which will include blockades of highways, rail lines, and border crossings for 24 hours. Grand Chief Gordon Peters, Grand Chief of the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians in Ontario, has advised that chiefs in Ontario, Manitoba, and the Northwest Territories [Northern Superior Regional Grand Chief Peter Collins] will conduct a three-hour blockade of highways and rail lines on January 16. According to Grand Chief Derek Nepinak, Grand Chief of the Assembly of Manitoba Chiefs, the Aboriginal community has the ability to cripple Canada's economy and the warriors "... are willing to go that far." (U)

Other AFN Chiefs are supporting the INM movement. The INM organizers have stated that they are not in support of blocking roads, rails, or bridges on January 16; rather, they are calling for a World Day of Action on January 28, to coincide with the return of Canadian MPs to the House of Commons. INM founders [Nina Wilson, Sylvia McAdam, Jessica Gordon &Sheelah McLean] have expressed publicly their intention to "work outside of the systems of government", including the traditional AFN structure. (U)

Two Alberta-based First Nations – the Mikisew Cree FN and the Frog Lake FN – have chosen a different approach than that of the INM movement or the AFN Chiefs. They are taking the federal government to court to challenge its ability to pass legislation, such as Bill C-45 and Bill C-38, which affects Aboriginal treaty rights without consultation with the Aboriginal communities. (U)

2- SARNIA COURT ORDERS

According to recent media reports, Ontario Superior Court Justice David Brown criticized the Sarnia Police Services (SPS) and the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) in the application of an injunction to halt a railway blockade issued by his order on January 5, 2013. Judge Brown was quoted by one media source saying, "That kind of passivity by the police leads me to doubt that a future exists in this province for the use of court injunctions in cases of public demonstrations." (U)

Subject: Idle No More co-founder uneasy with Chief Spence - CBC (Saskatchewan 2013-01-14 21:39)

One of the originators of the Idle No More movement says she is concerned with how Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence has taken a leadership role in the campaign. "Idle No More is the face of all indigenous people, all grassroots people," Sylvia McAdam said Monday, following a forum with university students in Regina. "It's not just the face of one. We hardly have any communications with Chief Spence."

The Idle No More campaign originated on social media, first on Facebook and later with Twitter, when Sylvia McAdam, Nina Wilson, Sheelah Mclean and Jessica Gordon expressed concern about provisions of Bill C-45, which reduce the number of federally protected waterways. "We're going to get off the couch and we're not going to be idle any more," McAdam said about the nascent idea behind the movement. "And we said, 'Why don't we just call it Idle No More?' And it just stuck."

McAdam also questioned the actions of some First Nations planning blockades at border crossings and rail lines. "I think those portray a message of aggressiveness," McAdam said. "That's not peaceful. "We have to be careful with Idle No More that we don't go into areas where we're saying, 'Save the gophers,'" she added. "There has to be a purpose behind it."
She said she is worried about the movement's core message, about protecting land and water in Canada and promoting indigenous sovereignty.
But even McAdam was not precise when it came to defining sovereignty. "We're still talking about that," she said. "We're still defining it as we go." McAdam was also adamant that neither the Assembly of First Nations, nor individual chiefs, are in charge of the Idle No More movement. "History has shown that when movements like this happen, if leadership takes over it kills the movement," she said.
McAdam said the movement is keen to have a global Idle No More rally near the end of January.

http://www.cbc.ca/news/canada/calgary/story/2013/01/14/calgary-idle-no-more-latest.html
Some Idle No More organizers in Calgary are appealing to their fellow activists to avoid tactics like roadblocks.
It comes after a group of protesters effectively shut down the 14th Street bridge (http://www.cbc.ca/news/canada/calgary/story/2013/01/12/calgary-idle-no-more-saturday.html) on Saturday. Mayor Naheed Nenshi says he recognizes their right to protest, but says participants need to be more respectful.
"You have to be respectful and you have to make sure you're not disrupting people's lives," Nenshi said. "Both from a legal perspective, but also as a longtime activist, that's a bad way to get community support."
Not all of those involved with the Idle No More movement were on board with the idea of shutting down traffic on the bridge.
Chantal Chagnon, an Idle No More organizer, said she was not involved in the 14th Street bridge blockade.
"As soon as the blockade happened, I personally left and I know a lot of other people did," Chagnon said.
She also said organizers need to make sure the movement remains peaceful.
"This is a grassroots movement, but we have to remain peaceful ... one person can really spoil the bunch.... You just have to keep your intentions good," Chagnon said.Wrong direction
Michael Smith, a Métis University of Calgary student, says the movement is heading in the wrong direction.
"As the protest goes on, (we're) moving farther from the ability to have constructive dialogue, not only between the prime minister and the First Nation chief at a high level, also between you and me on the street," Smith said.
Chagnon says more demonstrations are planned as protestors continue to call for the repeal of omnibus Bill C-45, which they say erodes the rights of aboriginal people.
Calgary police are still determining what, if any, charges will be laid against the protesters behind the 14th Street blockade on Saturday. Those charges could range from a city bylaw violation, traffic violation or a charge under the Criminal Code.

Good Morning Lori,

I just noticed this morning that I had the date as 2013-01-23. Not sure how that happened but I will confirm that it should be 2013-01-11 and has already occurred. I apologize for the error.

As for information regarding the 2013-01-16, according to detachment sources at Grand Rapids information suggests that on January 16, 2013 another long term road closure may be initiated. It was not specific to this location.

Information provided to Gypsumville members indicated that the big protest is going to be on Wednesday January 16th, 2013 everywhere all over the country and in Fairford (near Gypsumville).

I have cc'd this email to Sgt. Jim Glavin as he is the INM coordinator for the Division and should any further concrete information surface, it will be provided accordingly.

Good morning Sgt. Arsenault,

My name is Lori Schnittker. I work in Criminal Intelligence in Ottawa, and I have been tasked with preparing a daily situation report for D/Comm Cabana, as well as other members of senior management at NHQ, on the daily events/protests associated with Idle No More. We have received a copy of your BN from NOC, as they are forwarding relevant information to us through the Idle_No_More mailbox which we have created to collect information on protest/events around the country.

In the Background section of the BN, you mentioned two protests. The first, a road closure at PTH#6 near Grand Rapids involving about 12 people, and that it occurred on 2013-01-23 at 17:05 hrs.; the second, a possible protest near Gypsumville on 2013-01-11. There was obviously a typo in regards to the first event, and I would like to confirm if the closure near Grand Rapids was on the 11th of January or the 13th of January.

At the end of your BN under Current Status, it is indicated that information suggests further protests may occur at these locations on Jan 16th. This is information that we did not have previously, and I would like to indicate this in our list of upcoming events as possibly occurring. If you receive information that firms this up, I would appreciate it if you or someone in your area could drop us a line. Please send it to Idle_No_More.

I would appreciate confirmation of the date of the event at Grand Rapids as soon as you are able so that we can include it in our list of upcoming events.

Thanks
Lori

Gitwangak, BC – The Gitxsan of Gitwangak announce that there will be a CN Rail Blockade happening on January 16, 2013, between the times of 10:00 am and 6:00 pm.
As Idle No More moves ahead with blockades throughout North America Gitwagak moves ahead to show their support for the Idle No More actions as well as the ongoing blockade with the Unist'ot'en Camp.
"We the people of Gitwangak, of the Gitxsan Nation, stand unified on this day of action to answer the call of all first nations across Canada in support of idle no more and to oppose Bill C-45. Bill C-45 is designed to provide quick development access to resource extraction industries, which operate on First Nations lands. Bill C45's amendments to the Indian Act will give the ministry of Aboriginal affairs access over First Nations lands and the government authority to determine the surrender of any portion of any first Nation territory at any given time.
Furthermore, new changes to the Fisheries Act undermine Canada's Ecology and removes legal barriers to oil, pipeline and other companies. Under the new changes, the developer will no longer be responsible for fixing the environmental and habitat damage they cause. We are the stewards of the land. We will continue to fight for future generations." States Fred Johnson, Spokesperson for the Gitwangak people.
The Gitxsan vow to escalate actions in the near future if genuine progress is not made between the Federal and Provincial Governments and the Indigenous Peoples of Canada. Indigenous peoples of Canada have inspired a movement that has gone global. The Idle No More movement focuses on Treaty and Non-Treaty experiences with injustices as in the recent Omnibus Bill passed by the majority Conservative government of Canada. For the Gitxsan and Wet'suwet'en, the famous 1997 Delamuukw v. Queen Supreme Court of Canada Case stated that meaningful negotiations between government agencies and Gitxsan and Wet'suwet'en Peoples must happen in a timely manner.
The Gitxsan and Wet'suwet'en have not seen any form of meaningful negotiations since that court case more than 15 years ago.
"As long as meaningful negotiations are not engaged in between the parties the members of the Gitxsan and Wet'suwet'en Nations will keep on pressing the issue with the governments of Canada and British Columbia. We will not go away or be silenced. We've come too far and fought too hard for that to happen." Stated Fred Johnson.

Karen, Robert,

Thank you on this.

We had the Idle No More mailbox created last Friday. Thank you for stressing the point that it is to be used for all correspondence to HQ (information that is).

Also, please be aware that we have discussed J Division's request (through Robert) to have the national sit rep sent to DCAS. In light of our recent streamlining, it was decided that since CROPs already receive the report, that any divisional unit seeking a copy of this document should liaise with their respective CROPs.

Best Regards,

SPROS File #: N/A

Issue:

On January 16, 2013, railway police reported finding metal bars on railroad tracks near Belleville, Ont. Rail police suggest this incident represented a threat to public safety and a possible escalation in activity by Idle No More protesters.

Background:

On January 16, 2013, members of First Nations groups from across Canada blockaded various sections of rail as part of a National Day of Action (NDA) that was planned amid the ongoing Idle No More protests.

While some of the NDA blockades disrupted rail services, all protest actions at rail sites were peaceful.

Current status/update:

Strategic Considerations:

CIIT will provide updates with any new information that becomes available. CIIT will continue to liaise with partners and monitor ongoing incidents related to Idle No More protests in the event that there are future escalations in activity.

Hi Tim,

I'm answering on behalf of Christine, and the team working on the briefings here in CI.

Protestors have indeed disrupted traffic flow in Manitoba and in Edmonton -- on highways --

There was a demonstration in BC where traffic was blocked on the Pat Bay (Patricia Bay) Hwy which apparently connects Victoria with the airport in and the Swartz Bay ferry terminal.

Hope that answers these questions.

1. The RCMP is a participant in the Government of Canada's Cyber Security Strategy and would conduct investigations related to criminal cyber activity on Critical Infrastructure Sectors if requested.

Public Safety Canada is the lead agency for the Government on Cyber Security and is continuously working with the critical infrastructure sectors to improve voluntary incident reporting and to expand situational awareness in an ever changing and high risk environment that the cyber environment poses.

The Canadian Cyber Incident Response Centre (CCIRC) operates within Public Safety Canada, and works with partners inside and outside Canada to mitigate cyber threats to vital networks outside the federal government. They support the owners and operators of systems of national importance, including critical infrastructure, and is responsible for coordinating the national response to any serious cyber incidents.

Subject: Questions ....

Good afternoon Gentlemen,

I fielded two phone conversations this afternoon that I thought our good friends at CIIT may be able to provide some insight ....

1. Does CIIT look after reporting cyber related occurrences that comes to your attention via the INSET's and NSES' s to the Canadian Cyber Incident Response Centre?

2. I have had several inquiries over the past couple of days potential impact that the Idol No More campaign could have was advised that the Idol No More campaign has started to disrupt traffic flow in Manitoba (Winnipeg?) and in Edmonton. Have you heard any info./intel. to confirm this?

Thank you for any feedback you might be able to provide on these two topics.

Cheers,

Neil

Subject: Manitoba chiefs meet to consider opting out of national group (Global News Winnipeg, 2013-01-22 0803)

http://www.globalwinnipeg.com/manitoba+chiefs+meet+to+consider+opting+out+of+national+group/6442793365/story.html

Manitoba chiefs meeting Tuesday and Wednesday plan to discuss opting out of the national Assembly of First Nations.

The Assembly of Manitoba Chiefs decided to consider leaving the national organization after the AFN met with Prime Minister Stephen Harper in Ottawa earlier this month. Manitoba chiefs felt the meeting should include the Governor General and refused to attend.

Tuesday's meeting at Winnipeg's Marlborough Hotel will address whether the Manitoba chiefs want to continue to have the national assembly speak for provincial First Nations on treaty negotiations.

The chiefs are also expected to discuss the grassroots Idle No More movement against the federal government's budget implementation bill, and the chiefs' relationship with the movement.

First Nations leaders from Alberta, Saskatchewan, Ontario and the Northwest Territories will attend the meeting on Wednesday.© Global News. A division of Shaw Media Inc., 2013.

Hello Warren, and Francois,

As requested, below is a summary of the current situation concerning the "Idle No More" protest activities. Attached is a list of planned activities information received from "E", "C" and "J" divisions. I do not have contacts in the other divisions, but events planned in those areas have also been listed in the attached PDF timeline. I also did not reach out to the O.P.P. or other policing partners at this time. I will be in the office tomorrow should you have any further questions.

ISSUE: There have been a large number of protests and other direct actions organized across Canada in support of the "Idle No More" (INM) movement group. These events are scheduled to take place between December 19 and 23, 2012, and closely resemble the events previously organized for the "National Day of Action" in 2007 and 2008. To date, the direct actions have been peaceful and lawful demonstrations. However, with an increase in the number of persons attending these events, local law enforcement and RCMP divisional units are monitoring to ensure public and peace officer safety are not compromised. (A)

BACKGROUND: A national grassroots solidarity movement titled "Idle No More" (INM) emerged in November 2012 when a teach-in was organized in Saskatoon, SK.

The INM movement has garnered media attention and is currently gained international support in countries such as the USA, and England.

CURRENT STATUS: police information indicates the majority of rallies, protests, and potential highway traffic slow-downs are being planned for December 21, 2012. The Canadian events are being organized in British Columbia, Alberta, Yukon, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia (see attachment for complete listing of events as of 2012-12-21 at 1700 hrs EST).

A small protest occurred on 2012-12-20 in Montreal, QC where members of the FN community walked onto the Mercier bridge. Local law enforcement monitored the situation, and no news media were present. This event ended without incident. (A)

An INM rally from Victoria Island to Parliament Hill in Ottawa, ON is scheduled to occur on 2012-12-21. Reports indicate FN members will be travelling from as far away as Alberta and Saskatchewan to attend. Local law enforcement is working with the Assembly of First Nations (AFN) to ensure a message of peaceful and respectful rally occurs. Information reported from "A" INSET indicates more militant persons may be planning to attend this rally. Both "A" INSET and RCMP Protective Policing will be monitoring this event with local authorities. (A)

Protests in the form of road/highway traffic slow downs and peaceful marches are being planned in Quebec and New Brunswick on December 21, 2012. The main concern is the safety of the participants, and additional traffic congestion due to traffic slow-downs or redirection of holiday travelers heading to the Maritimes through NB. In addition, it is reported partial lane closure near the Van Horne Bridge in Campbellton, NB may last 24 hours. RCMP "C" and "J" divisions are working with the Surête du Quebec, and they will be monitoring and responding to these events as required. (A)

CONCLUSION: It is anticipated the scheduled events will be peaceful. Affected Divisions are aware and will be monitoring these events. Additional events may be added and therefore the list may change. (A)

INM are not planning events on Christmas Day; however, one event is being reported in "E" Division for December 26, 2012 in Kelowna, BC. Additional events were also identified for January 2013. These occurrences are not listed on the attached timeline. (U)

Regards,
Carrie Ann

Hello Mike,

The Court Injunction obtained by CN from Mr. Justice BRYK on January 15, 2013 was served; but not by RCMP members, to those at the RR blockade on January 16th. Compliance with the Injunction was achieved through negotiations and not enforcement. PROS file 2013-56041 refers which contains a copy of the Injunction and BN's through command up to NOC.

Rod,

how are things? I am at HQ Aboriginal Policing and we have been asked by HQ CI if the injunction was served at the following rail blockade. I would need to know this morning.

Thanks

Everyone,

I have no information regarding the source of the below statement:

In Sarnia, Ontario (2013-01-04) - Canadian National (CN) Railway blockade

An injunction was obtained, protestors were served by a Process Server and protected by the CN Police at 1447 hours. The 30 Protestors became aggressive and hostile at that time.

When it comes to injunctions I can offer the following:

Below are three media sources where the CN Sarnia injunction was mentioned:

On 2013-01-15 at 21:48:09 I received the following email which mentions an Injunction that was served by the Bridge authority in Windsor.
This email was sent to me by

I have no information regarding Marysville.

Good morning

I work with the RCMP National Aboriginal Policing Section and this morning I have been asked by Lori Schnittker our Criminal Intelligence analyst to confirm the following if you can assist. I would need a response this morning if possible. Please confirm that you can assist:

1) If you have any information on this statement and where does it come from:

In Sarnia, Ontario (2013-01-04) - Canadian National (CN) Railway blockade
An injunction was obtained, protestors were served by a Process Server and protected by the CN Police at 1447 hours. The 30 Protestors became aggressive and hostile at that time.

Also do you know if the injunctions were served in the following:

- In Windsor, Ontario (2013-01-16) - Ambassador Bridge Authority - Bridge Blockade (Preventive)
- In Marysville, Ontario (2013-01-16) - Canadian National (CN) / Canadian Pacific (CP) Railway blockade
- In Sarnia, Ontario (2013-01-04) - Canadian National (CN) Railway blockade

If you check googlemaps you will see Marysville is about 5km East of Shannonville. THe first two blockades took place at Wymans Rd/CN tracks. The blockade of both CN and CP tracks took place just west of Shannonville at the corner of Shannonville RD and hwy 2 this was Jan 16.

Hi Mike,

If CAPS could assist in verifying these injunctions (see Lori's email), and whether or not they were served, that would be helpful. Also, if you have any information of this statement and where it came from that 30 protestors became violent that would be much appreciated:
An injunction was obtained, protestors were served by a Process Server and protected by the CN Police at 1447 hours. The 30 Protestors became aggressive and hostile at that time.

Thank you,
Christine

Christine,

Below is the material (in bold) that Guillame had started putting together re: court injunctions.

Courts Injunction

They were several events since December 10 2013 that led third parties to seek judicial injunctions in order to force the dismantlement of a pacific rail/bridge blockade by Idle No More protesters:
- In Portage La Prairie, Manitoba (2013-01-16) - Canadian National (CN) Railway blockade
- In Windsor, Ontario (2013-01-16) - Ambassador Bridge Authority - Bridge Blockade (Preventive)
- In Marysville, Ontario (2013-01-16) - Canadian National (CN) / Canadian Pacific (CP) Railway blockade
- In Kitwanga, British Columbia (2013-01-16) - Canadian National (CN) Railway blockade (Preventive)
- In Adamsville, New Brunswick (2013-01-04) - Canadian National (CN) Railway blockade
- In Sarnia, Ontario (2013-01-04) - Canadian National (CN) Railway blockade
An injunction was obtained, protestors were served by a Process Server and protected by the CN Police at 1447 hours. The 30 Protestors became aggressive and hostile at that time.

In our discussion this morning, I mentioned the injunction in the Kingston area
I'm not sure if that is the same incident as the Marysville above. The Tyendinaga area covers several substations of the rail system, and includes Shannonville, Marysville, Belleville and Kingston.
As mentioned, I'd like to use the example of the aggressiveness of protestors in the report, but need to know where it came from. If CAPS could assist in verifying these injunctions, and whether or not they were served, that would be helpful.
Thanks
Lori

A group of protesters blocking road and rail traffic on Highway 16 at the Trans-Canada Highway left the site early Wednesday evening.
Tensions flared late Wednesday afternoon as RCMP officers confronted a handful of protesters who vowed to remain at a standoff blocking road and rail traffic on Highway 16 at the Trans Canada Highway west of Portage la Prairie.
The protest, organized by several aboriginal leaders including former Roseau River First Nation chief Terry Nelson, blocked a CN freight train and some traffic on Highway 16, also known as the Yellowhead.
Around noon the train was forced to stop several hundred metres before a group of protesters who took to the tracks that cross the Yellowhead.
Earlier in the day Nelson said about 20 people had attended the protest, and he expected more later in the day.
By late afternoon, three women and Peter Yellowquill, former chief of the Long Plain First Nation, said they intended to keep the rail blockade in place indefinitely -- but around 6 p.m. they left the area without incident around.
Wednesday afternoon CN Rail obtained an injunction declaring all blockades on its rail lines in Manitoba illegal and ordering aboriginal protesters to leave the property, but officials would not say if the company requested police evict the protesters from the blockade.
Spokesman Jim Feeny said the injunction was obtained in Court of Queen's Bench, adding it's in force until Jan. 24 and it can be extended if necessary.
"We're working with local authorities to determine the appropriate course of action," Feeny said.Injunction 'null and void': protester Papers reported to be related to the court injunction were kicked onto the the tracks by protesters, who said they were prepared to be arrested.
"It's clear we are defying the court order... it is null and void," said Yellowquill. He said the blockade was intended to send a message to the Prime Minister to honour the treaties or deal with blockades instead.
"We support the treaty law and we want to point out to Canadians that it's treaty law that being broken."
RCMP officers, led by the local detachment inspector, talked briefly with protesters. They then spoke among themselves and returned, telling the protesters they did not intend to arrest them. Instead they would divert traffic away from the area.
One truck driver, who gave his name as Dennis, expressed mixed feelings about the blockade.
"I thought they were blocking the trains, not us," he said. Hauling a semi-trailer full of corn to deliver to Saskatchewan, he shrugged when asked if he was upset with the delay.
"They have their rights," the trucker said. Minutes later he reversed his truck and backed off, heading to Saskatchewan on the Trans-Canada Highway rather than the Yellowhead.Blockade to last 'as long as it takes'
Former Roseau River chief Terry Nelson left the protest site late in the afternoon, saying the group intended to challenge the injunction.
"The train is basically hauling natural resources. It's hauling billions and billions of dollars worth of First nations wealth," said Nelson, a vice-chairman of the American Indian Movement. "It's hauling oil, it's hauling timber, it's hauling gravel, it's hauling everything basically that comes from the land.
"It's our property if the treaties have been breached."
Nelson said the plan to stop the train was to last "as long as it takes for Canadians to come to their senses. He himself had earlier planned to remain at the site for at least 72 hours, but left the site late Wednesday afternoon, saying the group would challenge the injunction.
Nelson defined people who are "not indigenous" as being "immigrants."
"We want to get the immigrants who came to our land to understand something. They're living on our lands, they're living on our resources, they're living on our wealth," he said.
"One of the things that really angers us is that in all of the websites, and all of the comments made by immigrant Canadians, is that we live off their good graces, not the Canadian taxpayer," said Nelson. "We're here to tell them that (their) lifestyle is subsidized by our lands and our wealth, and our natural resources, so we're stopping the natural resources from moving." Blockade intended to step up pressure on government
One organizer, Kylo Prince, said participants gathered this morning at the Red Sun Gas Bar on Highway 6, just off the Perimeter, and headed west to the rail crossings by noon, where they were met by others who are waiting for them.
Prince said this morning's blockade is part of a national campaign and the last peaceful attempt to pressure the Harper government to withdraw the controversial Bill C-45, adding if this fails violent actions will take place.
Prince, from the Long Plain First Nation, said the Portage blockade has been organized by the American Indian Movement, adding that the street demonstrations organized by the Idle No More group have only angered the rest of society and have had little impact.
"AIM has been around a lot longer than Idle No More," Prince said. "I don't think the government cares if we're dancing in the streets."
Prince said the decision to block the railroad is an attempt to step up the pressure.

"If we block rail lines, that affects corporations and we'll interrupt their dollars," he said.Manitoba protests among many across Canada
Meanwhile, in Winnipeg this morning about 25 people rallied downtown at Portage Avenue and Memorial Boulevard and then marched to the steps of the Legislature. The group, from Berens River First Nation, wanted their voices heard on issues affecting their band, like education and healthy living conditions.
In The Pas, Facebook supporters circulated word of another rail blockade to be held by Pukatawagan First Nation supporters today.
The Manitoba protests were among many across the country today (http://www.winnipegfreepress.com/canada/peaceful-aboriginal-protests-temporary-blockades-crop-up-across-canada-187162891.html), several of them organized in support of the Idle No More movement. Most were peaceful.
The Idle No More movement started in December to protest federal omnibus Bill C-45 and other legislation aboriginal people say erodes treaty rights, threatens fisheries and protection of lakes and rivers in Canada.

Bill C-45, introduced in the Commons in October, amends legislation in 64 other acts and has since passed and received royal assent. Native groups believe the series of changes proposed in the legislation erode indigenous rights, specifically portions of the act that apply to the Indian Act, the Navigation Protection Act, and the Environmental Assessment Act.

Good morning Sir,

Guillaume and I have determined that there are no events planned for today. As the noon hour approaches, which is our cut off time for new information to be included in the daily report, I am seeking your approval to forego the daily situation report for today. We will send the distribution list a message indicating that there will not be a daily situation report today, and that we will resume with the report tomorrow. For your information, as of this moment, there is only one event planned for tomorrow.

Thank you,

Hello Jim. I do not have the authority to grant this request.
This is a CI report that was provided to all CROPS via NOC. I would recommend that K-CROPS coordinate divisional dissemination.

LEGAL NOTICE - The following application has been filed with the Court of Queen's Bench for Saskatchewan, Judicial Centre of Saskatoon, returnable February 5, 2013: Q.B. No. 114 of 2013 CANADA PROVINCE OF SASKATCHEWAN IN THE QUEEN'S BENCH JUDICIAL CENTRE OF SASKATOON BETWEEN: CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAY COMPANY (PLAINTIFF/APPLICANT) AND: MERLIN WOLFE (a.k.a. "True Indian"), JOHN DOE, JANE DOE AND PERSONS UNKNOWN (DEFENDANTS/ RESPONDENTS) NOTICE OF MOTION TAKE NOTICE that an application will be made to the presiding judge in Chambers at the Court House, 520 Spadina Crescent East, in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, on Tuesday, the 5th day of February, 2013, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon or so soon thereafter as counsel can he heard on behalf of the Applicant (Plaintiff), Canadian National Railway Company ("CN"), pursuant to Rule 394 of The Queen's Bench Rules and Section 65 of The Queen's Bench Act, 1998 for an order: (a) granting an interlocutory and interim injunction restraining and enjoining the Defendants, and each of them, and any other person acting on or under their or any of their instructions and all persons having knowledge or notice of the order herein requested, from directly or indirectly, by any means whatsoever: (i) trespassing on CN's railway lines in Saskatchewan; (ii) physically preventing, impeding, restricting or in any way physically interfering with, or counseling others to impede, restrict or in any way physically interfere with CN's carrying on of its business and in particular its right to operate trains on its railway lines; (iii) physically preventing, impeding, restricting or in any way physically interfering with, or counseling others to impede, restrict or in any way physically interfere with the removal of any objects on CN's railway lines, or the maintenance, reconstruction or alteration by CN of its railway lines; (iv) threatening or intimidating CN's employees, servants, agents or other persons having business with CN; (v) physically interfering with or counseling others to physically interfere with the performance by CN of its contractual relations with its employees, servants, agents, customers or other persons having business with CN; (vi) physically obstructing or otherwise impeding, or counseling others to physically obstruct or impede, the movement or operation of CN's trains on CN's railway lines in Saskatchewan, or anything connected with its railway operations; and (vii) creating a nuisance by physically obstructing CN from carrying on its railway operations; (b) the Respondents and each of them, and any persons acting on or under their or any of their instructions, and all persons having knowledge or notice of this Order, to forthwith remove any and all obstructions placed, created or imposed by any of them on CN's railway lines in Saskatchewan, or lands, premises, facilities and or equipment owned by CN; (c) that any police service or peace officer be and hereby is authorized to arrest, or arrest and remove, any person who has notice or knowledge of the Order and who the police service or peace officer has reasonable and probable grounds to believe is contravening or has contravened the provisions of the Order, and for the sake of clarity, such a peace officer or police service retains his or her discretion to decide whether to arrest or remove any person pursuant to the Order; (d) that any police service or peace officer who arrests or arrests and removes any person pursuant to the Order to: (i) release that person from arrest upon that person agreeing in writing to abide by the Order and to appear before the Court at such time and place as may be fixed for the purpose of being proceeded against for contempt of Court or fixing a date for such proceedings; (ii) where such person has refused to give a written undertaking to abide by the Order or to appear before the Court, or where in the circumstances the peace officer considers it appropriate, to bring forthwith such person before the Court, 520 Spadina Crescent East, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, or such other place as the Court may direct, for the purpose of being proceeded against for contempt of Court or for fixing a date for such proceeding; or (iii) detain such person in custody until such time as it is possible to bring that person before the Court; (e) that the terms of the Order remain in force until varied or discharged by a further order of the Court; (f) the Respondents, or anyone with notice of this Order, may apply to the Court at any time to vary or discharge this Order or so much of it as affects such person, but anyone wishing to do so shall provide CN's solicitors with at least twenty-four hours notice thereof, and no such motion shall in any way excuse that person from compliance with the terms of this Order; (g) allowing this Order to be substitutionally served on the Respondents John Doe, Jane Doe and persons unknown by posting the same at the location where Highway 15 intersects with CN's railway line, at or near Mile Post 59.00 on the Watrous Subdivision outside Lestock Saskatchewan, or such other place as the Court may direct; (h) Providing that such substitutional service of the Order is good and sufficient on all unknown Respondents; and (i) Such further and other relief as this Honourable Court may deem appropriate. THE GROUNDS to be argued in connection with the application are as follows: 1. CN owns and operates a transcontinental rail service in Canada and the United States. In Canada, CN's eastern terminus occurs at Halifax, Nova Scotia and the western terminus of its main line occurs at Vancouver, British Columbia. CN's main transcontinental line ("Main Line") and other CN lines run through the Province of Saskatchewan. 2. CN's rail service provides rail freight transportation services to customers throughout Canada and the United States. Such freight includes, but is not limited to, petroleum products, metals, minerals, forest products, agricultural products, foodstuffs, manufacturing products, industrial products and consumer goods, all of which are critical to Canada's domestic and export economies. Such freight also often includes hazardous and perishable goods. 3. CN's base of operations in Saskatchewan is located in Saskatoon. CN also has divisional operations in Bigger and Melville, Saskatchewan. 4. CN's Main Line runs through Lestock, Saskatchewan, located approximately 60 miles, northwest of Melville, Saskatchewan. Between 30 and 35 trains use the Main Line each day carrying goods both east and west through Saskatchewan. The Main Line, at Mile Post 58.00 to Mile Post 64.00 on the Watrous Subdivision, passes through the Muskowekwan First Nation, which is located near Lestock, Saskatchewan. 5. In addition to the Main Line, CN operates a secondary line in Saskatchewan known as the Prairie North Line. This line has only a fraction of the capacity of the Main Line as the speeds permitted on the Prairie North Line are significantly lower than those allowed on the Main Line and there are significantly less sidings for railcars available. In the event of a blockage of the Main Line, only approximately 20%-30% of the daily rail traffic from the Main Line could be diverted to the Prairie North Line. 6. CN has the lawful right of possession over the entire Main Line and the Prairie North Line as well as all other CN railway lines in Saskatchewan. 7. The Respondents are groups, organizations and individuals who are presently threatening to engage in blockading CN's Main Line, impeding CN's lawful operations. 8. The exact location of the threatened blockade is not known. However, a Facebook post by the Respondent, Mr. Wolfe, suggests the blockade will commence on January 28, 2013 at 12:00 noon at a point where the Main Line crosses the Muskowekwan First Nation, being Mile Post 58.00 to Mile Post 64.00 on the Watrous Subdivision, near Lestock, Saskatchewan. Highway 15 intersects with the Main Line at or near Mile Post 59.00 on the Watrous Subdivision. 9. CN has already incurred costs in order to try, to the extent possible, to identify those persons behind the threatened blockade, determine where a blockade might be set up, determine what rail traffic might be affected, increase its presence, alert personnel and begin to make arrangements to try and minimize disruption to its schedule. 10. The actions threatened by the Respondents if not enjoined until trial, will have the following serious consequences and will result in irreparable harm to CN, namely: (a) a safety risk, posed by blockaders on CN's railway lines, which might cause a collision and serious injury to CN staff, blockaders and/or the public; (b) work disruptions, including associated loss of productivity and potential employee lay-offs, damaging CN's relationships with its employees; (c) breaches of contracts with CN's customers, including harm to CN's goodwill and business reputation; (d) a disruption of CN's operational schedule, which cannot be effectively mitigated or remediated with a blockade in place; (e) harm to CN's competitive position within the Canadian railway industry; (f) increased yard congestion at CN's facilities; and (g) increased potential for damaging effects on the environment, CN employees and third parties as a result of rail cars with hazardous and perishable goods remaining on CN's railway lines for extended periods of time. 11. CN states that it has contacted the Chief of the Muskowekwan First Nation in an attempt to prevent a blockade and has been advised that the blockade has not been sanctioned by and is not supported by the leadership of the First Nation. 12. The Respondents have threatened and intend, if not enjoined, acting in concert with other persons instructed and/or authorized by them, to: (a) Trespass on CN's railway lines in Saskatchewan for the purposes of interfering with, disturbing and annoying CN in its lawful use of its railway lines; (b) Engage in intimidation, conspiracy, nuisance and obstruction; (c) Unlawfully interfere with CN's contractual relations with its customers by preventing CN from using its railway lines to make timely deliveries to its customers; and (d) Preventing CN from carrying out the lawful operation of its business on its railway lines. 13. The balance of convenience favours CN in that any harm to the Respondents in the granting of an interlocutory injunction preventing and/or ending a blockade and removing them from CN's railway lines is markedly less than the irreparable harm that CN will suffer, as stated above, as a result of any blockade. 14. The threatened blockade has created emergent circumstances that must be dealt with by this Honourable Court quickly in order to minimize the harm and mischief resulting therefrom. AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that in support of this application will be read the following: (a) Affidavit of Timothy Pulak; (b) Affidavit of Doug Devlin; (c) Rules 387A and 394 of The Queen's Bench Rules; (d) Section 65 of The Queen's Bench Act, 1998, S.S. 1998, c. Q-1.01; (e) Such further and other material that counsel may advise and this Honourable Court may allow. DATED at the City of Saskatoon, in the Province of Saskatchewan, this 25th day of January, 2013. MacPHERSON LESLIE & TYERMAN LLP For copies of this Notice of Motion, and/or for other documents related to this court action, contact MacPherson Leslie & Tyerman LLP, 1500, 410 - 22nd Street East, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, S7K 5T6, Telephone: (306) 975-7101, Fax: (306) 975-7145.

Hi Jackie,

I think sending the info to the generic address should be sufficient. There are two of us, myself and Guillaume Demers, looking after the Daily Reports, so if the info goes to the generic box we can both open it. This is useful when one or the other is out of the office for any reason.

Thanks
Lori

Hi Lori,

Thank you - I have found your daily reports very useful as well. There is no problem adding your generic address and removing Carrie. If you are going to be looking after it, I can add you personally as well, if that is to your advantage.

Please let me know at your convenience. Thanks!

Good afternoon Jacqueline,

I am currently working on the Daily Situation Reports at NHQ in regards to Idle No More. I would like to thank you for the information you are sending, as it is quite helpful in preparing our Daily Reports.

Carrie Ann McPherson was receiving the updates from K Div in regards to Idle No More, and forwarding them to me. I just wanted to inform you that Carrie Ann is being reassigned, therefore I will no longer be able to continue to receive this information through her.

Would it be possible for you to forward the Idle No More information directly to the Idle_No_More resource e-mail at NHQ from now on?

Thank you very much.

Good afternoon Sir,

I'm sure your team is following this situation; however, I wanted to provide an update from our perspective working on the Idle No More Daily Situation Reports.

The media appears to be linking Idle No More to the winter road blockage near Attawapiskat; for example, several video clips from various news agencies have appeared on the Internet with the title "Idle No More wants more from De Beers". The link may simply be that Chief Spence is currently involved in the dispute with De Beers, and had been previously tied to the INM movement due to the hunger strike. However, Chief Spence is not synonymous with INM, and the movement is not involved in this blockade, as far as we can determine.

UPDATE:
According to media reports, Chief Spence has given De Beers 48 hours to vacate the mine or the community will blockade the De Beers airport as well as the winter road.

Protestors do not intend to remove the blockade,which could last until spring, unless De Beers makes some concrete changes to the current Impact Benefit Agreement in place between the company and the Attawapiskat community. Chief Spence stated that the community wants more employment and training opportunities, among other things. The media indicates that approx. 100 community members are employed by the mine, and that De Beers has been providing money and business opportunities to the community.

Regards,
Lori

Subject: Road blockade in northern Ontario

Good afternoon Sir,

We came across some interesting information which we wanted to convey to you outside of the Daily Situation report, as it is not relevant to the Idle No More movement; however, it does pertain to a blockade by Aboriginal groups.

On Monday, Feb 4th, members of the Attawapiskat community blocked the winter road leading to the De Beers Victor Mine, which is about 90-100 west of Attawapiskat. The original two protestors were apparently joined by about 10 more. There is no indication how long they intend to maintain the blockade, according to media reports.

the blockade was launched as a result of issues between the community and the mine, such as employment and resource sharing. Despite a signed agreement, some residents in the community feel they are being cheated out the profits of the mine.

Cheers,
Lori Schnittker

Subject: IDLE NO MORE DECLARES THE TREATIES AND INHERENT RIGHTS BREACHED AND/OR INFRINGED (IdleNoMore.ca via Google Cache) - Feb. 11 1705

We call on the AFN National Chief, Shaun Atleo to denounce the actions of the Conservative Government and the Department of Indians Affairs, now known as Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada (AANDC). In light of the following disturbing circumstances, we also respectfully ask National Chief Shaun Atleo to decline the acceptance of his impending Indspire Award for Education which he is scheduled to accept on Friday February 15, 2013 in Saskatoon.

February 8th, 2013 (Saskatoon, Saskatchewan): A meeting was scheduled by the Department of Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada ("AANDC") at the TCU Center in Saskatoon for 'consultations' on Education. These 'consultations' stem from a joint Canada-Assembly of First Nations Action Plan on Education. The development for federal legislation on First Nations Education originates in a report entitled "National Panel on First Nation Elementary and Secondary Education" supported by the AFN. During the meeting, no one from the AFN objected to this process despite much opposition from the grassroots people. This meeting is one of several 'consultations' that will take place across the country for the development of proposed federal legislation on education. The creation of a First Nations Education Act will directly impact the Treaty term and promise to education as understood during the time of Treaty making, made by our Forefathers. The consultation process that was utilized is contrary to its own statement of "open and meaningful dialogue" and further, it contradicts the jurisprudence on the Duty to Consult.

The morning meeting was open to the public and was closed in the afternoon, which left many people confused. No reason for closed doors were given beyond, "it was a closed meeting for the afternoon". Many grassroots people felt excluded from a process that directly impacts them, their children and future generations.

Grassroots people who wanted to attend the afternoon session were met with hostility and were refused entry at the door, as they were pushed and shoved by security guards refusing to allow them into the meeting.

Idle No More declares the process illegal and contrary to the international standard of free and prior consent as set forth, which Canada is a signatory, in the "United Nations Declaration of the Rights of Indigenous People (UNDRIP)".

Furthermore, Idle No More declares the Treaties and Inherent Rights breached and/or infringed by the British Crown's successor state, Canada as their was intentional physical exclusion of the grassroots people who are directly and detrimentally impacted by this proposed "consultation process".

Subject: RCMP accused of repeated abuse of B.C. aboriginal women (CBC, 2013-02-13)

An international human rights organization is calling on the federal government to launch a national inquiry into claims from aboriginal women of abuse and threats by RCMP officers in northern British Columbia.
Human Rights Watch, known for bringing worldwide attention to victims of torture and abuse in places like Syria and Burma, says the eyes of the world should also be on northern B.C.

Two researchers — one from Canada and one from the U.S. — spent more than a month last summer in the province's north, visiting ten communities between Prince George to Prince Rupert and hearing accounts from aboriginal women of alleged mistreatment at the hands of police.
The researchers interviewed 50 aboriginal women and girls, plus family members and service providers.
They heard stories of police pepper-spraying and using Tasers on young aboriginal girls, and of women being strip-searched by male officers, said the New York-based researcher, Meghan Rhoad.
"It was very moving to sit across from these women and girls and hear them tell their stories," Rhoad told CBC News.
Few officers implicated
Rhoad told CBC News that the organization was not intending to implicate all RCMP officers.
"Certainly, not all the members are abusive. We don't mean to say that by any means," she said. "I think it's very important to recognize that so many of the RCMP serve honourably and they really put their lives on the line to protect communities."
Human Rights Watch is holding a press conference Wednesday and said it will call on Ottawa to establish a national inquiry into missing and murdered aboriginal women.
The organization also said it will suggest the RCMP expand cross-cultural training for its officers and eliminate strip-searches by officers not of the same gender.
The RCMP declined CBC News' request for an interview, saying a formal response will be issued later.

Subject: INM Event at De Beers

Good morning Sir,

My name is Guillaume Demers and I am currently working as a CI Analyst at NHQ, with Lori Schnittker, on the Aboriginal-based protests. Since I know you have been contacted by my colleagues in the past, I would like to confirm if you could provide/direct me to updated information on the event at De Beer diamond mine, near Attawapiskat, ON. According to AADNC, OPP officers and a sheriff would have serve an injunction to Attawapiskat's protesters on Sunday Feb. 17. Therefore, we would like to confirm the chain of events.

I would like to take that occasion to thank you for your assistance since December 2012, and please do not hesitate to contact me. Have a great week!

An organizer with the Idle No More Resistance group wants to set the record straight by saying they had nothing to do with a letter given to an Idle-No-More protesters during the recent powwow at the Enmax Centre.

"The man's ideas kind of coincide with ours but he's a little more radical than we are," said Wayne Naylor, local branch leader of the Idle No More Resistance/O.N.E. (One Nation for Equality) group.

The Enmax Centre's general manager said Enmax staff quickly dealt with a situation that was brought to their attention. A member of the Hockey Hounds organization providing front door security at the powwow had taken it upon himself to hand a letter criticizing the Idle No More movement to one of the protesters.

Naylor said the Idle No More Resistance movement wants the Indian Act and treaties abolished because they are based on race.

"There is really no other race-based laws or policies in Canada," he said. "We're not in agreement with the treaties. The treaties were signed 100 years ago. It's a different society now. For one thing when treaties were signed there was no income tax, it was not meant to be that one section of the population (would be) more or less financing another section."

Local membership is made up of people from different races and stands at about 40. However, only a quarter of them showed up for a rally on Feb. 9.

"There was so many incidences of intimidation and threatening people if they showed up at the rally they'd be beat up and things like that," Naylor said.

The rally was peaceful although a couple of drive-by threats and insults were hurled. Naylor said members from various resistance chapters around the country have received similar insults and threats online, himself included. He found his home address posted on the AIM (American Indian Movement) website.

"I don't know who got the address, I just know that it was posted by (AIM) on their Facebook page," he said. "It stated that someone or a group should come to my house and pay me and my family a visit."
That was late January and the message was removed from the site four days later. Naylor said he contacted police and was told nothing could be done until something happened. He sent an email to the site administrator but never received a reply.

"I increased security at my house. I'm a little more leery when we go out, I have been approached out in the community, people who recognize me from the rally or from the news reports. I've gotten quite a few comments of support and quite a few people have called me a racist," he said.

Naylor said the group believes all people should be treated the same and that they are against abuses of the system, not the system itself.

Subject: FYI - De Beers blockade ends at Attawapiskat (Sun News - 16 hours ago)

TIMMINS, ON -- A peaceful resolution has been reached in Attawapiskat as the illegal blockade to the De Beers Victor diamond mine was taken down by demonstrators late Friday.

A large number of Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) officers were headed to the blockade to enforce a judge's order to remove the barricades, but no formal action by police was needed as the barricade was no longer in place, Const. Marc Depatie told QMI Agency on Sunday.

"The protesters appear to have voluntarily complied with the Superior court order without further incident," he said.

Depatie said "teams of officers" were deployed from detachments throughout the region from Hearst, Ont., south to Black River-Matheson, Ont. There was also an emergency response team deployed from Thunder Bay, Ont.

Unconfirmed reports from Attawapiskat indicated there were about 40 OPP officers in the area.

The OPP will remain there and continue to patrol the ice road to ensure access to the Victor mine remains open, Depatie said.

When asked about the voluntary removal of the barricades by the demonstrators, Depatie said, "The judge was rather direct and articulate when he handed down his instructions" to police and "what the inevitable outcome would be if the protesters persisted with the blockade."

At a hearing held in Timmins on Friday, Judge Robert Riopelle warned blockaders that police would be directed to lay charges against those responsible."

Thankfully, a peaceful resolution was reached without any formal action by police," Depatie said.

Tom Ormsby, director of external and corporate affairs for De Beers Canada, told QMI Agency transport trucks began moving materials to the mine Saturday morning using the re-opened ice road.

"The OPP is actively monitoring the situation with all the stakeholders involved with its provincial liaison team and by regular patrols of the Victor mine ice road by officers," he said.

The company has about a year's worth of heavy supplies – valued at approximately $30 million – that it needs to transport using the winter road from Moosonee, Ont., to the Victor mine. This includes oil, fuel, mining equipment and some explosive materials."

"For us, it usually takes 30 days or more" to complete this delivery process, Ormsby said.

"That's 24 hours a day, non-stop. Our priority right now is to just get the program completed. That will be our focus for the next little while."

Good morning Joseph,

My name is Guillaume Demers and I am currently assigned by NHQ Criminal Intelligence, with my colleague Lori Schnittker, to monitor the Idle No More daily events for senior managers.

First, I would like to thank for all the information you provided through your chain of command in the past months.

However, since we are in the process of compiling this week planned events, we would like to confirm the BC event reported for this Thursday, February 28th in Surrey (Peace Arch Border Crossing). Do you have any confirmation/new details in regard to that event. Since it was already postponed in early January because of territory permission, do you believe that this event will in fact occur?

Thank you for your assistance!
Have a great week!

Activist Communique: Idle No More and Defenders of the Land call protests for Indigenous rights

Forwarded Message: A Call to Action from Idle No More and Defenders of the Land CALL TO ACTION

March 19, 2013. For more information see Idle No More and Defenders of the Land

Idle No More has sparked an awakening of Indigenous and non-Indigenous peoples internationally in support for democracy, human rights and environmental protections. In three short months, the movement has succeeded in raising global consciousness through education, cultural resurgence, and democratic political activism.

We have shaken the foundations of inequality in Canada, and invited communities to join in a movement for social and environmental justice. We now need many more people to stand with us.

The Harper government's agenda is clear: to weaken all collective rights and environmental protections, in order to turn Canada into an extraction state that gives corporations unchecked power to destroy our communities and environment for profit. Harper is trying to extinguish Indigenous Peoples' Inherent, Aboriginal and Treaty rights to their territories, because these rights are the best and last protection for all Canadians.

Idle No More has confronted these policies, and Harper supporters such as ex-Minister of Aboriginal Affairs John Duncan, suspended Senator Patrick Brazeau, resigned minister Peter Penashue, and Tom Flanagan have been called into question by grassroots people.

Idle No More will help rebuild the nation-to-nation relationship that is the foundation of this country. This means deepening democracy, respecting Indigenous sovereignty and protecting the land and waters from further resource extraction without the affected Indigenous Peoples' free, prior, and informed consent.

We know it will take a lot more to defeat Harper and the corporate agenda. But against the power of their money and weapons, we have the power of our bodies and spirits. There is nothing that can match the power of peaceful, collective action in the defense of people and Mother Earth.

Idle No More and Defenders of the Land, a network of Indigenous communities in land struggle, have joined together to issue this common call for escalating action. Our demands are clear and in accordance with the principles of coexistence and mutual respect between Indigenous and non-Indigenous Peoples. We demand that Canada, the provinces and the territories:

1.Repeal provisions of Bill C-45 (including changes to the Indian Act and Navigable Waters Act, which infringe on environmental protections, Aboriginal and Treaty rights) and abandon all pending legislation which does the same.
2.Deepen democracy in Canada through practices such as proportional representation and consultation on all legislation concerning collective rights and environmental protections, and include legislation which restricts corporate interests.
3.In accordance with the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples' principle of free, prior, and informed consent, respect the right of Indigenous peoples to say no to development on their territory.
4.Cease its policy of extinguishment of Aboriginal Title and recognize and affirm Aboriginal Title and Rights, as set out in section 35 of Canada's constitution, and recommended by the Royal Commission on Aboriginal Peoples.
5.Honour the spirit and intent of the historic Treaties. Officially repudiate the racist Doctrine of Discovery and the Doctrine of Terra Nullius, and abandon their use to justify the seizure of Indigenous Nations lands and wealth.
6.Actively resist violence against women and hold a national inquiry into missing and murdered Indigenous women and girls, and involve Indigenous women in the design, decision-making, process and implementation of this inquiry, as a step toward initiating a comprehensive and coordinated national action plan.
CALLS TO ACTION

March 21st International Day for the Elimination of Racial Discrimination

We are calling for decentralized actions across the country.

March 30 Day of Solidarity with the Unist'ot'en

On March 30, 2013, the Unist'ot'en have called for a day of solidarity actions against the development and financing of Pacific Trail Pipelines: for more information see: https://www.facebook.com/events/137069669801177/

April 22 Earth Day

Indigenous Peoples and Indigenous rights are in many cases the best defence against environmental destruction by unchecked greed and industrial development. This Earth Day we are calling for nationwide autonomous local protests — and a mass non-violent direct action in Ottawa to be announced soon — highlighting the importance of Indigenous rights in combating the Harper and corporate agenda. We are asking people to prominently include messaging on Indigenous and Treaty rights in their actions.

Sovereignty Summer

Indigenous communities have the right to determine the development on their traditional and treaty territories. In defending their right to say "No" to unwanted development, First Nations like Barriere Lake, KI, Grassy Narrows and many others are advancing alternatives that help us re-imagine our relationship to the environment. Across the country, people are increasingly supporting First Nations who are trying to protect lands, waters and air for everyone, and to win recognition of marine protections, of sustainable forestry, of local, just economies, and of the principle that we must respect the environment that we are a part of.

We are calling on non-Indigenous people to join Indigenous communities in coordinated non-violent direct actions in the summer. Alternatives will only come to life if we escalate our actions, taking bold non-violent direct action that challenges the illegitimate power of corporations who dictate government policy.

http://aptn.ca/pages/news/2013/03/18/idle-no-more-defenders-of-the-land-form-alliance-call-for-sovereignty-summer/

Idle No More has joined forces with Defenders of the Land and the new alliance plans to launch "escalating action" during what is being called the "Sovereignty Summer," according to a draft joint declaration obtained by APTN National News.

The alliance has been endorsed by Jessica Gordon, Sylvia McAdam, Sheelah McLean and Nina Wilson, the four founders of Idle No More, along with the movement's lead organizers, provincial and territorial chapters.
As a result of the alliance, Idle No More has now agreed to support non-violent direct action, including blockades, in the cause of Indigenous rights.
The Defenders of the Land is an established network of Indigenous activists that was formally formed in 2008. The network has been involved in Indigenous land rights issues across the country, including in ongoing hotspots like Ontario's Grassy Narrows First Nation, Kitchenuhmaykoosib Inninuwug First Nation and Barriere Lake in Quebec.
The joint declaration is calling for a "Sovereignty Summer" that would see "co-ordinated non-violent direct actions." The statement also calls on "non-Indigenous peoples" to join Indigenous communities in the actions.
"Alternatives will only come to life if we escalate our actions, taking bold non-violent direct action that challenges the illegitimate power of corporations who dictate government police," says the draft declaration.
The declaration also calls for a "Solidarity Spring" to precede the Sovereignty Summer with calls to action on March 21, International Day for the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, and April 22, Earth Day.
"The Harper government's agenda is clear: to weaken all collective rights and environmental protections, in order to turn Canada into an extraction state that gives corporations unchecked power to destroy our communities and environment for profit," says the statement. "Idle No More and Defenders of the Land....have joined together to issue this common call for escalating action."
The declaration makes several demands, including a repeal of sections of the now passed Bill C-45 that impact the environment along with Aboriginal and Treaty rights; changing the electoral system to proportional representation; ensuring consultation happens before any legislation is introduced that impacts collective rights and the environment; the full implementation of the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples; an end to the government's policies of "extinguishment;" full implementation of the treaties and a national inquiry into murdered and missing Indigenous women.
"We know it will take a lot more to defeat (Prime Minister Stephen Harper) and the corporate agenda. But against the power of their money and weapons, we have the power of our bodies and spirits," says the declaration. "There is nothing that can match the power of peaceful, collective action in defense of the people and Mother Earth."

Good morning

Thank you for continuing to send the updated reports regarding the Idle No More issue. We consider these to be very valuable in preparing our reports for the RCMP senior management, and appreciate that you have included our unit in your distribution list.

As this issue has continued for a few months now, there has been a change within our unit in personnel responsible for monitoring the file. As a result, I am writing to you today to request that you replace my name on your distribution list with Idle_No_More@rcmp-grc.gc.ca, the RCMP's generic e-mail account for monitoring these issues. This allows our unit to interchange analysts without losing contact with your organization.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact my colleague, Guillaume Demers, at 613-843-4823.

ISSUE:
- To advise the Commissioner of two (2) demonstrations which occurred on Friday December 21st, 2012, in Nova Scotia.

BACKGROUND:
- Friday December 21st, 2012, was designated as a National Day of Action for the "Idle No More" movement. The movement originated with First Nations communities and has grown with the opposition to Bill C-45.
- On December 21st, 2012, two (2) demonstrations were held in the communities of Auld's Cove and Millbrook, Nova Scotia.
- Approximately two hundred (200) demonstrators attended each of these events.
- RCMP members and Transportation, Infrastructure and Renewal employees provided traffic control on the Trans Canada Highway at both of these locations.
- Traffic slow downs occurred during each of these events.
- No incidents of violence or injury were reported at either of these demonstrations.

CURRENT STATUS:
- Additional demonstrations are expected, however no specific details regarding dates and locations of future events are known at this time.
- Our members will continue to liaise with the First Nations communities in an attempt to gather intelligence on upcoming planned demonstrations.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:
- "H" Division Criminal Operations will continue to monitor the situation.
- "H" Division Communication Services is fully engaged.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

There is no classified addendum today.

CURRENT

1. First Nations (FN) Protests: A number of FN protests are occurring nationwide. The protests that have occurred since 19 Dec are organized by a group called "Idle No More", which is critical of Bill C-45, the government's omnibus budget legislation. Protests are taking place across the country in New Brunswick, Québec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia and Yukon Territory. The omnibus legislation contains changes to the Indian Act and Navigable Waters Protection Act.

2. (121) Military Plane Crash – Shymkent, Kazakhstan: At approximately 08:00 EST on 25 Dec 2012, an Antonov An-72 military transport plane carrying 27 passengers crashed as it was making its descent near Shymkent enroute from the capital of Astana. Among the passengers on board were members of Kazakhstan's border service, including the acting head of the border service along with 20 military personnel. Unconfirmed sources stated all 27 onboard had perished. The cause of the accident has not been determined.

Good Afternoon,

Please find attached, a report on "Idle No More" Events in Manitoba. Details that created this snap shot of events are contained on PROS file 2012-1601206 and linked Detachment files. The report is in both PDF and Word.

There are no protests of concern for the RCMP in Manitoba until January 5, 2013; which is being followed up. Unless requested otherwise there will be no further reports unless the individual events warrant it or we learn of new multiple events in the Province again.

Regards.

As a follow up to this message please be advised that only two people showed up for this demonstration. They are presently standing on the shoulder of the road. One has a flag the other a sign. Hobbema Det. have two police cars stationed on either side of them with their lights on to warn traffic of their presence. No further demonstrations are known of at this time.

Subject: UPDATE - Hobbema Highway Blockades Boxing Day 08:00

Good Evening:

I just received word of blockade tomorrow in Hobbema. It involves two separate physical locations which are listed below. I am not sure if these will be concurrent or consecutive blockades.

Locations:
Hobbema Detachment Area
Apparently it sounds like it will be a full blockade of the roadways.

1. Intersection Highway 611 and Highway 2A
-It was not specified whether this is the intersection of Highway 611 East and Highway 2A (Samson Town Site) or Highway 611 West and Highway 2A Just north of the Ermineskin Town site).

Of note: The CP Rail line runs parallel with Highway 2A and this might be impacted by blockades.

2. The Intersection of Highway 2A and Jailhouse Road
It has been a few years since I was posted to Hobbema, but I believe that this is where the correctional facility is located and is also the south border of the reserve with Ponoka Detachment area (on the west side of Highway 2A).

Of note: The correctional facility is at this intersection.

Time:
This is supposedly starting at 8 am for one hour at two locations (once again, I am not certain if these are concurrent or consecutive blockades).

Duration:
One hour

RCMP Engagement:

I was informed that Sgt. Jim Lank has been in contact and is organizing resources to detour traffic. I took steps to confirm that this is indeed the case; although I did not speak to Sgt. LANK himself (he is not currently on duty), I have confirmed with members on-duty in Hobbema that Sgt. LANK has been engaged and has developed a plan for tomorrow's event. At this point I have not confirmed that the DANCOs or Acting District Officer have been notified by Sgt. LANK, but Inspector ELLIOTT is on this mailing list and will receive this email.

I have advised the NAOCC and SAOCC supervisors that there will likely be a blockade there tomorrow.

In the event that I receive more information, I will forward same.

Good Evening:

I just received word of blockade tomorrow in Hobbema. It involves two separate physical locations which are listed below. I am not sure if these will be concurrent or consecutive blockades.

Locations:
Hobbema Detachment Area
Apparently it sounds like it will be a full blockade of the roadways.

1. Intersection Highway 611 and Highway 2A
-It was not specified whether this is the intersection of Highway 611 East and Highway 2A (Samson Town Site) or Highway 611 West and Highway 2A Just north of the Ermineskin Town site).

Of note: The CP Rail line runs parallel with Highway 2A and this might be impacted by blockades.

2. The Intersection of Highway 2A and Jailhouse Road
It has been a few years since I was posted to Hobbema, but I believe that this is where the correctional facility is located and is also the south border of the reserve with Ponoka Detachment area (on the west side of Highway 2A).

Of note: The correctional facility is at this intersection.

Time: This is supposedly starting at 8 am for one hour at two locations (once again, I am not certain if these are concurrent or consecutive blockades).

Duration: One hour

RCMP Engagement: I was informed that Sgt. Jim Lank has been in contact and is organizing resources to detour traffic. I took steps to confirm that this is indeed the case; although I did not speak to Sgt. LANK himself (he is not currently on duty), I have confirmed with members on-duty in Hobbema that

Sgt. LANK has been engaged and has developed a plan for tomorrow's event. At this point I have not confirmed that the DANCOs or Acting District Officer have been notified by Sgt. LANK, but Inspector ELLIOTT is on this mailing list and will receive this email.

I have advised the NAOCC and SAOCC supervisors that there will likely be a blockade there tomorrow.

In the event that I receive more information, I will forward same.

Good Afternoon,

FYI - As a result of the On-Going Rail Blockade in Sarnia, I've been advised by community members from Garden River First Nations and Anishinawbek First Nations Police (near Sault Ste. Marie, ON) as well as another in Whitefish First Nations (near Espanola, ON) in northern Ontario that a FN group(s) are also planning to start their own rail blockade(s) on Thursday this seek.

This is in support of Chief Spence & the Sarnia rail blockade.

In speaking with my contacts, it appears that one blockade is to start at 0800hrs on Thursday and may be conducted for at least 8 to 12 hours (0800 to 2000hrs). The protest site that is being considered is east of Mile Marker 174 at a Grade Level Crossing on the FN Reserve.

Blockades in this area will have an impact on Huron Central Railway (HCR) Trains #912 and #SMSU.

I have spoken to Huron Central Railway on this issue and they are prepared for an event if this blockade goes forward.

HCR and APS will be contacting me regarding any updates. More to follow...

FYI - Another First Nations protest (transportation blockade) has begun along the intersection of Highway 17B (and 17A) which goes through Garden River FN. It should be noted that this is where the main Trans Canada Hwy #17 (A) and Highway 17B intersect as it comes into the area of Sault St. Marie, ON as well as where the main tracks for Huron Central Railway (HCR) Railway proceed across the intersection (tracks run parallel to Highway 17B).

Anishinabek Police Service and the OPP are on site, and the protest is peaceful at this time (traffic is slowing down or stopping, protesters handing out flyers, etc.). Minor to moderate impact to surface transportation as the traffic is starting to slow down as it comes into the SSM area from/to the main Trans Canada highway. This main vehicle corridor traffic loads are primarily between Sault St Marie and Sudbury, ON as well as across the International Bridge at SSM, and SSM, MI. Photo of blockade action has been sent to me and is attached for your perusal. HCR Railway operations have been affected and as such, trains will be delayed until later today (after track inspections conducted). I've been advised that the protest location should be over by 20:00hrs (8pm) tonight allowing the free movement of Highway 17 and HCR trains.

December 24, 2012 - Blue Water Bridge (Sarnia) to be impacted.

The local First Nations Community is planning a protest march today

Approximately 150 to 200 protesters have indicated they will meet at Sarnia City Hall at 11:30 EST, proceed towards highway 402 and walk Eastward (away from the bridge) to the next exit which is about 2 kilometres away. Both Sarnia Police and OPP have conducted outreach to the organizers in order to ensure a safe event.

If all goes according to plan it should all be all over by 14:00 EST.

Following a community meeting, on 23 December 2012, with the Mayor of Sarnia, Sarnia Chief of Police and CN Rail, the community of Aamjiwnaang have indicated their determination to maintain the CN railway blockade until their community demands are met. (Source: SIMS Ontario Region).

Transport Canada is in contact with Aboriginal Affair and Northern Development Canada (AANDC) and there is no further information available at the present time.

For situational awareness several web sites are calling for closure of international crossings on January 5th 2013. (Source: SIMS).

Protests have ended without incident or significant impact to transportation. Highway 402 has re-opened. Protesters are calling for supporters to increase their numbers for protests through next week. CN has served the protesters with a notice of civil litigation.

UPDATE 9: Planned First Nations Blockades for December 28, 2012 in the Portage La Prairie region, Manitoba
December 26, 2012 - Two blockades are expected on Friday, December 28, 2012 in close proximity to the CN and CP Railway main lines in the Portage La Prairie region, Manitoba.

The first protest is set for 08:00–12:00 EST (09:00–13:00 CST) on Highway 305 on the Bridge of the Assiniboine River for the purposes of slowing down traffic. It is believed that this may only be a staging area for the protest to begin as this is not a heavily traveled area and it is expected that the protest could move north to the Junction of Highway 1 and 16 or to either CN or CP Railway main lines. Between 350-450 protestors are expected.

The second protest is set for 13:00–15:00 EST (14:00–16:00 CST) at the intersection of Saskatchewan Avenue and Tupper Street also for the purposes of slowing down traffic. CN and CP Railway main lines are within two blocks north of this location so there are concerns that the first group of protestors may join the second group. Approximately 100 protestors are expected to attend this second protest, with a potential for a much larger group after the first protest concludes. (Source: SIMS).

On Wednesday December 26th at approximately 14:00 hrs, police were called for assistance the local Walmart as a small group of approximately 6 individuals were inside the entrance of the store beating drums in an apparent protest believed to be related to the "Idle No More" efforts. The group was in the store for approximately 20 minutes, and had departed by the time police arrived. advised that he understood the sensitivity of the protest. His only concerns were that the protesters were blocking the entrance to the store, and customers were complaining that the drums were too loud.
Patrols were made to several other stores downtown in attempts to locate the protesters, but none were located and no further complaints were received.

Support grows for blockade; First Nations say bill erodes treaty rights

The Chronicle-Herald
Wed Dec 26 2012
Page: B2
Section: InFocus

SARNIA, Ont. - A member of a southwestern Ontario First Nation blockading a CN Rail line in Sarnia says gestures of support are flooding in as the protest reaches its fifth day.

Ron Plain of the Aamjiwnaang First Nation says donations such as blankets and food and other offers of help are coming in from within the province and from as far away as California as word spreads through social media.

The protesters are denouncing the Harper government's omnibus Bill C-45, which they claim eliminates treaty and aboriginal rights set out in the Constitution.

Plain says organizers have yet to decide whether to challenge a court injunction granting police the power to end the protest. Sarnia police have said they won't move to stop the blockade unless there is a safety risk.

Demonstrators say the blockade will continue until Prime Minister Stephen Harper meets with Attiwapiskat Chief Theresa Spence. The leader of the northern Ontario First Nation is on a hunger strike in Ottawa to bring attention to aboriginal issues.

Meanwhile, members of two First Nations near Sault Ste. Marie in northern Ontario have posted a message on Facebook saying they plan to launch their own rail blockade on Thursday to back Spence.

Plain says there is an "air of excitement" at the Sarnia blockade, with Aamjiwnaang youth - who started the protest Friday as part of the national Idle No More movement - building snowmen along the tracks.

"The resolve of the community seems to be deepening," Plain said, adding the demonstration is "turning into a community event as opposed to a blockade."

The protest has seen dozens huddle around tents, tables and vehicles, shutting off rail access to several chemical plants.

"We've got people coming in from all over Ontario. We've got people coming in from the United States to sit in," Plain added.

Plain said a representative for the rail company spoke with organizers Monday, but the talks were not fruitful.

He said the First Nation is unwavering in its stance that the tracks were not laid legitimately.

"Our view is a very solid view in that the tracks are not permitted on that road. There was never any kind of permit issued for those tracks to cross there."

Spence started her hunger strike on Dec. 11, and has been living in a teepee on an island in the Ottawa River that many aboriginals consider to be sacred land.

She is seeking a meeting with Harper, the governor general and First Nations leaders to discuss the treaty relationship.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

EVENTS, INCIDENTS and ITEMS OF INTEREST

DAILY BRIEF CLASSIFIED ADDENDUM: There is no classified addendum today

CURRENT

1. First Nations (FN) Protests: A number of FN protests are occurring and being planned nationwide. The protests that have occurred since 19 Dec are organized by a group called "Idle No More", which is critical of Bill C-45, the government's omnibus budget legislation. The omnibus legislation contains changes to the Indian Act and Navigable Waters Protection Act. To date, the protests have resulted in interruptions to rail services and delays on various highways.

First Nations (FN) Protests – Nationwide - Update

Incident/Event Summary: A number of FN protests are occurring nationwide, in a number of locations across the country. The protests are expected to be peaceful; however, there are implications to critical infrastructure.

ON: On 26 Dec 2012, the blockade of the commercial-rail corridor by FN protestors continued in Sarnia without incident. On 27 Dec the Garden River FN, the Anishinawbek FN and the Whitefish FN are planning a rail blockade near Espanola. The blockade, on FN land is expected to start at approximately 08:00 EST on 27 Dec and last for 12 hours. The Huron Central Railway is expected to be impacted. The railway company has been informed and has preparations in place to deal with the blockade issue.

MB: On 28 Dec, protests are expected in the Portage La Prairie region. One is to occur from 10:00 to 14:00 EST on the bridge of the Assiniboine River on Highway 305 with the purpose of slowing traffic. As this is not a heavily travelled area, it is expected that the protest could move north to the Junction of Highways 1 and 16 or to CN or CP Railway main lines. Approximately 350-450 protesters are expected to attend. A second protest is planned from 15:00 to 17:00 EST at the intersection of Saskatchewan Avenue and Tupper Street. Approximately 100 protestors are expected to attend. The first group of protestors may later join the second group.

Current Actions: GOC, TC and AANDC continue to monitor the situation.

Nova Scotians to fast for Ontario chief
December 27, 2012 - 4:16am By LAURA FRASER and DAN ARSENAULT Staff Reporters (http://thechronicleherald.ca/author/laura-fraser-and-dan-arsenault-staff-reporters)

Almost 100 Nova Scotians are preparing to go four days without food to support a hunger-striking First Nations leader from northern Ontario.

Today is Day 17 of Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence's fast, and native and non-native supporters are pledging to support her bid to meet face to face with Prime Minister Stephen Harper over his government's controversial omnibus budget bill.
"We're fasting with her and joining her in solidarity, to pray to give her strength and hopefully engage the prime minister to meet with her," activist Shelley Young, 30, of Eskasoni said Wednesday in a telephone interview.
"We really want Harper to meet with Chief Spencer. We're worried about her health. She said she'll die for her people and we don't want it to get to that point."
Dalhousie University professor Erin Wunker will also take part.
"All of Canada needs to be aware (of) this movement for positive change," she said in a news release.
Young, who studies human nutrition at St. Francis Xavier University, said many other supporters in Saskatchewan and Ontario will also go without eating.
Those fasting in this province plan on gathering at Millbrook, according to the release.
The supporters, who include a number of local elders, will begin their fast at noon today and end it at noon on New Year's Eve.

Young said fasting is often a component of a First Nations religious ceremony.
"It's a sacrifice we make."
She fasts for traditional reasons every year and isn't planning to eat anything on Thursday morning.
Young created a Facebook page calling attention to the local fast. The page also mentions another activist group Spence is part of, called Idle No More, which organized a flash-mob at Mic Mac Mall last weekend to protest Bill C-25, the Conservative government's budget bill.
Spence has been sequestered in a teepee on an island in the Ottawa River since Dec. 11. She is trying to draw attention to the bill, which critics have said undermines treaty rights and wildlife protection by limiting the environmental reviews needed for the approval of construction or infrastructure projects.
The chief has said she will fast until Harper agrees to meet with her. It's a request he has so far ignored.
Federal Aboriginal Affairs Minister John Duncan wrote Spence on Tuesday asking her to stop her protest, saying he was concerned for her health, The Canadian Press reported.
Duncan's letter also said Spence has ignored his offers to meet or speak on the phone.

UPDATE 10: Planned First Nations Blockades for December 27, 2012 in the Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario (see below in red)

Ontario

December 27, 2012 - Another First Nations protest (transportation blockade) has begun along the intersection of Highway 17B (and 17A) which goes through Garden River FN. It should be noted that this is where the main Trans Canada Hwy 17 (A) and Highway 17B intersect as it comes into the area of Sault St. Marie, ON as well as where the main tracks for Huron Central Railway (HCR) proceed across the intersection (tracks run parallel to Highway 17B).

Anishinabek Police Service and the OPP are on site, and the protest is peaceful at this time (traffic is slowing down or stopping, protesters are handing out flyers, etc.). Minor to moderate impact to surface transportation as the traffic is starting to slow down as it comes into the Sault Ste. Marie (SSM) area from/to the main Trans Canada highway.

I've been advised that the protest location should be over by 20:00 EST tonight allowing the free movement of Highway 17 and HCR trains.

Carrie Ann McPherson of Criminal Intelligence at the RCMP suggested that I contact you regarding the current aboriginal protests in support of the Idle No More movement. I am writing the daily situation report for the RCMP senior management.

We understand that
Would it be possible for my name to be added to your distribution list of this situational assessment?

Also, would it be possible to use some of the information you are reporting in our daily sit reps, with the proper citation as the source? For example, there are events planned for Dec 28 and 29th that I understand you've included in your situational awareness update, which I would like to include in our daily sit reps,

Thanks

Hello

I was hoping you could answer this question from one of my colleagues. I haven't talked directly to HCR, but it sounds like you have. All she needs to know is whether the protest site for today's event in Northern Ont. (Mile Marker 174 at a Grade Level Crossing on the FN Reserve, is closer to Sault Ste. Marie or Espanola. Thanks in advance for your help.

Scott

Hi Scott,

Carrie Ann McPherson suggested that I contact you for assistance in determining the location of one of the potential aboriginal blockades of a railway in northern Ontario today. This is information that came to us from two different places, one from Transport Canada and one from your office.

The potential protest site in question appears to be east of Mile Marker 174 at a Grade Level Crossing on the FN Reserve, and will have an impact on Huron Central Railway Trains #912 and #SMSU.

I have no idea if this site is closer to Sault Ste. Marie or Espanola, which are the two cities closest to the FN Reserves planning blockades, as cited in the information we received.

If you can assist me, that would be greatly appreciated.

You can reach me at 843-4713 or by e-mail.

Subject: Additional info to PURPOSE statement re: lawful protests

How would you like to word the addition to the PURPOSE statement in regards to lawful protests?

Current PURPOSE statement:

There have been several media and social networking reports of planned protests and potential blockades in support for the "Idle No More" Aboriginal-based solidarity movement. This report will provide a summary of reported planned Canadian and international events within the last 24 hours, and, in addition, a list of known events being organized within the next 24 hours. This list may not be complete as the environment is constantly changing. (U)

Proposed Addition:

These lawful protests are being monitored to ensure that RCMP senior management is aware of all relevant events, and to determine that the safety of both participants and the public at large is maintained.

Any thoughts or suggestions?

Propane Industry Urges Peaceful End to Sarnia Blockade

OTTAWA, December 27, 2012 - The Canadian Propane Association (CPA) today encouraged all relevant authorities to take the necessary actions to ensure a peaceful resolution to the CN rail blockade in Sarnia, Ontario.

"Sarnia is a strategic location for the transportation of propane, and a prolonged blockade threatens to cut off the supply of propane to the thousands of Canadians that depend on it to fuel their farms and businesses, as well as to heat their homes," said CPA President & CEO, Jim Facette, in letters sent to the Federal Government, Sarnia Mayor and Police Chief. "We need the Mayor of Sarnia, the Chief of Police and the Federal Government to cooperate and take the necessary steps to ensure a peaceful resolution."

Every day, dozens of rail cars leave Sarnia bound for points east in Ontario, Quebec and Atlantic Canada. All points south of the blockade are currently unable to receive rail service, which means that for propane customers nothing is getting in or out.

The industry is working with CN and other industry stakeholders to examine alternative short-term solutions. Any prolonged disruption will result in severe congestion at other points and have a direct negative impact on propane customers.

"The propane industry in Canada is a $10 billion a year industry, supports tens of thousands of jobs and provides clean, efficient energy to Canadians," said Facette. "The blockade in Sarnia needs to be removed before it causes serious damage to the propane industry and threatens the energy supply for Canadians that depend on propane."

About the Canadian Propane Association
With over 350 members, the Canadian Propane Association (CPA) is the national voice of the Canadian propane industry, a multi-billion dollar industry that impacts the livelihood of tens of thousands of Canadians. The mission of the Association is to facilitate the growth and best practices of performance for the propane industry in Canada by acting as a unified champion for the entire industry, regardless of geography or place on the propane value chain. The CPA's vision is to be the respected voice of and destination for the propane industry in Canada, and to champion a safe propane industry.

"Idle No More" Flash Mob Planned for Terrace Today

Demonstration planned for Skeena Mall at 4pm

John Crawford

12/28/2012

Another "Idle No More" protest is being planned for the northwest -- this one in Terrace.

Organizers say drummers and singers will gather at the Skeena Mall, near the entrance to Liquidation World, at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

"Idle No More" demonstrations have already been held in Terrace -- and in Smithers, Prince Rupert and Burns Lake, as part of a nationwide movement begun by First Nations to show anger over the federal government's omnibus budget bill, which they say will impact them severely.

Participants have also been demanding Prime Minister Stephen Harper agree to a meeting with Attiwapiskat Chief Theresa Spence, who is now in the third week of a hunger strike near Ottawa. Spence says she won't eat, unless the Prime Minister agrees to meet with her.

G Division has had several small protests with in the Northwest Territories.

Yesterday approximately 24 vehicles took part in the Honk Around the World event.

Information received today indicates a round dance will take place on the streets in Yellowknife at 1500hrs at the "same place" (assume this means Franklin Avenue in Yellowknife?).

On 2012-12-19 information was received that the Idle No More group spoke about the possibility of blocking the new Deh Cho bridge situated near Fort Providence, NT. The bridge is 300 kms south of Yellowknife. To date no further intelligence has been received.

G Division has created a PROS file (20121610250) document the events and intelligence received

Hi there,

The Turtle Island Native Movement is planning a national call to peacefully shut down all land border crossings between Canada and the US on 05-January-2013.

Steven Kakinoosit is a known peaceful protestor behind the #idlenomore movement. Here is a recent speech he gave to students at a rally on 10-DEC in Vancouver:

First Nations prepared to fight Harper government, Enbridge in international court

Aboriginal leaders from British Columbia and across Canada talk land rights and share songs at the Idle No More Vancouver rally outside the Vancouver Art Gallery on Sunday.

Erin Flegg | Posted: Dec 23rd, 2012

Harriet Prince, a visitor from Manitoba dances at the Idle No More rally outside the Vancouver Art Gallery.

Darla Goodwin wasn't surprised when she first heard about the Enbridge Northern Gateway Pipeline.

"We have ancient pictorials and scrolls that speak of a time when the women rise up," she said. "A great snake was supposed to cross the land and poison Turtle Island, and we're looking at that as the pipeline."

Goodwin, an organizer for the Idle No More Vancouver and a member of the Cree First Nation, points to a prophecy, made several hundred years ago and passed down through the indigenous peoples of North America, that describes a time when a great snake will travel across the country, poisoning the land, the water and the air. There is another prophecy that references a time when one of the races would lose its way, and it would be up to the others—the women in particular—to remind the fallen nation what is means to steward the land.

She said her people were definitely not surprised when four women from Saskatchewan founded Idle No More in response to Bill C-45 and began a movement that now spans the country.

Matriarchal First Nations societies are based on traditional teachings of the moon and earth as female beings, the Mother and the Grandmother, and the 28-day cycle.

"In our culture the women are actually the leaders of our community," Goodwin said. "The clan mothers were the ones who decided when people would move, they decided who married who, what grounds were good to hunt on."

Goodwin's grandfather was present for the signing of Treaty 4, but she said it was the clan mothers who decided what needed to go into that treaty.

"Traditionally, non-indigenous folks would see chiefs standing out in front, but what the people didn't know was that those chiefs took their directions from the women."

Now, with the Enbridge hearings taking place in BC and Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence entering her third week without food in Ontario, Goodwin said the struggles of First Nations across the country come down to one key issue: will Stephen Harper respect indigenous land rights?

One of the biggest misconceptions non-indigenous Canadians have, she said, is that Crown lands belong to the government.

"All the Crown land across Canada is owned by Aboriginal people and Canadians do not know that." BC's unceded Coast Salish territory, while not covered by its own treaty, is still Crown land, and by law, the federal government is required to have free, prior and informed consent from First Nations before undertaking any measure that affects the land.

"I don't foresee Harper backpedalling whatsoever," Goodwin said. "I know that our next stop as indigenous people is to fight him on an international scale. ... And if it has to go to international court, it will. Until we lose in international court we will not stop."

But Goodwin is quick to stress that this is not an indigenous movement. It's not solely about a First Nations issue. It's a labour movement and it's a women's movement. It's a people's movement in response to a human rights issue.

This was immediately apparent today at the Idle No More Vancouver rally on the steps at the Vancouver Art Gallery where First Nations leaders and youth were flanked by members of the BC Nurses' Union, CUPE and migrant justice group No One is Illegal.

"We are wanting to educate non-indigenous people, especially seafaring people, farmers, unions, educators, that this bill affects them as well," Goodwin said.

More than a dozen speakers took the mic this afternoon, including elders and grandmothers from nations all over the country, members of Aboriginal youth groups, dancers and drummers.

Grand Chief Phillip Stewart, President of the Union of BC Indian Chiefs, said the failure to honour the treaties has voided them, and demanded Harper negotiate with the First Nations. He told supporters that nothing could stop the uprising of the women and their people.

"There is nothing that will stop these prophecies from being fulfilled," he said. "There is not death. Just a change of worlds."

Kelly White, Idle No More organizer and a member of the Squamish First Nation, said that by rights, Harper should no longer be in power at all.

"We're going for impeachment," she said. "Actually, by law the house should impeach him, but the house remains silent."

She echoed Goodwin's sentiments that Bill C-45 is an affront to all Canadians, indigenous or not. "The Harper government just impeached the voices of the unions and First Nations because there was no outreach to the public," she continued. "He just passed bills without even the protocol in the house for members of parliament to represent their constituents."

One of the last speakers of the day was Crystal Molina Smith, a poet and a member of the Gitga'at Nation of Hartley Bay. With her 10-month-old son strapped to her chest, she read a poem about becoming a casualty of Enbridge oil and told the crowd she began writing poems when she was 15 to express her anger at the government.

"In the past, our ancestors lived in a good way," she said, her voice quiet but firm. "I want to look to the future on a positive note, but Enbridge, if they get their way, there will be no positive future."

DFAIT advised that:
28-29/12/2012 – A scheduled demonstration is to take place Friday December 28 at 12:00pm and will last until Saturday December 29 at 15:00, outside of the office building of the Canadian Consulate in Los Angeles. This is the second protests to take place at that location. Last week, protest numbered approx. 50 people. Tomorrow's protest is expected to be marginally larger. The "Idle No More" movement appears to be focused on environmental policies in Canada.
- Mission will be restricting access to their floor from 11:00 through closing and staff have been informed.
- Law enforcement has been advised of the protest will be on hand to provide assistance if necessary.

The reason Turtle Island Movement has called for a peaceful blockade of the borders in Canada is in solidarity of the idle no more movements happening all across Canada & America...currently the harper government is pushing bills through senate that effect not only the First Nations but also canadian citizens.

UPDATE 11: Planned First Nations Blockades for December 28, 2012 in Sarnia, Ontario and Portage La Prairie, Manitoba (see below in red)

Ontario

December 28, 2012 – The Sarnia Rail Blockade is still ongoing, while the Garden River First Nations blockade (Sault Ste. Marie and Espanola) has ended peacefully.

December 27, 2012 - Another First Nations protest (transportation blockade) has begun along the intersection of Highway 17B (and 17A) which goes through Garden River FN. It should be noted that this is where the main Trans Canada Hwy 17 (A) and Highway 17B intersect as it comes into the area of Sault St. Marie, ON as well as where the main tracks for Huron Central Railway (HCR) proceed across the intersection (tracks run parallel to Highway 17B).

Anishinabek Police Service and the OPP are on site, and the protest is peaceful at this time (traffic is slowing down or stopping, protesters are handing out flyers, etc.). Minor to moderate impact to surface transportation as the traffic is starting to slow down as it comes into the Sault Ste. Marie (SSM) area from/to the main Trans Canada highway. This main vehicle corridor traffic loads are primarily between Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury, ON as well as across the International Bridge at SSM, and SSM, MI. HCR operations have been affected and as such, trains will be delayed until later today (after track inspections conducted). I've been advised that the protest location should be over by 20:00 EST tonight allowing the free movement of Highway 17 and HCR trains.

Transport Canada is in contact with Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada (AANDC) and there is no further information available at the present time.

For situational awareness several web sites are calling for closure of international crossings on January 5th 2013. (Source: SIMS).

Quebec

Nothing to report

PNR

December 26, 2012 - Two blockades are expected on Friday, December 28, 2012 in close proximity to the CN and CP Railway main lines in the Portage La Prairie region, Manitoba.

The first protest is set for 08:00–12:00 EST (09:00–13:00 CST) on Highway 305 on the Bridge of the Assiniboine River for the purposes of slowing down traffic. It is believed that this may only be a staging area for the protest to begin as this is not a heavily travelled area and it is expected that the protest could move north to the Junction of Highway 1 and 16 or to either CN or CP Railway main lines. Between 350-450 protestors are expected.

The second protest is set for 13:00–15:00 EST (14:00–16:00 CST) at the intersection of Saskatchewan Avenue and Tupper Street also for the purposes of slowing down traffic. CN and CP Railway main lines are within two blocks north of this location so there are concerns that the first group of protestors may join the second group. Approximately 100 protestors are expected to attend this second protest, with a potential for a much larger group after the first protest concludes. (Source: SIMS).

UPDATE 12: Planned First Nations Blockades for December 28, 2012 in Pointe de la Croix/Restigouche, Quebec (see below in red)

Quebec
December 28, 2012 - VIA Rail Canada advises that they were informed by the SQ that the former CN Rail Cascapedia subdivision (between Matapedia and Gaspé) now owned by Société du Chemin de Fer de la Gaspésie is being blocked at Pointe de la Croix/Restigouche by First Nations. It is important to note that the band counsel does not support this initiative.

This situation does not affect CN's Operations but could affect VIA Rail. VIA train 17 (DEP New Carlisle at 18:56 EST) is scheduled to arrive in that area around 19:00 EST en route to join train 15 at Matapedia (21:59 EST). No impact is expected to train operations at this time.

Should the protestors not be gone upon the VIA scheduled passage they will bus the passengers around the blockade. (Source: SIMS)

28 décembre 2012 - VIA Rail Canada nous avise qu'ils ont été informés par la SQ que l'ancien chemin de fer CN section Cascapédia (entre Matapédia et Gaspé) maintenant la propriété de la Société du Chemin de Fer de la Gaspésie est bloquée à la Pointe de la Croix / Restigouche par les Premières nations. Il est important de noter que le conseil de bande n'approuve pas cette initiative.

Cette situation n'affecte pas les opérations du CN, mais pourrait affecter VIA Rail. Train VIA 17 (DEP New Carlisle à 18h56 HNE) devrait arriver dans cette zone vers 19h00 HNE en route pour rejoindre le train 15 à Matapédia (21h59 HNE). Aucun impact n'est prévu pour l'exploitation des trains à l'heure actuelle.

Si les manifestants sont toujours présent au passage du train passager de VIA les passager seront transportés par autobus autour du blocus. (Source: STTI)

I've added the 2 BC events to today's sit rep, as your e-mail indicated Today! The other previous 2 e-mails pertain to Jan 5th events.

Did you want me to add this event in Yellowknife to today's sit rep, or are they too late at 12:15 p.m. for inclusion for today?

Good thing I stayed here. ;)

Good morning,

Would anyone have any more information to substantiate the following:

The IdleNoMore movement is planning to hold protests at International Bridges on Saturday January 5, 2013.

Any information is greatly appreciated.

Thank you,

Scott

Subject: "Idle No More" - Sarnia Protests

Sir,

I tasked Cpl. Steve Ferguson (NCO i/c London CIS) with conducting a preliminary assessment of the current situation in Sarnia as it relates to the Idle No More movement/demonstrations.

He provided the following synopsis:

- Over the last 7 days there have been Native protestors blocking traffic in the Sarnia area including highway 402. There are between 4-12 protestors at any one time at these demonstrations. Some of these protestors have also been walking up and down the CN rail line carrying placards that contain anti PM Harper comments.

observed 4 protestors on the CN line. The protestors were peaceful

- A/NCO i/c Sarnia detachment Cpl. Darcy McKeown has also been contacted and is aware of our interests.

There was some earlier tension when the protestors learned that CN had obtained an injunction to prohibit/control protests on CN property. A clause within the injunction specifies that Sarnia PD is responsible for determining how the injunction would be effected. Sarnia PD has decided not to enforce the injunction at this time and this decision has resulted in calming the situation.

- Cpl. Ferguson will travel to Sarnia tomorrow to provide a further assessment. He is also in the process of determining what Band the demonstrators represent and any subjects of interest that may be leading the protests.

I am also in the process of attempting to contact CM Analyst Brittany McBain who is responsible for the Critical Infrastructure Intelligence Team Bulletins that are produced weekly, to determine if she has come across any relevant information in this matter.

Respectfully submitted,

Tino Liokossis

Situation Report

Incident Number: ST122-12 A

Incident: First Nations Protests

Date: Information valid as of 28 Dec 2012, 20:00 EST

Description of current incident: A number of First Nations (FN) Protests are occurring as a result of a grassroots campaign called "Idle No More" which is protesting Bill C-45, the government's omnibus budget legislation. In addition, "Idle No More" related protests have also been planned at different locations in the United States in the coming days.

Source(s) of reporting: Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada, RCMP, Transport Canada, Emergency Management Ontario, Integrated Terrorist Assessment Centre and PS Regional Offices.

Current actions: GOC is monitoring the situation and has established contact with key federal departments/agencies and PS Regional Offices in order to maintain cohesive information sharing.

Event management of the protests falls under the purview of local jurisdictions and local law enforcement agencies, as appropriate.

At this time, the GOC is aware of the following "Idle No More" related protests planned in Canada for 29 Dec 2012:

- AB: 13:00 EST in Hobbema. An organized horse ride from Hobbema to Wetaskiwin.
- ON: 11:00 EST in St-Catharines. A round dance flash mob at Pen Centre Shopping Mall.
- ON: The rail blockade in Sarnia is ongoing, but remains peaceful at this time.

Assessment/Analysis: So far the protests have been peaceful in nature, some have affected the transportation sector.

Departments and Agencies with further information on this incident are asked to report to the GOC.

Additional situation reports: Further situation reports will be issued as significant developments occur.

Additional Products: Geomatics and other products will be attached to a follow-on message.

Rapport de situation

Numéro d'incident : ST122-12 A

Incident : Manifestations des Premières nations

Date : Renseignements mis à jour le 28 décembre, 2012, à 20 h (HNE)

Description de l'incident : Diverses manifestations des Premières nations se déroulent dans le cadre d'une campagne populaire intitulée « Idle No More », qui critique le projet de loi omnibus C-45 du gouvernement portant sur le budget. Certaines manifestations reliées à la campagne populaire « Idle No More » sont aussi prévues pour certaines régions des États-Unis dans les prochains jours.

Source(s) des renseignements : Affaires autochtones et Développement du Nord Canada, la GRC, Transports Canada, Gestion des urgences Ontario, le Centre intégré d'évaluation du terrorisme et les bureaux régionaux de Sécurité publique Canada.

Mesures en cours : Le COG surveille la situation et est en communications avec certains ministères et agences fédérales ainsi que les bureaux régionaux de Sécurité publique afin de maintenir un échange d'information cohérent.

La gestion des manifestations relève des autorités locales et des organismes d'application de la loi, le cas échéant.

Les manifestations suivantes de la campagne populaire « Idle No More » auront lieu le 29 décembre 2012 :

- AB: 13 h (HNE) Hobbema. Une promenade à chevaux de Hobbema à Wetaskiwin.
- ON: 11 h (HNE) St-Catharines. "Round dance flash mob" au Centre d'achat Pen.
- ON: Le barrage du corridor commercial ferroviaire par des manifestants des Premières nations est maintenu sans incident à Sarnia.

Analyse/évaluation : Jusqu'à maintenant, les manifestations ont causé l'interruption de services ferroviaires et des retards sur diverses routes.

Les ministères et les organismes qui ont plus de renseignements au sujet de cet incident sont priés de communiquer avec le COG.

Autres rapports de situation : D'autres rapports de situation seront émis au fur et à mesure que des développements importants se produisent.

Autres produits : Des produits de géomatique ainsi que d'autres produits seront joints à des messages subséquents.

UPDATE 13: Planned First Nations Blockades for December 28, 2012 in Pointe de la Croix/Restigouche, Quebec (see below in red)

Quebec
December 28, 2012 - the former CN Rail Cascapedia subdivision (between Matapedia and Gaspé) now owned by Société du Chemin de Fer de la Gaspésie is being blocked at Pointe de la Croix/Restigouche by First Nations.

Update: The protest continues. The band council is apparently split 50/50 on supporting the protest. Therefore, aboriginal police will not take action.

Mise à jour: La manifestation continue. Le conseil de bande est divisé 50/50 sur le soutien de la manifestation. Conséquemment, la police autochtone ne prendra aucune action.

Sorry to bother you all so late. Cpl Stewart McMillan just called and this is his observations at the site:

- 6 adults and 2 children present sitting around a fire.
-no obstructions on tracks
CN Police engaged and present at the time he was there.
- everyone in good spirits.
- very poor supplies present- minimal wood and thermos' of coffee only.
Numbers will probably stay low as there is a large feast planned for this weekend at the community hall in Seton.

INTERNATIONAL OBSERVERS NEEDED TO SAFE GUARD CHIEF SPENCE OF ATTAWAPISKAT

(December 28, 2012, Yellowknife) "This is day 18 of Chief Spence's hunger strike. In a country that is so rich from the territories and resources of Indigenous nations, the successor state of Canada does not want to meet with the Chief to discuss outstanding Treaty rights. It is a shame." said Dene National Chief Bill Erasmus.

We are calling on the places of worship across the country – all faiths to say a prayer for Chief Spence's health. As Treaty Peoples, we agreed with the Crown to allow her subjects to live in our territories in peace and friendship. These are international obligations. We are calling out to all the citizens of all faiths living in our territories, your support is needed. You have a good life because our ancestors willingness to share.

The international community is watching what is happening in Canada. The Special Rapporteur on Indigenous Issues James Anaya has been denied a visa by Canada to have an official United Nations visit. Mr. Anaya has requested a visa on three separate occasions. Canada has not given him a visa. Why? What is Canada trying to hide? In the Special Rapporteur's report to the Human Rights Council in September 2012, he made mention to the situation in Chief Spence's community. He had two of the three paragraphs on Canada refer to her community. "This was a significant statement against Canada considering all the issues confronting our peoples" added Chief Erasmus. As the National Chief of the Dene Nation, we are calling for international observers to come and witness the hunger strike of Chief Spence.

As Treaty Peoples, we have the right to call on international oversight including any discussions between Canada and our Nations. Canada is not acting in good faith to uphold the Honour of the Crown. This is a serious national and international issue.

Members of the faiths, call on the members of Parliament, the Senators, the presidents of corporations making money from our territories, it is time to talk to the real owners of the territories. Chief Spence needs to have all our support.

For more information contact Mr. Barrett Lenoir at the Dene National Office at (867) 873-4081 in Yellowknife, NT.

Ben,

It's the squamish Sub (old BC rail line).

Still waiting for confirmation if a physical blockade is taking place. RCMP ETA 1hr.

CN Police originally received a call from Tribal Police reporting that was going to blockade tracks, SETON FN

Location, 20 rail miles south of Lillooet. B.C. Sounds like the blockade will only be for one day.

Info still at preliminary stages.

Subject: Idle No More - Dec 30/12 - Media Callout.

Media Release. Callout for events on Dec 30/12.

FYI.

Attawapiskat Chief Spence heading into day 19 of hunger strike and seeking Canadians, Members of Parliament and politicians to urge Prime Minister Harper to meet and commit to Nation to Nation relations with Canadaâ€™s Aboriginal Peoples.

Algonquin Territory, Ottawa, Ont

Chief Theresa Spence is heading into day nineteen of a hunger strike and concern for her health has been expressed by community members worldwide. Her resolve is unwavering to continue her hunger strike until the Prime Minister and his government agree to a meeting to discuss a commitment and a way forward to begin Nation to Nation treaty based relationship and a path forward for reconciliation with First Nations and Canada.

Her condition continues to weaken every hour and the time has come for increased efforts to gain the support of Canadians and governments in forging this new relationship.

Therefore two events will be planned for Sunday December 30th, 2012.

Event:
i) Open house invitation to all Members of Parliament and Senators to visit with Chief Spence at her teepee at Victoria Island, Ottawa. Chief Spence will be receiving MPâ€™s and Senators on Sunday December 30th, from 2:00 to 4:00 pm. Media will be welcome for a brief statement and comments.
ii) Chief Spence is requesting all Canadians and Indigenous People worldwide join in solidarity for ceremonies, events and rallies to call on Prime Minister Harper to answer the call of Aboriginal Nations to meet with Chief Spence and commit to a path of recognition and implementation of the treaty commitments and forging a new First Nations crown relationship. National and International Coordinated events will be planned for Sunday December 30th, 2012 at 2 pm Eastern time.

End of media report.....

Carrie Ann,

Just reviewing the e-mails before sending you my draft for today's sit rep.

What is your opinion of the situation in Quebec (see attached)? The update came in last night around 5:00 p.m. and indicates that the blockade continues. However, there is no mention that it is planned to continue into Saturday, and the band is split on supporting the protest.

Should I include this?

We do have one crossing where there is a planned protest with a rail crossing, that is Peace Arch in Surrey, BC.

I think the rail line may be owned by Burlington Santa Fe. I should hear back soon. I have no idea how many trains cross there or what the relationship is with CN and relative container travel.

Peace Arch is a very large port, in fact the largest in BC. The protest is supposed to include over 3500 protesters on Jan 5th (sat).

It may be in the best interest of our American Partners to contact Sea-Tac and Bellingham Int'l airports to advise them of the disruption so they can contact their Canadian passengers planning to fly out that day. There will no doubt be a lot of them traveling at that time.

Scott, further to our conversation, the daily sit rep lists only known/reported events for that day and the next 24 hours. The Jan. 5th events would not even have been mentioned on any of the reports to date so receiving the report would not have helped answer your question. If you are looking for specific info, a possible solution is to contact either myself or Lori as we are trying our best at keeping track of planned events. Another option is to specify what types of events you are interested in and we can forward info directly to you....maybe these are better solutions?

Subject: 'Idle No More'

Good Afternoon,

See below for a summary of my findings today in Sarnia:

I drove by the location near highway #40 and Scott Road in Sarnia at 1045 hrs on this date. The railway is still blocked. Best estimate I can give is between 5-10 subjects in the area of the tents setup on the railway. As of 1300 hrs there is no change.

The protesters have been peaceful so far.

I will be checking the site one more time before I depart to London. I will advise when I hear of any developments.

Let me know if anything further is required.

Regards

UPDATE 15: First Nations Blockades for December 30, 2012. Updates for Deseronto, Ontario (see below in red)

Ontario

December 28, 2012 – Sarnia - The Sarnia Rail Blockade is still ongoing. CN Officials met with the Mayor of Sarnia, four members of the Band Council and the Sarnia Police Chief. On December 29, 2012, The Band Council met today to discuss their next course of action. The Sarnia Rail Blockade has decreased in size. There are currently only four protesters.

Update: December 30, 2012 – Deseronto (near Belleville, ON) - There are reports that the Wyman Road crossing, in Deseronto, ON, is currently being blocked by First Nations protestors. Rail traffic control has been advised to slow trains down in that area.

approximately 10-12 protestors on the tracks with fire in possible barrels. The police of jurisdiction is Tyendinega Police. CN Police are responding to the scene. It was reported that protestors plan on blocking the tracks for 2 hours at this point.

For situational awareness several web sites are calling for closure of international crossings on January 5th 2013. (Source: SIMS).

Quebec

December 28, 2012 - the former CN Rail Cascapedia subdivision (between Matapedia and Gaspé) now owned by Société du Chemin de Fer de la Gaspésie is being blocked at Pointe de la Croix/Restigouche by First Nations.

The protest continues. The band council is apparently split 50/50 on supporting the protest. Therefore, aboriginal police will not take action.

Le 28 décembre 2012 - l'ancien chemin de fer CN section Cascapédia (entre Matapédia et Gaspé) maintenant la propriété de la Société du Chemin de Fer de la Gaspésie est bloquée à la Pointe de la Croix / Restigouche par les Premières nations.

La manifestation continue. Le conseil de bande est divisé 50/50 sur le soutien de la manifestation. Conséquemment, la police autochtone ne prendra aucune action.

PNR

December 26, 2012 - Two blockades are expected on Friday, December 28, 2012 in close proximity to the CN and CP Railway main lines in the Portage La Prairie region, Manitoba.

The first protest is set for 08:00–12:00 EST (09:00–13:00 CST) on Highway 305 on the Bridge of the Assiniboine River for the purposes of slowing down traffic. It is believed that this may only be a staging area for the protest to begin as this is not a heavily travelled area and it is expected that the protest could move north to the Junction of Highway 1 and 16 or to either CN or CP Railway main lines. Between 350-450 protestors are expected.

The second protest is set for 13:00–15:00 EST (14:00–16:00 CST) at the intersection of Saskatchewan Avenue and Tupper Street also for the purposes of slowing down traffic. CN and CP Railway main lines are within two blocks north of this location so there are concerns that the first group of protestors may join the second group. Approximately 100 protestors are expected to attend this second protest, with a potential for a much larger group after the first protest concludes. (Source: SIMS).

British Columbia

December 29, 2012 – At 00:59 EST (21:59 PST on 28-12-2012), it was reported that protestors assembled along a CN line near Squamish, BC. The group is peaceful and they plan on being there for two days to show their support. The area is remote (only accessible by rail). Traffic consists of only a couple of freight trains per day plus a budd car (a self-propelled passenger railcar). Freight traffic is not really affected but CN will not allow the budd car to run while the protest is on, therefore, there may be public pressures on the protestors to move away from the track. CN Police are currently not planning on sending anyone to this location. (Source: SIMS)

Good evening,

See information below on recent developments regarding the Sarnia protests on the railway at highway #40 and Scott Road.

updated me on some developments as follows:

- In Kingston, there was a blockade on the railway.

- On Saturday, December 29 at approximately 1600 hrs a uniformed officer observed three native males carrying compound bows at the Sarnia protest location. All three males were in their late 20's to mid 30's. They did not appear to be hunting.

- Intelligence has been received that protesters plan to block border points on January 4, 2013. Locations include Sarnia, Niagara Falls, Cornwall, and Windsor. (Uncertain of the reliability of this info).

will continue to update me with any developments.

Bonjour Messieurs,

Information reçue concernant un blocage en Alberta samedi le 5 janvier 2013. Je vais demander à notre analyste, Barbara Wegryzcka, des Infrastructures essentielles de suivre cet événement.

Toujours en date du 5 janvier, dans le but de nuire à l'économie canadienne, nous avons reçu de l'information à l'effet qu'il y aura eu un appel pancanadien de bloquer les points d'entrées le long de la frontière canado-américaine (incluant les aéroports).

Le tout soumis pour votre information.

Unfolding Event - Peaceful Protest Spruce Grove, Alberta 2012-12-31

On 2012-12-30, Sgt. Salter was advised that there was going to be a 'Peaceful' protest tomorrow in Spruce Grove, Alberta. The protest is in support of 'Idle no more', protesting Bill C-45. Protesters will meet in at Walmart in Spruce Grove at noon and will walk to Stony Plain, and have a Round Dance in front of Hon. Rona Ambroise's office. The Round Dance will consist of drumming and prayers and is to be a peaceful demonstration.

Sgt. Salter discussed this protest with one of the organizers, who will liaise with Sgt. Salter on all unfolding events to discuss a safe plan for their protest tomorrow. The Watch Commander for Stony Plain has been advised, resources will rest with Sgt. Salter who will attend and work with the protesters to ensure a safe and healthy event.

Organizers are expecting about 100 participants and communication is on-going.

I took part in the Transport Canada call on the possible impacts of the protests.

Information they have received states that CN will be in court today to obtain Contempt of Court Orders for the Sarnia Chief of Police and some of the known protesters. I provided an update of what the RCMP is doing and that we are not the police of jurisdiction.

There will be another call on Wednesday. This call will be to discuss the information all agencies have on the Jan 5 border crossing protests. I will continue to be the point of contact.

Below are listed previously unreported events (unless otherwise noted):

2012-12-31 1200 Enoch - As disseminated earlier this morning. Detachment is aware and in contact with organizers.

2012-12-31 1400 Hinton. Parkland Mall and side of highway. This might have occurred yesterday or it might be happening today. WAD please confirm with Hinton Detachment so that they are aware.

2012-12-31 2030 Calgary Municipal Building (City Hall). Family Round Dance and Drum Flash Mob

2012-12-31 TBA Calgary: Olympic Plaza. Flash mob Drum Circle and Round Dance.

General Information:

Border blockades for 2013-01-05 are being discouraged by Idle No More organizers, however it remains to be seen whether that will have any effect or not.

Continually growing awareness of disadvantages of planning events on open sites. Eastern Canada and BC seem to have the most momentum currently.

There was an event in Manitoba where an Aboriginal women was allegedly sexually assaulted by as many as four Caucasian men who allegedly used racial slurs and tirades against Idle No More during their attacks. I have not personally substantiated this; however there was at least one press article about it. If this is true, it could be a trigger point as well.

the important of contact with community leaders and members increases.

If further information becomes available I will forward same.

UPDATE 16: First Nations Blockades for December 30, 2012. Updates for Deseronto, Ontario (see below in red)

Ontario

December 28, 2012 – Sarnia - The Sarnia Rail Blockade is still ongoing. CN Officials met with the Mayor of Sarnia, four members of the Band Council and the Sarnia Police Chief. On December 29, 2012, The Band Council met today to discuss their next course of action. The Sarnia Rail Blockade has decreased in size. There are currently only four protesters.

Update 16: December 30, 2012 – Deseronto (near Belleville, ON) – At 20:56 EST it was reported that protestors at the Wynan Road crossing in Desoronto, ON has vacated the area and that CN rail was inspecting the tracks before allowing trains to being to move.

Update 15 : December 30, 2012 – Deseronto (near Belleville, ON) - There are reports that the Wyman Road crossing, in Deseronto, ON, is currently being blocked by First Nations protestors. Rail traffic control has been advised to slow trains down in that area.

approximately 10-12 protestors on the tracks with fire in possible barrels. The police of jurisdiction is Tyendinega Police. CN Police are responding to the scene. It was reported that protestors plan on blocking the tracks for 2 hours at this point.

For situational awareness several web sites are calling for closure of international crossings on January 5th 2013. (Source: SIMS).

Quebec

December 28, 2012 - the former CN Rail Cascapedia subdivision (between Matapedia and Gaspé) now owned by Société du Chemin de Fer de la Gaspésie is being blocked at Pointe de la Croix/Restigouche by First Nations.

The protest continues. The band council is apparently split 50/50 on supporting the protest. Therefore, aboriginal police will not take action.

Le 28 décembre 2012 - l'ancien chemin de fer CN section Cascapédia (entre Matapédia et Gaspé) maintenant la propriété de la Société du Chemin de Fer de la Gaspésie est bloquée à la Pointe de la Croix / Restigouche par les Premières nations.

. La manifestation continue. Le conseil de bande est divisé 50/50 sur le soutien de la manifestation. Conséquemment, la police autochtone ne prendra aucune action.

PNR

December 26, 2012 - Two blockades are expected on Friday, December 28, 2012 in close proximity to the CN and CP Railway main lines in the Portage La Prairie region, Manitoba.

The first protest is set for 08:00–12:00 EST (09:00–13:00 CST) on Highway 305 on the Bridge of the Assiniboine River for the purposes of slowing down traffic. It is believed that this may only be a staging area for the protest to begin as this is not a heavily travelled area and it is expected that the protest could move north to the Junction of Highway 1 and 16 or to either CN or CP Railway main lines. Between 350-450 protestors are expected.

The second protest is set for 13:00–15:00 EST (14:00–16:00 CST) at the intersection of Saskatchewan Avenue and Tupper Street also for the purposes of slowing down traffic. CN and CP Railway main lines are within two blocks north of this location so there are concerns that the first group of protestors may join the second group. Approximately 100 protestors are expected to attend this second protest, with a potential for a much larger group after the first protest concludes. (Source: SIMS).

British Columbia

December 29, 2012 – At 00:59 EST (21:59 PST on 28-12-2012), it was reported that protestors assembled along a CN line near Squamish, BC. The group is peaceful and they plan on being there for two days to show their support. The area is remote (only accessible by rail). Traffic consists of only a couple of freight trains per day plus a budd car (a self-propelled passenger railcar). Freight traffic is not really affected but CN will not allow the budd car to run while the protest is on, therefore, there may be public pressures on the protestors to move away from the track. CN Police are currently not planning on sending anyone to this location. (Source: SIMS)

Idle No More

Idle No More calls on all people to join in a revolution which honors and fulfills Indigenous sovereignty which protects the land and water. Colonization continues through attacks to Indigenous rights and damage to the land and water. We must repair these violations, live the spirit and intent of the treaty relationship, work towards justice in action, and protect Mother Earth.

IDLE NO MORE CALLS FOR ONLY PEACEFUL ACTS OF RESURGENCE AND RECLAMATION OF SACRED SITES

IDLE NO MORE CALLS FOR ONLY PEACEFUL ACTS OF RESURGENCE AND RECLAMATION OF SACRED SITES

- When INM first began, Elders were consulted and direction provided from them. Their message and direction has been of peaceful solidarity and unity. One of the most sacred of Indigenous laws is peaceful resistance when Elders and children are involved and this is what we must follow.

- Idle No More is a peaceful organization that is working towards profound social, political, and economic change. Our goal is to use education to build consciousness and awareness in all Canadians on the resurgence of Indigenous sovereignty and environmental protections. We are working on building relationships within our communities as well as across Canada and globally. We also call out to each community to organize teach-ins and peaceful demonstrations – we believe an educated public is the best form of action. Each community has different needs, and we support the various actions that are taking place across Turtle Island, however because of the many decades of colonialism, some community members are seeking stronger forms of action such as blockades. While we need to protect the land from further damage, we hope that this will be used as a last resort to protect Mother Earth, and not as a symbolic act. We are working hard to maintain INM as a positive movement that includes all cultures in a vision for justice for all people and for our earth.

- Idle No More feels that any acts that are not in line with peace and solidarity only detract attention from our ultimate mission which is to assert our sovereignty and ensure protection to our Mother Earth and in essence our peoples health and wellbeing. We ask that you all keep in mind these factors when planning any acts of resurgence.

- INM recognizes that the grassroots are the face of INM - we would like to state that any one individual does not speak for the collective in any of their acts or statements. Although we recognize that individuals will partake in their own acts, we support a collective grassroots voice that speaks to Indigenous sovereignty and environmental protection. We welcome creative acts and encourage people to generate peaceful ways to build community and defend the earth.

The Idle No More movement, which has swept the country over the holidays, took most Canadians, including Prime Minister Stephen Harper and his Conservative government, by surprise.

That is not to say that Canadians have never seen a native protest before, as most of us recall Oka, Burnt Church and Ipperwash. But most Canadians are not used to the kind of sustained, co-ordinated, national effort that we have seen in the last few weeks — at least not since 1969. 1969 was the last time the federal government put forward an assimilation plan for First Nations. It was defeated then by fierce native opposition, and it looks like Harper's aggressive legislative assimilation plan will be met with even fiercer resistance.

In order to understand what this movement is about, it is necessary to understand how our history is connected to the present-day situation of First Nations. While a great many injustices were inflicted upon the indigenous peoples in the name of colonization, indigenous peoples were never "conquered." The creation of Canada was only possible through the negotiation of treaties between the Crown and indigenous nations...READ MORE

On January 1, 2013 - Call to all Pipe Carriers, Keepers of Bundles, Sweat Lodges, and Ceremonies

A Call Out of Extreme Importance & Significance from our Dear Friend EMIL BELL

Christmas has always been one of the saddest day of my life, my "Mother" made the journey to the spirit world on Christmas day in 1951. I was nine years when this happened and the most excruciating pain you could experience, with time the pain is bearable, but I still experience a deep sadness. The principal of the Beauval Indian Residential School wouldn't allow me to go to the funeral of my "Mother". We are in the process of the Truth and Reconciliation and I still don't get what that was all about, do we forgive our oppressers? Few of the oppressers fall into the catagory of psychopaths and sociopaths and have no feelings for what they do. The majority have feelings and they have this man made ritual of confessing. They go through the act of confessing for their horrendous crimes against humanity, and they are told, say three hail mary's and one, our father and your sins are forgiven. But they keep coming back again and again and again and confessing for the same crimes, the confessional is a revolving door. These crimes or sins fall under the catagory of the assimilation policy, white paper policy, the buffalo jump etc. They are all an attack on the identity, language, culture, family, belief system etc. The pope, steve harper made a public confession and people rejoiced, harper apologized to the Aboriginal People for past sin committed by past governments and other people, intending on getting, all the land and resources from Aboriginal People. It was not an apology, it was, damage control, a public relation scheme. Greed, short sighted vision (to the closest Bank), and no value on human life are very powerful forces that drive people like steven harper and his croonies and the multi national corporations. I thank the "Creator" and the GrandMothers/Fathers for the gifted, four poweful Young Women of the "Idle No More" movement and the many other Powerful Women/Men who have come into my life. These Young Women have conducted themselves in a manner that is very admirable. These are the true leaders, in the struggle for "Mother Earth", the other life forms that have sustained us from the begining of time and for our Children, GrandChildren and the ones, not yet born. At this time allow me, the opportunity to thank my "Mother" GrandMother(s), GreatGrandMother(s), Aunts, my biological Daughter, and my two adopted Daughters, Grand Children and Nosismak, for helping me for what I am. And, I thank you for not taking my right to be sad for the loss of my "Mother", on this day.

Four (4) Founding Woman of Idle No More (L-R)
Sheelah McLean, Nina Wilson, Sylvia McAdam, & Jessica Gordon

The four Young Women came at a very opportune time, and they are a gift from the "Creator", as are all the other Women who have supported the movement in the struggle against the distruction of "Mother Earth" and the elimination of future generations.

It is with this in mind, on New Years Day, I'm humbly putting out this request to Women/Men Pipe Carries, Keepers of the Sacred Bundles, Sweat Lodge Operaters, the many gifted with Sacred Ceremonies, to lite up the Sacred Fires and Pray so that we can save "Mother Earth" from further distruction, for Future Generation.

For me to say that, I'm not afraid to die, I wouldn't be honest. As I stated, when I began the hunger strike (on the 12th of December) if we do not see anything positive, thirty days after the start on Jan. 10/13, I'm willing to give my life so future generations can survive and enjoy the many gifts from the "Creator". I have a lot of very good reason to want to live, and I have a lot of faith in all of the Aboriginal People and our Sisters and Brothers of other color, who are in this struggle to save "Mother Earth" for those that are living and those not yet born.

Thank You and keep the movement Peaceful, our Children are watching, via "Mother Earth" and Future Generations.

Elder Emil Bell

Emil Bell went on hunger strike December 11, 2012 in support of Chief Theresa Spence and all the reasons people of Idle No More began, please see the initial Post made on this website for more information:

Change the conversation, support rabble.ca today.

Native peoples in this country have endured much worse than the disrespect Prime Minister Harper showed on Dec 21, tweeting about "mmm... bacon" while Attiwapiskat Chief Theresa Spence was on Day 11 of a hunger strike that won't end unless he agrees to a meeting between himself, the Governor General and First Nations leaders including Spence.

But it is precisely at this point where respect would be worth so much. We have an uprising in this country for Native sovereignty, the Idle No More movement. This in a country where Harper 'apologized' for genocidal residential schools, yet the next year claimed on the world stage that Canada didn't have a history of colonialism, and where the residential schools Truth and Reconcialition Commission has just had to turn to the courts in order to get the government to turn over the historical records that it needs to do its job.

And in Chief Spence's community of Attawapiskat, when they were experiencing a housing crisis in the winter cold last year, Harper 'took leadership' of the situation by removing management of the community from the chief and council and putting it under third-party management, which a court later ruled was it was wrong to do. But contrary to what Jian Ghomeshi said (in an otherwise great piece) about Chief Spence being on hunger strike to get Harper to meet with her to discuss the situation on her reserve, Spence is in fact doing this on behalf of all Aboriginal people in Canada (and especially for the youth).

There is some recognition in this country that Aboriginal people have been unjustly treated, that there is validity to this movement to take the government to account and to demand better. And as such, the potential for broad public support for this movement is there. (And for those who cling to justifications against Native peoples, Maclean's has helpfully deciphered those arguments).

Chief Spence's actions are serving to supercharge this movement.
Idle No More started in Saskatchewan in November, and caught on through social media. It was this grassroots pressure, their people urging them to stand up against the government, that catalyzed some chiefs, who were having a meeting in Gatineau, to impromptly march to Parliament where a few tried to enter the House of Commons, causing a brief scuffle between them and security.

Chief Spence started her fast as the Idle No More movement continued to gather steam. She seems to have taken the lead from the grassroots people, and in turn they have taken her lead.
People have started solidarity fasts or hunger strikes (including this Cross Lake elder, that CBC can somehow report on without a single mention of Chief Spence).
Some in the public sphere have urged caution or shown disapproval for her actions: Patrick Brazeau, a Native senator appointed by Harper best known for his boxing match with Justin Trudeau, stated that he thought she wasn't setting a good example for Aboriginal youth; Kate Heartfield of the Ottawa Citizen warns that this isn't the way to deal with a government headed by Harper; and NDP MP Charlie Angus worries that this type of potential martyrdom could lead to the type of strife experienced in Northern Ireland.
But in a lot of the reporting and discussion around the hunger strike, the very act of a hunger strike or fast is seemingly not understood fully.
Like many other hunger strikers, Chief Spence is issuing a demand that must be fulfilled for her to start eating again. But she is also engaging in a practice that is very much part of spiritual traditions of First Nations' culture.
I had the opportunity earlier this year to hear about fasting in a Native context, at a talk on Aboriginal perspectives on mental health. Carol Hopkins explained the cultural importance and philosophy behind such practice, telling a story of the power of doing without, of praying, of the intent that others have some first, and of how it is not about doing only for yourself, but doing it for everyone.

In this context, a fast/hunger stike as part of Idle No More (along with the many prayer ceremonies, drumming, round dance flash mobs, etc that have been happening) shows how the very Native culture that the people are standing up for is very much alive and experiencing a (re)surgence that can be a point of hope and solidarity in this country racked with so much present and historical pain and amnesia.

As poet/musician and former American Indian Movement leader John Trudell writes in the last stanza of his poem 'This Idle No More':

a real fast way to protect the spirit is to feed the spirit real-ity of fast, a real fast, let the human sacrifice food as well thought out decision not in emotional reaction ceremony in spiritual offerings of self in physical groups or alone, or together not alone, stand fast in idle no more the ones who can, stand fast together in different places stand fast real-ity fast together join the grandmothers fast

In Ottawa this past Wednesday, there was a community feast to feed Chief Spence's spirit as she continued her fast. This was another example of how fasting is not only an individual endeavour, but something that is supported by -- just as much as it is in support of -- the broader health of the community.

As some are engaged in solidarity fasting with Chief Spence, and so many more have her and the cause in her prayers, perhaps another way to be in support is to be mindful in your eating to be not only feeding yourself but also her spirit and that of all engaged in this awakening, this (re)surgence, this whatever you would describe it as.

A post I saw on facebook put it this way:

Chief Spence said the pain had just become too much – she is trying in her way To Make Medicine Out of Pain. ... Chief Spence has presented a bridge to the real great divide in Canada – between the First Peoples and the rest of us – and it is an Indigenous bridge – not the non-native bridge of law and rights and bureaucracy. She is sharing her pain and her heart in a very visible way, and in her way – in a sense it is the spirit of the Friendship and Welcoming and Sharing Wampum, inviting us all to her heart.

The bridge she is creating is not only unifying Native peoples in this country, but also offering the whole country a way forward.

Someone commented that this movement is being seen as 'almost as big as Oka,' referring to the moment in Canadian history that catalyzed Native pride perhaps as never before. Perhaps this present moment can catalyze a unified movement large enough to bring about lasting practical and structural change in the relationship between the Canadian state and the original peoples of this land, and between all of us who call this land home.

Harper, it's no joke: Indigenous people are demanding justice

Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence is now on Day 11 of an indefinite hunger strike demanding a meeting with the prime minister. There has been a wave of support for her, as part of the Idle No More movement -- with a barrage of Tweets directed to @PMHarper asking him to meet with Chief Spence and to respect First Nations.

Official Opposition urges Harper to meet with Theresa Spence, now in second week of hunger strike

"From coast to coast to coast, an unprecedented wave of grassroots action is sweeping across First Nations communities. When you met with First Nations leaders less than a year ago, you committed your government to working in partnership with First Nations Canadians. The #IdleNoMore protests are proof that Aboriginal Canadians are demanding you fulfill that solemn commitment."

Idle No More: Maori Women in Solidarity

Posted on December 23, 2012by Te Wharepora Hou

The 'Idle No More' movement began to move across Great Turtle Island on December 21, 2012 and with it the significance of this time of transition was shared with the world.

As Indigenous women, as Māori women, across Te Moana nui a Kiwa, the Great sea of Kiwa, we send our thoughts and blessings to our tuakana (elder line) who are taking the lead to send messages to the world that things must change. Your leadership with its commitment and dedication to our responsibilities as Indigenous Peoples to Papatūānuku, to this great Grandmother Earth, is a powerful expression of the cultural and spiritual pathways that we must all commit and dedicate ourselves to for the future wellbeing of all living things that share this earth.

We stand in solidarity with our relations who are taking to the streets, who are walking the earth, who are sharing the sounds of drums and song, who are sending blessings and prayer to Creator to bring us in to a period of revitalization for all Indigenous Peoples....READ MORE

Canadian Response to Bill C-45

Canadian MP's Responses to Bill C-45

by Justin Usual on Tuesday, December 18, 2012 at 4:03pm

#idlenomoreI emailed many Canadian elected officials and received the following replies. First the form letter, originally posted on idlenomore.ca

RE: Bill C-45

This message is to strongly express that I do not support Bill C-45.This Conservative government is blatantly violating the rights of all Canadians and its Indigenous people. Bill C-45 specifically affects Indigenous sovereignty and inherent rights to the land, and therefore must receive due consideration, consultation and consent from the First Nations leaders and communities in which it directly impacts. The Treaties that were signed between the Crown and Indigenous peoples are nation to nation covenants that cannot be arbitrarily changed through unilateral legislation. Bill C-45 alters sections of the Indian Act and disregards the Treaties without consultation and consent. Upon review of Bill C-45, it is clear that this legislation benefits corporations involved in oil pipelines and nuclear energy, without due attention and consideration given to the impact that it will have on the land and environment. This government has proposed reconciliation with First Nations peoples, yet continues to enforce numerous policies such as Bill C-45 using paternalistic and neocolonial processes. I demand that Bill C-45 be stopped until a democratic process of consultation and consent is duly followed by the various groups that it does impact.

Purpose

The purpose of this proposal is to present support options to Contract and Aboriginal Policing (CAP) in relation to Idle No More (INM) and aboriginal protests and the need for situational awareness or intelligence products.

Intelligence Support to Contract and Aboriginal Policing (CAP)

Due to the CAP's various roles in coordinating the RCMP's response and in providing strategic awareness vis-à-vis national aboriginal demonstrations and protests, a Federal Policing Intelligence Coordination team has been stood up to monitor events surrounding the INM movement.

Framing the Issues: Scope of monitoring

Issues and events linked to the INM social movement have been the focal point for monitoring and reporting by the Intelligence Coordination team, whose mandate is to collate information from the field into a report to provide situational awareness to RCMP senior management.

The scope of monitoring and reporting may include events or issues which are peripheral to INM, in light of the primary role of the RCMP which is to preserve the peace, protect life and property, and enforce the law. The spring of 2013 has been marked by an evolution in terms of aboriginal protests whereby INM-specific events have abated and land sovereignty / environmental protests that are not necessarily associated with INM have emerged. Finally, associations of convenience have occurred and may continue to form in order to gain political traction. These associations blur the line between INM-sponsored events, and activities from other groups or movements.

Under a new banner called "Sovereignty Summer", some events will be targeting resource development projects involving pipelines, tar sands, natural gas, fisheries or mines.

CAP National Response Option Levels

Three distinct levels of response are proposed for determining how CAP will manage its responsibilities with respect to national aboriginal demonstrations and protests.[1] These response levels can be used to determine the associated information and intelligence support provided by the Intelligence Coordination team.

1 See the National Aboriginal Demonstrations and Protests - Framework for Defining the RCMP's Coordinated National Response document (version 7.3)

The following are proposed intelligence support options provided by the Intelligence Coordination team.

a) Level I: Situational Awareness

b) Level II: Elevated Watch

3 An Idle No More email account was created to manage email correspondence. Since January 2013, 575 emails have been received. This account receives large volumes of correspondence during active protests.
4 Approximately 1000 events as of April 8
5 This employee classification is arbitrary. A research specialist, administration clerk, or policy analyst may apply in the case of providing support during Level I.

c) Level III: Critical Response

*Top Stories / Actualités*Drug bust involves doctor, Olympian, school principal

Nova Scotia - A Nova Scotia doctor who police say has been selling prescriptions for medical marijuana, an Olympic paddler and an elementary school principal were involved in a large-scale marijuana bust Thursday in the Halifax area. Friday morning, officers unveiled about 21 kilograms of dried and bagged weed, stacks of cash totalling over $100,000, four long guns and five nondescript vehicles that were part of the raids. They also named 28 of the 29 people arrested, who they say were involved in a drug ring. […] "An additional arrest is pending," RCMP Chief Supt. Brian Brennan said Friday. […] The doctor has not been named and, so far, faces no charges. However, the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Nova Scotia announced Friday that it had suspended the licence of Dr. Dinesh Sinha of Halifax."Dr. Sinha came to the attention of the college as a result of work done by the RCMP," college CEO and registrar Dr. Gus Grant said Friday. Officers contacted the college Thursday. Early Friday morning, a college committee held an emergency meeting and pulled Sinha's licence. […] The seizures and arrests involved RCMP officers, Halifax Regional Police and officers from the Truro Police Service brought in for extra manpower. Police said the sweep was the result of an 11-month investigation, which also netted 2,207 marijuana plants and about $250,000 worth of marijuana production equipment. […] "This operation focused on a group of criminals operating together in an organized manner, who engaged in cultivating and trafficking marijuana within the Halifax Regional Municipality," said RCMP Staff Sgt. Roddie Macdonald. At some of the homes that were searched, "residents did have a licence to raise medical marijuana," he said. "However, the individuals arrested were accused of illegally selling that marijuana." […]RCMP will be trying to seize a number of properties, vehicles and cash permanently, alleging they are the proceeds of crime. Cocaine, 'date-rape' drug seized at Fort Mac home

Fort McMurray, AB - Two men have been charged in a bust that saw more than $750,000 in drugs seized from a home in Fort McMurray. The bust included large amounts of steroids, prescription pills and gamma-Hydroxybutyric acid (GHB), better known as the "date-rape" drug. Richard Cosman, 31, and Jer-omy Laporte, 30, are charged with eight counts each of possession of drugs for the purpose of trafficking, and one count each of possession of proceeds of crime over $5,000. RCMP say the Wood Buffalo detachment's Combined Forces Special Enforcement Unit executed a search warrant on Dec. 12 on a home on Killdeer Way, an area filled with large homes, many of which are for sale for $1 million or more. *Fallen Members / Membres tombés au champ d'honneur*Mountie was speeding without siren or emergency lights before fatal crash

Surrey, BC - Const. Adrian Oliver was speeding without his sirens or emergency lights activated at the time of his fatal head-on collision last month, according to an ongoing Surrey RCMP investigation. Oliver, whose funeral was attended by more than 2,000 RCMP officers and thousands of mourners, was trying to find a recently stolen pickup truck, according to the GPS and video data uncovered in the preliminary investigation. "In an effort to more clearly establish what may have been occurring just prior to this collision, the Surrey RCMP Criminal Collision Investigation Team, with independent, external oversight by the Vancouver police department, has conduct of the investigation," said Surrey's top Mountie Supt. Bill Fordy in a news release Friday evening. The RCMP's account matches up with aspects of what the badly shaken driver of the semi-truck that smashed into the 28-year-old constable's unmarked cruiser told The Sun last month. Harjeet Loty, who has been updated on the investigation according to the RCMP release, said in that interview that Oliver entered the intersection without his emergency lights or sirens activated early in the morning of Nov. 13. Loty said he saw an oncoming car signaling to make a right-hand turn at the same green light, but he said the car did not turn and the two vehicles collided. Oliver died in the crash, which left the car's front end a heap of burnt and twisted metal. […] Mike Hager (Vancouver Sun (

*National Security / Sécurité nationale*Supreme Court of Canada upholds anti-terror law

Undated - The Supreme Court today delivered a stinging defeat to Ottawa terrorist Momin Khawaja with a landmark ruling upholding the constitutionality of Canada's anti-terrorism law. In a unanimous decision authored by Chief Justice Beverley McLachlin, the high court firmly rejected Khawaja's constitutional challenge of his 2008 conviction for plotting with a group of British Islamist extremists that was planning to bomb London in 2004 and wage a wider jihad against the West. At issue was whether a key section the federal Anti-terrorism Act violates the constitutional right to freedom of expression. The so-called "motive clause" requires authorities to prove an individual's alleged terrorist actions were motivated by religious, ideological or political beliefs. Khawaja's legal team argued the clause produces a "chilling" effect on the expression of beliefs and opinions and thus violates the Charter guarantee to freedom of expression. The crucial question before the court was how much Charter protection should be given to expressions of violence and whether such conduct can be criminalized. In Friday's decision, it concludes that threats of violence are not constitutionally protected, which is consistent with its jurisprudence. The ruling ends Canada's first major post-911 terrorism prosecution that began in March 2004 when Khawaja was arrested by the RCMP at the department of Foreign Affairs, where he worked on contract as a computer specialist. Juneau said when the RCMP takes its boat out, officers never leave a cruiser parked at the marina -- a dead giveaway. Calls are made, tips are shared with fellow smugglers of the city and quite a ways to the east, even including Valleyfield, Que. […] The St. Lawrence River is the playing field -- dark and filled with islands, inlets, channels, culverts, ever-changing water levels and sand bars. *Serious & Organized Crime / Crimes graves et crime organisé*Lack of charges disappoints former N.S. orphanage resident

Halifax, NS - A former resident of the Nova Scotia Home for Colored Children says he is baffled as to why the RCMP and Halifax have decided not to lay criminal charges into allegations made by dozens of former residents regarding physical and sexual abuse at the hands of staff. Tony Smith, who spent over three years at the orphanage in the 1990s and was one of the first to speak out about allegations of abuse, tells CTV's Canada AM that even though years have passed since many of the alleged crimes took place, he had still hoped there would be justice. "I thought there was a reasonable chance of charges due to the overwhelming documentation of people who were eyewitnesses to these encounters," he said. "We knew full well going into the lawsuit -- a great percentage of us knew -- that we wouldn't be able to bring our perpetrators to trial because many were deceased. So it's very disappointing that no charges will be laid (against those who are alive)." A number of former residents of the orphanage have accused staff at the home of abusing them over a period of decades. More than 100 people are now a part of a bid to launch a class-action lawsuit against the home and the provincial government. Police in Nova Scotia were also looking into criminal charges. In March 2012, the RCMP and Halifax police began encouraging people to come forward with their allegations. 21 empty liquor bottles found in car, driver arrested

Beechville, NS - A Beechville woman is accused of impaired driving after RCMP say she was found in a car on Highway 101 with 21 empty liquor bottles in the trunk of the car. Staff Sgt. Scott Warnica said officers were called at approximately 8:30 p.m. on Sunday after another driver spotted a car fluctuating between 10 and 80 kilometres per hour on Highway 101. The car was eventually found in the passing lane underneath the overpass at Exit 2A, the Lower Sackville exit. Warnica said the car was jammed against a guardrail with the rear of the vehicle still on the highway. The 46-year-old female driver had to be carried to the police cruiser, said Warnica. He said she spent the night in custody, after refusing to take a breathalyzer test. La maison d'un trafiquant détruite par un incendie

Godmanchester, QC - Un violent incendie survenu tôt hier a rasé l'ex-résidence d'une tête dirigeante d'un réseau de contrebande démantelé en mars dernier en Montérégie. "Il est encore trop tôt pour confirmer s'il s'agit oui ou non d'un incendie criminel", a rapporté Christine Coulombe, porte-parole de la SQ. Selon ce que le Journal a appris, il s'agirait de l'ancienne résidence de Gary James Arnold. Cet homme a été arrêté en mars dernier dans le cadre du projet Hachoir, mené par la SQ et la GRC. Il était alors la tête dirigeante d'un réseau de contrebande de cigarettes et d'exportation de cannabis. La vaste opération avait permis de procéder à une vingtaine d'arrestations, dont M. Arnold, en plus de 22 perquisitions dans 10 municipalités. Feds stamp out role in medical pot delivery, igniting both fuming and praise

Ottawa - Ottawa's decision to snuff its role in dispensing medical marijuana has ignited a debate over how the move will impact public health and safety. A range of groups _ including those representing law enforcement officials, physicians and medical cannabis advocates _ were reacting Sunday after the federal health ministry announced it will stop producing and distributing medicinal pot in favour of opening the market to private companies. The current program has allowed anyone with a government permit to grow it themselves, including in their own homes. But the Conservatives argue that with 26,000 permits handed out over the past decade, the system has become unwieldy and resulted in "unintended consequences." [...] The government intends to implement changes by March 31, 2014 that will do away with the system of individual permits so that only companies meeting security requirements can grow and sell the drug. The move has drawn criticism from a number of sides, and not everyone against the changes supports the use of medical marijuana. Doctors represented by the Canadian Medical Association used harsh words to pan the move, arguing the government is abdicating its necessary role as regulator. [...] Reid said the decision does not put patients first, while leaving doctors to deal with a substance that has little clinical evidence to back its use. [...] Vancouver Police Chief Jim Chu, who heads the chiefs of police association, said the changes are "necessary to reduce the risk of abuse and exploitation" by criminals seeking to make a profit. Stephen Gamble, who heads the fire chiefs' association, noted one in 22 grow-ops catch fire, which is 24 times more frequent than the average home. [...] Patients who want to use marijuana as medical treatment after the changes come into effect will sign a medical document similar to a prescription, which they can then take to authorized vendors for purchase. *Youth / Jeunesse*Police dog handler brings stuffed toy dogs to sick kids

Saskatchewan - An RCMP dog handler is hoping to cheer up some sick kids in hospitals across the province by visiting them during the holidays and giving them each a stuffed toy police dog. Cpl. Sean Cleary is also planning to show youngsters, who are well enough to interact with a dog, a working police dog at hospitals that allow animals inside. As well, in some places he will show youngsters a puppy that was in the police dog training program. "My goal, if we're completely successful, is for the hour that we're there we give the kids some smiles and give them the opportunity to forget they're in hospital," Cleary told CBC's Morning Edition host Sheila Coles on Friday. Visits are set to begin on Monday. Cleary is currently based in Prince Albert. The project was inspired after he realized how fortunate he is that he has two healthy girls in his family, one aged 2, the other just 10 weeks old. He thought about all the other kids who were born with health issues and decided to do something beyond a donation to a foundation. He was able to get 120 RCMP toys — stuffed service dogs — at cost, through the RCMP heritage centre with support from the Canadian Police K-9 Association. Tricia Beaulieu, 25, of Sandy Bay First Nation, the organizer of the event, said vehicles will be parked on the Trans-Canada near Highway 16 to block traffic as part of the Idle No More protest. Beaulieu, a radio-station receptionist, said she's expecting 200 or more people for what's planned as a seven-hour blockade, beginning at 10 a.m. "Absolutely nothing" will go by them, she said. She's hoping the federal government takes notice. [...] The Idle No More movement is happening across Canada as a way to draw attention to what First Nations leaders believe are threats to their aboriginal land and treaty rights. A rally attracting more than 400 people has already been held at the legislative building. The RCMP are aware of the planned blockade, said RCMP spokesman Cpl. Miles Hiebert. He said the RCMP "will work to provide a peaceful and safe resolution." "... The RCMP respects the right of Canadians to participate in peaceful protest, and will work to ensure the safety of any participants involved in peaceful protest, as well as the safety of motorists using the roadways," said Hiebert, in an email Friday. Missing Women Commission of Inquiry / La Commission d'enquête sur les femmes disparues Inquiry report to be released more than a decade after Robert Pickton's arrest

Vancouver, BC - The closest thing Marilyn Renter has ever had to a trial for her step-daughter's death is the public inquiry into the failures that allowed a serial killer to target sex workers from Vancouver's Downtown Eastside. Robert Pickton was charged with murdering Cindy Feliks, who vanished in 1997 and whose DNA was found five years later on the former pig farmer's sprawling property in nearby Port Coquitlam, B.C. But once Pickton was convicted of killing six sex workers and sentenced to life in prison, prosecutors had little appetite for putting him back on trial for 20 additional murder charges involving Feliks and other women whose remains or DNA were found on the farm. "For a lot of us, there have only been six girls that have actually had justice done to them," Renter said in an interview. "We haven't had justice for our girls, and if it has to come in this forum, then so be it," she added, referring to the public inquiry. On Monday, Renter will find out whether her long wait for justice has been answered as Commissioner Wally Oppal releases a 1,448-page report outlining why Pickton wasn't caught sooner and what should be done to prevent similar failures in the future. [...] Renter blames the delay on police attitudes toward women, sex workers and drug addicts. She hopes Oppal's report can find a way to change that. "They've got to get rid of a lot of attitude," said Renter, who was living in Calgary when her step-daughter disappeared but moved to Rosedale, B.C., two years ago. [...] The inquiry heard that senior officers in Vancouver actively resisted considering the possibility that a serial killer was operating in their city, while RCMP investigators in Port Coquitlam were slow to seriously investigate Pickton. Oppal said the problems that plagued those investigations must be fixed, because just as Pickton wasn't Canada's first serial killer, he won't be the last. "Pickton isn't the sole problem _ there will be other serial killers," Oppal said in an interview in advance of the report's release. "Horrible tragedies have taken place here, and we need to learn from those tragedies. We have to come together as a community so that women are better protected." *Contract & Aboriginal Policing / Services de police contractuels et autochtones*RCMP ramping up enforcement against impaired driving

Newfoundland and Labrador - [...] Across the province, the RCMP has issued a warning that during December and early January officers will be conducting traffic stops and roadside checkpoints with the aim of preventing impaired driving and ensuring compliance with the Highway Traffic Act. Const. Sam Munden, a RCMP investigator, said impaired driving is definitely a problem, and because police want the holiday season to be a happy and festive time of the year, enforcement efforts are stepped up to try and lessen incidents of trauma and carnage. He said the festive season often involves families gathering to celebrate the holidays, and it's the time of year when co-workers come together for Christmas parties and people will host the ever-popular kitchen and mummering parties from Tibb's eve through to Old Christmas Day. Often, Munden says, these celebrations involve alcohol and the need to travel from one location to another. He said impaired driving is preventable, but unfortunately for most people, it only becomes an issue when it directly affects them, whether it means loss of a loved one in a crash or someone being severely injured. *"Depot" Division / Division Dépôt*Drinking for sobriety

Regina, SK - "Remember guys, the idea is to drink, so if I see you're not drinking enough, we might bump your drinks up. Got it?" Thus, with solemn nods and cheersing of red Solo cups, drinking in the name of education begins. We're here so police can practice Standardized Field Sobriety Tests (SFST) on subjects who have been drinking alcohol. Sitting in a small, nondescript room at the RCMP training depot, the six of us cradle our booze, making the kind of small talk one does when thrown into a room with strangers for the sole purpose of drinking. Const. Colin Stark, provincial SFST co-ordinator, asks about our drinking history so officers know how much liquor they can feed us to ensure we're buzzed, but still able to complete sobriety testing. As more drinks are served, our hands dive frequently into the bowls of chips on the table. An RCMP officer hovers, making sure we're keeping pace. It may be a bit of a party atmosphere, but we're here for a serious purpose - to help RCMP and city police officers from Regina and Saskatoon identify drunk drivers. Drinking and driving is, after all, the leading cause of fatal crashes in Saskatchewan. "If there's any question in anybody's mind about whether or not they should be driving, really, the question itself is their answer," Stark tells me later. "With the holiday season there's always a big push to make sure nobody's drinking and driving, but my one wish would be for everyone across Saskatchewan and Canada to have the same mindset for the other 11 months of the year." [...] A young RCMP officer is first to test me. "Follow the stimulus without moving your head," he directs, holding up a pink pen. "Do you understand?" [....] Const. Doug Boxall, a breath technician since 2006, later explains it's these eye tests that give the drunken people away. *International News / Actualités internationales*EU countries dominate new list affecting refugee claims in Canada

Ottawa, ON - People from 27 generally safe countries who seek refugee status in Canada will now have their cases fast-tracked. Immigration Minister Jason Kenney has produced a list of countries which the government feels are unlikely to produce true refugees because they generally respect the rule of law and have other rights safeguards. He says the list will help separate real from bogus refugee claims. The list includes 25 European Union members as well as Croatia and the United States and could be expanded. Refugee claimants from those countries will have their claims processed within 30-45 days and will lose the right to certain avenues of appeal if they are turned down. If their application is rejected, they will be able to go to the Federal Court but won't get an automatic stay of deportation in the meantime. They also can't apply for a work permit until their claim has been finalized. The list was drawn up by examining which countries produce the highest rates of failed claimants and whether they can be considered legitimate sources of refugees. The government looked at whether the countries have an independent judiciary, civil society organizations and recognition of basic democratic rights and freedoms. "Designating countries is an important step towards a faster and fairer asylum system," Kenney said. *Policing News / Actualités policières*Officer stomped on teen's head: Mountie

Edmonton, AB - An RCMP officer told a disciplinary hearing Friday that she saw an Edmonton police officer stomp on the head of a teenage suspect following a highway chase in 2008. "There were two stomps and then he steps over (him)," RCMP Const. Nicole Viergutz testified. "He used his head as a stepping-stone." Edmonton police Const. Glenn Thursby is facing a disciplinary charge of unlawful or unnecessary exercise of authority. The charge stems from the aftermath of a lengthy, late-night pursuit of a stolen pickup truck on Aug. 19, 2008. [...] Another RCMP officer, Const. Melissa Lee, offered a similar version of events when she testified at the hearing on Monday. Viergutz said the two suspects were eventually taken to the Strathcona County RCMP detachment for processing, when she and Lee discussed what they had seen. She said she then went to the office of her watch commander, Sgt. Darren Kirk, to tell him what happened. Kirk, however, told the hearing later that he had no visit from Viergutz. Instead, he said he overheard a brief conversation about the incident from people talking somewhere outside his office. Drug bust involves doctor, Olympian, school principal

Nova Scotia - A Nova Scotia doctor who police say has been selling prescriptions for medical marijuana, an Olympic paddler and an elementary school principal were involved in a large-scale marijuana bust Thursday in the Halifax area. Friday morning, officers unveiled about 21 kilograms of dried and bagged weed, stacks of cash totalling over $100,000, four long guns and five nondescript vehicles that were part of the raids. They also named 28 of the 29 people arrested, who they say were involved in a drug ring. [...] "An additional arrest is pending," RCMP Chief Supt. Brian Brennan said Friday. [...] The doctor has not been named and, so far, faces no charges. However, the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Nova Scotia announced Friday that it had suspended the licence of Dr. Dinesh Sinha of Halifax."Dr. Sinha came to the attention of the college as a result of work done by the RCMP," college CEO and registrar Dr. Gus Grant said Friday. Officers contacted the college Thursday. Early Friday morning, a college committee held an emergency meeting and pulled Sinha's licence. [...] The seizures and arrests involved RCMP officers, Halifax Regional Police and officers from the Truro Police Service brought in for extra manpower. Police said the sweep was the result of an 11-month investigation, which also netted 2,207 marijuana plants and about $250,000 worth of marijuana production equipment. [...] "This operation focused on a group of criminals operating together in an organized manner, who engaged in cultivating and trafficking marijuana within the Halifax Regional Municipality," said RCMP Staff Sgt. Roddie Macdonald. At some of the homes that were searched, "residents did have a licence to raise medical marijuana," he said. "However, the individuals arrested were accused of illegally selling that marijuana." [...]RCMP will be trying to seize a number of properties, vehicles and cash permanently, alleging they are the proceeds of crime. Cocaine, 'date-rape' drug seized at Fort Mac home

Fort McMurray, AB - Two men have been charged in a bust that saw more than $750,000 in drugs seized from a home in Fort McMurray. The bust included large amounts of steroids, prescription pills and gamma-Hydroxybutyric acid (GHB), better known as the "date-rape" drug. Richard Cosman, 31, and Jer-omy Laporte, 30, are charged with eight counts each of possession of drugs for the purpose of trafficking, and one count each of possession of proceeds of crime over $5,000. RCMP say the Wood Buffalo detachment's Combined Forces Special Enforcement

Unit executed a search warrant on Dec. 12 on a home on Killdeer Way, an area filled with large homes, many of which are for sale for $1 million or more. […] (Edmonton Journal A4) Saturday

Mountie was speeding without siren or emergency lights before fatal crash

Surrey, BC - Const. Adrian Oliver was speeding without his sirens or emergency lights activated at the time of his fatal head-on collision last month, according to an ongoing Surrey RCMP investigation. Oliver, whose funeral was attended by more than 2,000 RCMP officers and thousands of mourners, was trying to find a recently stolen pickup truck, according to the GPS and video data uncovered in the preliminary investigation. "In an effort to more clearly establish what may have been occurring just prior to this collision, the Surrey RCMP Criminal Collision Investigation Team, with independent, external oversight by the Vancouver police department, has conduct of the investigation," said Surrey's top Mountie Supt. Bill Fordy in a news release Friday evening. The RCMP's account matches up with aspects of what the badly shaken driver of the semi-truck that smashed into the 28-year-old constable's unmarked cruiser told The Sun last month. Harjeet Loty, who has been updated on the investigation according to the RCMP release, said in that interview that Oliver entered the intersection without his emergency lights or sirens activated early in the morning of Nov. 13. Loty said he saw an oncoming car signaling to make a right-hand turn at the same green light, but he said the car did not turn and the two vehicles collided. Oliver died in the crash, which left the car's front end a heap of burnt and twisted metal. Supreme Court of Canada upholds anti-terror law

Undated - The Supreme Court today delivered a stinging defeat to Ottawa terrorist Momin Khawaja with a landmark ruling upholding the constitutionality of Canada's anti-terrorism law. In a unanimous decision authored by Chief Justice Beverley McLachlin, the high court firmly rejected Khawaja's constitutional challenge of his 2008 conviction for plotting with a group of British Islamist extremists that was planning to bomb London in 2004 and wage a wider jihad against the West. At issue was whether a key section the federal Anti-terrorism Act violates the constitutional right to freedom of expression. The so-called "motive clause" requires authorities to prove an individual's alleged terrorist actions were motivated by religious, ideological or political beliefs. Khawaja's legal team argued the clause produces a "chilling" effect on the expression of beliefs and opinions and thus violates the Charter guarantee to freedom of expression. The crucial question before the court was how much Charter protection should be given to expressions of violence and whether such conduct can be criminalized. In Friday's decision, it concludes that threats of violence are not constitutionally protected, which is consistent with its jurisprudence. The ruling ends Canada's first major post-911 terrorism prosecution that began in March 2004 when Khawaja was arrested by the RCMP at the department of Foreign Affairs, where he worked on contract as a computer specialist. Ian Macleod (VancouverSun.Com) Extensive Coverage 50+ Related News Articles

Awash in contraband

Cornwall, ON - The long ear of the law combs the Cornwall shoreline. Every night, RCMP-led officers stand in the darkness at places suggested by tipsters and complainants, listening for that familiar, distant sound. The quiet snarl of a buzzing motorboat on the move. [...] "It is a game of cat and mouse," said Const. Jean Juneau of the Combined Forces Special Enforcement Unit. The game is played across the greater Cornwall area -- from Hwy. 401 south through Akwesasne Mohawk Territory into New York, slightly west on boating." [...] The officers do their best to cover as much ground as possible -- and cover their tracks. Juneau said when the RCMP takes its boat out, officers never leave a cruiser parked at the marina -- a dead giveaway. Calls are made, tips are shared with fellow smugglers of the city and quite a ways to the east, even including Valleyfield, Que. [...] The St. Lawrence River is the playing field -- dark and filled with islands, inlets, channels, culverts, ever-changing water levels and sand bars. Cops have teamed up with many partners due to the jurisdictional nightmare of policing the area. The lead police force on any given mission varies depending on the location. Lack of charges disappoints former N.S. orphanage resident

Halifax, NS - A former resident of the Nova Scotia Home for Colored Children says he is baffled as to why the RCMP and Halifax have decided not to lay criminal charges into allegations made by dozens of former residents regarding physical and sexual abuse at the hands of staff. Tony Smith, who spent over three years at the orphanage in the 1990s and was one of the first to speak out about allegations of abuse, tells CTV's Canada AM that even though years have passed since many of the alleged crimes took place, he had still hoped there would be justice. "I thought there was a reasonable chance of charges due to the overwhelming documentation of people who were eyewitnesses to these encounters," he said. "We knew full well going into the lawsuit -- a great percentage of us knew -- that we wouldn't be able to bring our perpetrators to trial because many were deceased. So it's very disappointing that no charges will be laid (against those who are alive)." A number of former residents of the orphanage have accused staff at the home of abusing them over a period of decades. More than 100 people are now a part of a bid to launch a class-action lawsuit against the home and the provincial government. Police in Nova Scotia were also looking into criminal charges. In March 2012, the RCMP and Halifax police began encouraging people to come forward with their allegations. [...] (ctv.ca)

21 empty liquor bottles found in car, driver arrested

Beechville, NS - A Beechville woman is accused of impaired driving after RCMP say she was found in a car on Highway 101 with 21 empty liquor bottles in the trunk of the car. Staff Sgt. Scott Warnica said officers were called at approximately 8:30 p.m. on Sunday after another driver spotted a car fluctuating between 10 and 80 kilometres per hour on Highway 101. The car was eventually found in the passing lane underneath the overpass at Exit 2A, the Lower Sackville exit. Warnica said the car was jammed against a guardrail with the rear of the vehicle still on the highway. The 46-year-old female driver had to be carried to the police cruiser, said Warnica. He said she spent the night in custody, after refusing to take a breathalyzer test. (cbc.ca) Monday

Feds stamp out role in medical pot delivery, igniting both fuming and praise

Ottawa - Ottawa's decision to snuff its role in dispensing medical marijuana has ignited a debate over how the move will impact public health and safety. A range of groups _ including those representing law enforcement officials, physicians and medical cannabis advocates _ were reacting Sunday after the federal health ministry announced it will stop producing and distributing medicinal pot in favour of opening the market to private companies. The current program has allowed anyone with a government permit to grow it themselves, including in their own homes. But the Conservatives argue that with 26,000 permits handed out over the past decade, the system has become unwieldy and resulted in "unintended consequences." [...] The government intends to implement changes by March 31, 2014 that will do away with the system of individual permits so that only companies meeting security requirements can grow and sell the drug. The move has drawn criticism from a number of sides, and not everyone against the changes supports the use of medical marijuana. Doctors represented by the Canadian Medical Association used harsh words to pan the move, arguing the government is abdicating its necessary role as regulator. [...] Reid said the decision does not put patients first, while leaving doctors to deal with a substance that has little clinical evidence to back its use. [...] Vancouver Police Chief Jim Chu, who heads the chiefs of police association, said the changes are "necessary to reduce the risk of abuse and exploitation" by criminals seeking to make a profit. Stephen Gamble, who heads the fire chiefs' association, noted one in 22 grow-ops catch fire, which is 24 times more frequent than the average home. [...] Patients who want to use marijuana as medical treatment after the changes come into effect will sign a medical document similar to a prescription, which they can then take to authorized vendors for purchase. (Canadian Press) Extensive Coverage 10+ Related News Articles Sunday

As well, in some places he will show youngsters a puppy that was in the police dog training program. Missing Women Commission of Inquiry / La Commission d'enquête sur les femmes disparues

Inquiry report to be released more than a decade after Robert Pickton's arrest

Vancouver, BC - The closest thing Marilyn Renter has ever had to a trial for her step-daughter's death is the public inquiry into the failures that allowed a serial killer to target sex workers from Vancouver's Downtown Eastside. Robert Pickton was charged with murdering Cindy Feliks, who vanished in 1997 and whose DNA was found five years later on the former pig farmer's sprawling property in nearby Port Coquitlam, B.C. But once Pickton was convicted of killing six sex workers and sentenced to life in prison, prosecutors had little appetite for putting him back on trial for 20 additional murder charges involving Feliks and other women whose remains or DNA were found on the farm. "For a lot of us, there have only been six girls that have actually had justice done to them," Renter said in an interview. "We haven't had justice for our girls, and if it has to come in this forum, then so be it," she added, referring to the public inquiry. On Monday, Renter will find out whether her long wait for justice has been answered as Commissioner Wally Oppal releases a 1,448-page report outlining why Pickton wasn't caught sooner and what should be done to prevent similar failures in the future. […] Renter blames the delay on police attitudes toward women, sex workers and drug addicts. She hopes Oppal's report can find a way to change that. "They've got to get rid of a lot of attitude," said Renter, who was living in Calgary when her step-daughter disappeared but moved to Rosedale, B.C., two years ago. […] The inquiry heard that senior officers in Vancouver actively resisted considering the possibility that a serial killer was operating in their city, while RCMP investigators in Port Coquitlam were slow to seriously investigate Pickton. Oppal said the problems that plagued those investigations must be fixed, because just as Pickton wasn't Canada's first serial killer, he won't be the last. "Pickton isn't the sole problem _ there will be other serial killers," Oppal said in an interview in advance of the report's release. "Horrible tragedies have taken place here, and we need to learn from those tragedies. We have to come together as a community so that women are better protected." RCMP ramping up enforcement against impaired driving

Newfoundland and Labrador - […] Across the province, the RCMP has issued a warning that during December and early January officers will be conducting traffic stops and roadside checkpoints with the aim of preventing impaired driving and ensuring compliance with the Highway Traffic Act. Const. Sam Munden, a RCMP investigator, said impaired driving is definitely a problem, and because police want the holiday season to be a happy and festive time of the year, enforcement efforts are stepped up to try and lessen incidents of trauma and carnage. He said the festive season often involves families gathering to celebrate the holidays, and it's the time of year when co-workers come together for Christmas parties and people will host the ever-popular kitchen and mummering parties from Tibb's eve through to Old Christmas Day. Often, Munden says, these celebrations involve alcohol and the need to travel from one location to another. Drinking for sobriety

Regina, SK - "Remember guys, the idea is to drink, so if I see you're not drinking enough, we might bump your drinks up. Got it?" Thus, with solemn nods and cheersing of red Solo cups, drinking in the name of education begins. We're here so police can practice Standardized Field Sobriety Tests (SFST) on subjects who have been drinking alcohol. Sitting in a small, nondescript room at the RCMP training depot, the six of us cradle our booze, making the kind of small talk one does when thrown into a room with strangers for the sole purpose of drinking. Const. Colin Stark, provincial SFST co-ordinator, asks about our drinking history so officers know how much liquor they can feed us to ensure we're buzzed, but still able to complete sobriety testing. As more drinks are served, our hands dive frequently into the bowls of chips on the table. An RCMP officer hovers, making sure we're keeping pace. It may be a bit of a party atmosphere, but we're here for a serious purpose - to help RCMP and city police officers from Regina and Saskatoon identify drunk drivers. Drinking and driving is, after all, the leading cause of fatal crashes in Saskatchewan. "If there's any question in anybody's mind about whether or not they should be driving, really, the question itself is their answer," Stark tells me later. "With the holiday season there's always a big push to make sure nobody's drinking and driving, but my one wish would be for everyone across Saskatchewan and Canada to have the same mindset for the other 11 months of the year." [...] A young RCMP officer is first to test me. "Follow the stimulus without moving your head," he directs, holding up a pink pen. "Do you understand?" [....] Const. Doug Boxall, a breath technician since 2006, later explains it's these eye tests that give the drunken people away. EU countries dominate new list affecting refugee claims in Canada

Ottawa, ON - People from 27 generally safe countries who seek refugee status in Canada will now have their cases fast-tracked. Immigration Minister Jason Kenney has produced a list of countries which the government feels are unlikely to produce true refugees because they generally respect the rule of law and have other rights safeguards. He says the list will help separate real from bogus refugee claims. The list includes 25 European Union members as well as Croatia and the United States and could be expanded. Refugee claimants from those countries will have their claims processed within 30-45 days and will lose the right to certain avenues of appeal if they are turned down. If their application is rejected, they will be able to go to the Federal Court but won't get an automatic stay of deportation in the meantime. They also can't apply for a work permit until their claim has been finalized. The list was drawn up by examining which countries produce the highest rates of failed claimants and whether they can be considered legitimate sources of refugees. The government looked at whether the countries have an independent judiciary, civil society organizations and recognition of basic democratic rights and freedoms. "Designating countries is an important step towards a faster and fairer asylum system," Kenney said. [...] Stephanie Levitz (GlobalNews.ca)

Vernon gang linked to seven slayings

Vernon, BC - They were convicted in three drug-related slayings, but police suspect they were also involved in four other murders. In November, five members or associates of the Greeks gang in Vernon were found guilty of three grisly deaths following the longest criminal jury trial in B.C. history. But what the jury didn't hear was the full extent of their crimes, police say. During the course of a lengthy probe, an RCMP task force uncovered evidence of four other murders, making a total of seven murders in 11 months, that they believe are also linked to the Vernon gang. When asked whether he was certain the gang was to blame for the four additional homicides, RCMP Insp. Al Haslett, the lead investigator in the case, said there was "no doubt about it." Jeffrey Drake, the first of the seven victims, was involved in the drug trade and was murdered in the summer of 2004 as a result of a drug ripoff, Haslett said. Drake was beaten to death and the gang disposed of his body down an embankment by Okanagan Lake, said Haslett. A second victim, Belinda Scott, was a girlfriend of Ron Thom, who was shot to death in November 2004, one of the three murders dealt with at trial. [...] Robert Hewison was set up by the gang in March 2005, lured out of a nightclub and then shot. [...] Also slain in March 2005 was Stanley Polak, who was involved in the drug trade, not working for the Greeks but definitely buying drugs from them, said Haslett. [...] The task force, comprising at one point 50 officers, was launched in September 2005. By that time it was common knowledge in Vernon who the Greeks were, said Haslett. "You walk up to any civilian on the streets, they would have told you about the Greeks, their drug activities. There was no secret that they were responsible for these murders. And it was no secret as to where they hung out." But people were fearful of the "vicious" drug organization, which was flooding the streets with crack cocaine and heroin and, in that culture, people were reluctant to come forward as witnesses, he said. Police focused on "the office" - a gang hangout where they knew a number of the beatings and murders had occurred. "We started gathering evidence around there through different search warrants and surveillance ... ," said Haslett. "From there on, we started approaching witnesses and getting information as to what they were up to, in a timely fashion, as well as a history of all these murders." Suspect in traffic-stop shooting faces 31 charges

Redwater, AB - Police on Wednesday laid charges against a 22-year-old Edmonton man who allegedly shot at police during a traffic stop Sunday. Officers pulled over a Toyota 4Runner Sunday night as it drove east on 100th Avenue near 159th Street. Seconds after the SUV pulled over, the driver got out and shot at officers. No officers or bystanders were injured. Police returned fire, shattering the vehicle's back window as it sped away. A tip led police to the abandoned SUV around 4 a.m. Monday. Police then followed a chain of evidence to Redwater Tuesday, where a man had barricaded himself in a motel room. The suspect fired shots, and the RCMP Emergency Response Team was deployed. After a seven-hour standoff, a man was taken into custody around 2: 30 p.m. No one was injured in the incident. Patrick Young, 22, has been charged with 31 criminal charges including four charges of aggravated assault on a police officer, flight from a peace officer and numerous firearms charges. Police also executed 20 criminal warrants for Young, including escaping lawful custody. Additional charges are pending from the Redwater RCMP, stemming from Tuesday's standoff. Police watchdog sees himself as 'agent of change'

Vancouver, BC - In his glass-walled office 12 floors above central Surrey, Richard Rosenthal grins at a framed picture of the man that triggered deep reforms in the Los Angeles Police Department. It's a mug shot of corrupt LAPD cop Rafael Pérez, glaring menacingly at the camera. In the 1990s, Rosenthal - the former Californian prosecutor hired to police the police in B.C. - learned that Pérez wasn't just a single bad apple and convinced him to testify for prosecutors. Pérez's evidence exposed a rotten core in the force, leading to one of the biggest police corruption scandals in U.S. history. The "Rampart Scandal" showed LAPD gang cops had become worse than the criminals they policed, planting guns and dope on street dealers, covering up "bad" shootings, stealing cocaine from evidence lockers, even forming ties with notorious L.A. gangster and rap boss Suge Knight. [...] Grinning at the memories, Rosenthal points at the prominently placed Pérez mug shot and says: "That was the start of my career, in police oversight." Since taking their oaths this fall in front of Zofia Cisowski - the mother of fatally Tasered Polish immigrant Robert Dziekanski - Rosenthal and his staff of civilian investigators have undertaken 11 investigations, at last count, and "closed out" two cases. The civilian force's mission is to conduct fair, transparent and timely investigations of police-involved incidents throughout B.C., in which someone has died or suffered serious harm. [...] Budgeted for about $10 million per year, Rosenthal says his office could expect to handle 100 or more cases annually. In a recent in-depth interview with The Province, he discussed his early career and formative cases, and his plans for police oversight in B.C. After spending 15 years in the L.A. district attorney's office prosecuting cases involving financial crime and public corruption, Rosenthal transitioned into police oversight after the Rampart case. He established Portland's police oversight agency and became Denver's first independent monitor over that city's police and sheriff departments. As Rosenthal discusses his career, it becomes clear that, while efficient clearing of each case is his guiding principle, tackling systemic problems uncovered in egregious cases is his mark of success, and currency within the governments for which he works. [...] As a young lawyer in California, he say, he quickly gravitated toward white-collar crime and "holding the most powerful to account," while "everyone else wanted to do blood and guts." "One man with a brief case can steal more than 100 men with guns," he says, adding that the most difficult prosecutions are against the rich and powerful, because they're often highly respected, well-liked, usually sociopathic and can hire the best legal defence money can buy. Police are taking 'more cautious approach to media'

New Brunswick - Violence both old and new reared its ugly head on more than one occasion over the past 12 months in the Fredericton area. From recent incidents to those that occurred many years ago, four stories dominated headlines in 2012. The most recent involves the suspicious death of Alicia Dawn Boone. Police have yet to determine the cause of death. The 26-year-old's body was found Nov. 6 along the Killarney Road behind community mailboxes. Originally from Nackawic, Boone had been living in Fredericton. Investigators are still waiting for complete autopsy results on Boone, who was seven months pregnant at the time of her death. No other information has been released by the RCMP. The lack of details has been frustrating for residents and the media alike. In a statement earlier this month, police said it was important for people to realize that investigators can only make progress as quick as evidence or information is received. "We understand that not knowing all the circumstances surrounding her death - since this has been such a public case - is causing concern in the community and people are curious and really want to know what happened to her," Cpl. Chantal Farrah said in a late November interview. "I can tell you that we want to determine that just as much, especially because we want to give answers to the family." Michael Boudreau, a St. Thomas University criminology and criminal justice professor, said careful dispersal of information by police is a trend that will likely continue well beyond the Boone investigation. "Police forces - municipal and RCMP - are spending more time on relations and media training for the officers," he said. "The idea of a police spokesperson who deals solely with the media is a relatively new thing. "We think this has been happening all the time, but it really hasn't. It's the police recognition that the media can be their friend but can also be a hindrance to them." Boudreau said police are taking a more cautious approach to the media and, in the process, are trying to script situations more - especially at news conferences. He said investigators are trying to solve the case outside the public eye. *Employees / Employés*Pension shortfall worse than Ottawa admits

Undated - Recent reforms notwithstanding, the generous pension plans for federal employees - not to mention the one for MPs - are in much worse shape than Ottawa admits, says a new study from the C.D. Howe Institute. The same kind of collapse of investment returns that set back the retirement dreams of countless Canadians in the private sector has also hit the government plans, the analysis notes. But there are two key differences. One is that the feds continue to massively understate the unfunded liability of meeting lavish retirement promises to public servants, military personnel, RCMP and, of course, MPs. The other is that, no matter how badly the total is underestimated, taxpayers - "largely the same people who are now postponing and scaling back their own retirement expectations" - will be on the hook for the difference. This is the Howe Institute's second sobering tilt at federal pensions in recent weeks. Just over a month ago, it published an analysis documenting the richness of several different federal plans compared with typical private-sector plans. Among other things, it pointed out that employees enrolled in federal pension plans can get tax breaks on much larger annual contributions than the rest of us are allowed, and that the employer's contribution is far larger than in private-sector plans. Now the author, Howe president William Robson, notes that while Ottawa acknowledges an unfunded liability of $148.9 billion - more than a quarter of the reported federal debt and about $17,000 per Canadian family - this is based on assumptions of what may be unrealistically high returns. His own calculations, based on cur-ent market returns, put the amount at almost $267 billion at the end of 2011-2012. "That is almost $118 billion more than reported - nearly $31,000 per family of four," he wrote. Nor is this understating of the liability a new thing tied specifically to the lousy market returns of the last four or five years. "This startling difference between the reported and fair-value tallies of Ottawa's unfunded pension liability has been growing for more than a decade," he notes.[…] But a key is for Ottawa to start recording its unfunded liabilities more honestly - based on actual returns, not pie-in-the-sky hopes. Private plans aren't allowed this cop-out to paint a falsely rosy picture, and the rules shouldn't treat government any differently. Don Cayo (VancouverSun.Com (http://www.infomedia.gc.ca/rcmp-grc/articles/unrestricted/2012/12/rcm201212252792414_1544.htm), Vancouver Sun D7)Thursday

*Editorials, Columns & Opinions / Éditoriaux, chroniques et opinions*Regional police neededEditorial - The controversy dogging the Missing Women's Inquiry shouldn't blind us to the obvious: Change is desperately needed in the way we police and otherwise provide services for the poorest and most marginalized in our society. Commissioner Wally Oppal's report into the horrific Robert Pickton killings contains several sensible recommendations, including the need for a Lower Mainland regional police force. It's a proposal that's been batted around ever since the Clifford Olson serial murders in the early 1980s. It's high time this change was implanted. The fracturing of police efforts in our region has gone on far too long, with a patchwork of RCMP and municipal police forces that don't seem to communicate well with each other. "We are the only major city in Canada without a regionalized police force," Oppal, who once served on the B.C. Court of Appeal, told The Canadian Press. Other sensible suggestions contained in the mammoth document include those to protect women in the sex trade, to improve links between the police and native people - and to clean up the notorious Downtown Eastside. As the former B.C. attorney-general makes clear, the police may have made "blatant errors." But they were not solely to blame for the failure to halt the former Coquitlam pig farmer's murder spree in timely fashion. There were overarching issues ranging from poverty to drug addiction that made Pickton's victims especially vulnerable. Our political leaders must now do everything in their power to make sure that next evil serial killer that comes along is caught as early as humanly possible. Oppal's report offers them a reasonable way forward, with the establishment of a regional police force as a good start. Guardian angel, heroic cops and a life saved

Chilliwack, BC - A 9-1-1 call from an 18-year-old Chilliwack woman trapped in a vehicle that's flipped on its roof in a ditch and filling fast with water.[…] So the officer starts punching it with his bare fist, and keeps on punching until it breaks. He then crawls inside the water-filled car and pulls the young girl to safety, handing her off to another officer outside who swims her to the edge of the ditch. […] Found in the back of the Hyundai after it was pulled from the water — a guardian angel ornament, which the young girl hadn't known was there. It now has a prominent — and no doubt permanent — place on the family Christmas tree. Robert Freeman This article - including all rights associated to it - belongs to Progress.Com*. 'Coolest cop' wants everyday positive gestures by police recognized

Pincher Creek, Alta. - He's been called Canada's coolest cop and has become somewhat of a celebrity in his southern Alberta community, but Const. Doug Sokoloski insists his story is just one example of the many positive gestures made by Mounties on the job every day. The 49-year-old RCMP officer who lives in Pincher Creek, Alta., shot into the national spotlight after an Internet video showed him rocking the drums during an impromptu jam session with a group of campers he came across on a patrol. […] "It's a good news story," Sokoloski tells The Canadian Press. "I'm not going to end up in a big band or gain any popularity or riches out of it but if it enhances the image of policing and of the RCMP, and it makes our job easier to do, you know, then go with it." Sokoloski, who primarily deals with traffic incidents and acts as a spokesman for the Mounties in Pincher Creek, believes the small positive acts carried out by officers on a daily basis go unnoticed far too often. "We get chastised for the few bad things we do, but every day there's thousands of good things done by police officers in our communities," he says. […] The video of Sokoloski rocking out in the woods has since garnered more than 900,000 views on YouTube. […] (Canadian Press Newswire) Extensive Media Coverage 10+ News Articles Wednesday

[...] Budgeted for about $10 million per year, Rosenthal says his office could expect to handle 100 or more cases annually. In a recent in-depth interview with The Province, he discussed his early career and formative cases, and his plans for police oversight in B.C. After spending 15 years in the L.A. district attorney's office prosecuting cases involving financial crime and public corruption, Rosenthal transitioned into police oversight after the Rampart case. He established Portland's police oversight agency and became Denver's first independent monitor over that city's police and sheriff departments. As Rosenthal discusses his career, it becomes clear that, while efficient clearing of each case is his guiding principle, tackling systemic problems uncovered in egregious cases is his mark of success, and currency within the governments for which he works. [...] As a young lawyer in California, he say, he quickly gravitated toward white-collar crime and "holding the most powerful to account," while "everyone else wanted to do blood and guts." "One man with a brief case can steal more than 100 men with guns," he says, adding that the most difficult prosecutions are against the rich and powerful, because they're often highly respected, well-liked, usually sociopathic and can hire the best legal defence money can buy. Police are taking 'more cautious approach to media'

New Brunswick - Violence both old and new reared its ugly head on more than one occasion over the past 12 months in the Fredericton area. From recent incidents to those that occurred many years ago, four stories dominated headlines in 2012. The most recent involves the suspicious death of Alicia Dawn Boone. Police have yet to determine the cause of death. The 26-year-old's body was found Nov. 6 along the Killarney Road behind community mailboxes. Originally from Nackawic, Boone had been living in Fredericton. Investigators are still waiting for complete autopsy results on Boone, who was seven months pregnant at the time of her death. No other information has been released by the RCMP. The lack of details has been frustrating for residents and the media alike. In a statement earlier this month, police said it was important for people to realize that investigators can only make progress as quick as evidence or information is received. "We understand that not knowing all the circumstances surrounding her death - since this has been such a public case - is causing concern in the community and people are curious and really want to know what happened to her," Cpl. Chantal Farrah said in a late November interview. "I can tell you that we want to determine that just as much, especially because we want to give answers to the family." Michael Boudreau, a St. Thomas University criminology and criminal justice professor, said careful dispersal of information by police is a trend that will likely continue well beyond the Boone investigation. "Police forces - municipal and RCMP - are spending more time on relations and media training for the officers," he said. "The idea of a police spokesperson who deals solely with the media is a relatively new thing. "We think this has been happening all the time, but it really hasn't. It's the police recognition that the media can be their friend but can also be a hindrance to them." Boudreau said police are taking a more cautious approach to the media and, in the process, are trying to script situations more - especially at news conferences. He said investigators are trying to solve the case outside the public eye. [...] Michael Staples (Fredericton Daily Gleaner A3) Wednesday

Pension shortfall worse than Ottawa admits

Undated - Recent reforms notwithstanding, the generous pension plans for federal employees - not to mention the one for MPs - are in much worse shape than Ottawa admits, says a new study from the C.D. Howe Institute. The same kind of collapse of investment returns that set back the retirement dreams of countless Canadians in the private sector has also hit the government plans, the analysis notes. But there are two key differences. One is that the feds continue to massively understate the unfunded liability of meeting lavish retirement promises to public servants, military personnel, RCMP and, of course, MPs. The other is that, no matter how badly the total is underestimated, taxpayers - "largely the same people who are now postponing and scaling back their own retirement expectations" - will be on the hook for the difference. This is the Howe

Institute's second sobering tilt at federal pensions in recent weeks. Just over a month ago, it published an analysis documenting the richness of several different federal plans compared with typical private-sector plans. Among other things, it pointed out that employees enrolled in federal pension plans can get tax breaks on much larger annual contributions than the rest of us are allowed, and that the employer's contribution is far larger than in private-sector plans. Now the author, Howe president William Robson, notes that while Ottawa acknowledges an unfunded liability of $148.9 billion - more than a quarter of the reported federal debt and about $17,000 per Canadian family - this is based on assumptions of what may be unrealistically high returns. His own calculations, based on cur-ent market returns, put the amount at almost $267 billion at the end of 2011-2012. "That is almost $118 billion more than reported - nearly $31,000 per family of four," he wrote. Nor is this understating of the liability a new thing tied specifically to the lousy market returns of the last four or five years. "This startling difference between the reported and fair-value tallies of Ottawa's unfunded pension liability has been growing for more than a decade," he notes.[...] But a key is for Ottawa to start recording its unfunded liabilities more honestly - based on actual returns, not pie-in-the-sky hopes. Private plans aren't allowed this cop-out to paint a falsely rosy picture, and the rules shouldn't treat government any differently. Don Cayo (VancouverSun.Com, Vancouver Sun D7)Thursday

Regional police needed

Editorial - The controversy dogging the Missing Women's Inquiry shouldn't blind us to the obvious: Change is desperately needed in the way we police and otherwise provide services for the poorest and most marginalized in our society. Commissioner Wally Oppal's report into the horrific Robert Pickton killings contains several sensible recommendations, including the need for a Lower Mainland regional police force. It's a proposal that's been batted around ever since the Clifford Olson serial murders in the early 1980s. It's high time this change was implanted. The fracturing of police efforts in our region has gone on far too long, with a patchwork of RCMP and municipal police forces that don't seem to communicate well with each other. "We are the only major city in Canada without a regionalized police force," Oppal, who once served on the B.C. Court of Appeal, told The Canadian Press. Other sensible suggestions contained in the mammoth document include those to protect women in the sex trade, to improve links between the police and native people - and to clean up the notorious Downtown Eastside. As the former B.C. attorney-general makes clear, the police may have made "blatant errors." But they were not solely to blame for the failure to halt the former Coquitlam pig farmer's murder spree in timely fashion. There were overarching issues ranging from poverty to drug addiction that made Pickton's victims especially vulnerable. Our political leaders must now do everything in their power to make sure that next evil serial killer that comes along is caught as early as humanly possible. Oppal's report offers them a reasonable way forward, with the establishment of a regional police force as a good start. (Calgary Herald A12) Thursday

Red Deer, AB - An RCMP officer in Red Deer was allegedly punched and kicked in the face early Friday by a drunk man who wouldn't leave a restaurant. RCMP were called to Original Joe's because an intoxicated man would not leave. Police say they arrested him for causing a disturbance but he resisted arrest and hit the officer. The officer was treated and released from hospital. The man was taken into custody and has been charged with assaulting a police officer causing bodily harm, resisting a police officer and causing a disturbance. Robert Stuart Fleming, 58, is scheduled to appear Feb. 12 in Red Deer court. RCMP recruiting student troops

St. Albert, AB - Area youth interested in law enforcement can get a career crash course this spring with the St. Albert RCMP Youth Academy. "It really gives them a true feel for if they want to go into this career, what it's all about," said St. Albert RCMP Cpl. Laurel Kading. During spring break, students will camp out at Bellerose Composite High School and live like an RCMP recruit going through the national training academy – or depot – in Regina. Serious & Organized Crime / Crimes graves et crime organisé'You can't erase the images'

Surrey, BC - To a young teenager's eyes, the invitation from an online male suitor seems relatively harmless at first: Perhaps you'd like to cuddle, talk, play games? Five minutes into the chat, the 27-year-old from the Metro Vancouver area asks if she has a "BF." He then casually mentions porn. I'm 13 years old, she reminds the man. She posts a blushing smiley-face emoticon. Ten more minutes in, she clicks open a digital image he's just sent her way. The photo is not his face, but another body part, standing at attention. It scores the man a rendezvous, but not with the teenybopper he imagined. "It's probably the most meaningful work I can do in the force," says the blonde RCMP constable and mother of two, who was the man's actual chat partner. She sends officers knocking at the man's door, and he is later convicted of luring and invitation to sexual touching in a B.C. court. "When you get a guilty plea ... there is a sense of justice." Posing as a youngster to catch predators is a relatively new strategy being used by B.C. RCMP to proactively keep children safe. It's one of many tasks performed by officers in the Surrey-based Integrated Child Exploitation Unit, or ICE, rating somewhat less repugnant than other duties that have sent cops running to the bathroom to vomit. Cases involving hard drives crammed with toddler rape photographs and attackers live streaming sexual assaults on five-year-olds jostle for resources that might also go towards pursuing Canadian child sex tourists in Southeast Asia and Africa. [...] "When I'm chatting online I'm able to separate myself somewhat. But when you interview a victim, it tugs at your heart." The officer, whose name is withheld at the request of the RCMP, works in an enclosed office on as many as five computer monitors as her 11-year-old daughter and five-year-old son smile down at her from photos on a nearby corkboard. She has more than a decade's experience in policing and has also presided as a coroner. She said she copes with the disturbing work by maintaining a healthy and balanced lifestyle - eating right, appreciating her good co-workers and having a "twisted" sense of humour. [...] Officers hired into the unit are pre-screened and exposed to lower-end images of child sexual abuse to see if they have a stomach for the distress. They undergo an intense psychological exam beforehand, and then see a professional every six months. They needn't have particular expertise. Instead, what counts is an interest in protecting children and perhaps work on similar files in the past. Economic Integrity / L'intégrité économiques"Véritable cours de fraude 101"

Non daté - Depuis longtemps, la vente de barres de chocolat est l'un des moyens préférés des organismes de charité pour recueillir des fonds. Or, un important fournisseur de chocolat s'est servi de cette activité pour frauder les banques et mettre des organismes de bienfaisance dans l'embarras. En cette période où les collectes de fonds sont fort populaires, La Presse fait le point sur cette organisation. Des enfants et des handicapés ont permis à une organisation de vente de barres de chocolat de perpétrer une vaste fraude digne de la télésérie Les Bougon. Faux états financiers, faux comptables, fausses faillites: les manoeuvres de Michael Baker, de ses fils Glenn et Stephen, ainsi que de leur financier, Claude Bossé, sont telles qu'un juge les a qualifiées de "véritable cours de fraude 101". Il a fallu plusieurs années au syndic de faillite Raymond Chabot et des débats épiques devant les tribunaux pour venir à bout de cette affaire. Les faits se sont essentiellement produits de 2002 à 2005, mais ce n'est que le 17 octobre dernier que la Gendarmerie royale du Canada (GRC) a finalement déposé des accusations de fraude contre les quatre individus. Les Baker font affaire dans cette industrie depuis près de 20 ans. Les méfaits qui leur sont reprochés ont été commis par le truchement des entreprises Chocolat 3 Étoiles, Chocolats Cinq Étoiles et Chocolat suprême. Par la suite, deux des Baker ont travaillé pour une nouvelle entreprise, Chocolat Unik, encore active aujourd'hui. [...] L'essentiel des transactions se faisait en espèces, ce qui a permis aux Baker de mettre beaucoup de profits à l'abri de l'impôt, selon nos renseignements. [...] Ce n'est pas tout. Pour donner aux équipements soi-disant neufs une valeur de 2,5 millions, les Baker ont structuré des transactions fictives qui en ont gonflé la valeur. En réalité, les équipements d'occasion avaient une valeur de 147 124$, selon des documents produits en cour. Les transactions avaient été montées par un certain Claude Bossé, que la GRC et la Sûreté du Québec (SQ) considèrent comme un"chef d'orchestre" pour ce genre d'affaire. Missing Women Commission of Inquiry / La Commission d'enquête sur les femmes disparues A long journey for answers on B.C.'s Highway of Tears

Prince George, BC - Matilda and Brenda Wilson walk down a highway, past a small-town airport, to Yelich Road every June, the same month 16-year-old Ramona went missing in 1994. Flanked by friends and family, they head to the place where Ramona Wilson's body was found 10 months later, a few kilometres outside Smithers, B.C. In 2012, Matilda, Ramona's mother, stood on the dirt road, tears streaming down her cheeks, and said, "We are lucky." Lucky, Matilda said, because at least they know their girl is never coming home. Ramona is one of 18 girls and women officially missing or murdered on the so-called Highway of Tears, a 700-odd kilometre stretch of two-lane highway that runs from Prince George, in B.C.'s interior, to Prince Rupert on the coast. And there are others who haven't made the official RCMP list. Most disappeared hitchhiking along this road. The Missing Women Commission of Inquiry, headed by Wally Oppal, released its report on Dec. 17, finding that systemic bias within the RCMP and Vancouver police led to blatant failures investigating dozens of cases of women who disappeared from the downtown eastside. It touched on the Highway of Tears, the need for safe transportation between scattered northern towns and called on the province to implement recommendations penned at a Highway of Tears symposium in 2006. "That's pretty good news," said Brenda, Ramona's older sister. "Transportation is one of the reasons behind some of the girls going missing or getting murdered." But the inquiry didn't delve into what actually happened to these girls, or whether police - or anyone else - paid enough attention. [...] Communities have long complained that RCMP investigators didn't take the cases seriously, blaming systemic racism - all but one of the women are First Nations - and a presumption that they were engaging in high-risk behaviour by hitchhiking. [...] Since 2005, the RCMP has had about 50 investigators and staff based in the Lower Mainland working on Highway of Tears disappearances and murders. Former Sask. man lauded in Pickton report

Vancouver, BC - Vancouver police should have listened to a former Saskatoon man who warned them a serial killer - later found to be Robert Pickton - was murdering women, stated a massive report into the case. "That was a frustrating time for me. I wish those women would still be alive," criminologist Kim Rossmo said following a visit home to Saskatoon for the holidays. "Now nothing can be done to bring these women back, but this (report) is a recipe for avoiding future tragedies." Rossmo, a graduate of Brunskill Elementary School and Evan Hardy Collegiate, was working as a Vancouver police officer at the time of the Pickton killings. He tried without success to get his colleagues and superiors to consider the dozens of missing women, many of them prostitutes, as possible victims of a serial killer. Pickton was eventually discovered and is serving a life sentence in prison for six murders after a 2007 conviction. He allegedly told an undercover officer he has killed a total of 49 women. In a recently released report of more than 1,000 pages, former British Columbia attorney-general Wally Op-pal criticizes Vancouver city police and RCMP for their lack of co-operation, poor investigations and for failures to communicate within individual departments. Oppal also accused officers of being "disengaged" on the cases of the missing women. Rossmo said no one would want to go to a mechanic whose mind was on his next golf game, so why would we expect less from police? [...] "The implications are not related to just one province," he said. "This can happen in Victoria. This can happen in Saskatoon." In 1995, Rossmo became Canada's first police officer to earn a doctorate. He pioneered the science of geographic profiling. His techniques are used to investigate crimes around the world, and also to track potential terrorist activity, animal foraging and other applications. He now works as a criminologist at Texas State University near Austin. Majority in favour of regional police force

Vancouver, BC - A majority of Metro Vancouver ites support the creation of a single police force to oversee the entire region, according to a new poll on the Missing Women Commission of Inquiry recommendations. The Angus Reid opinion poll found 57 per cent of respondents in favour of a combined police force for the Lower Mainland - one of 63 recommendations made by Wally Oppal when he released his report earlier this month. The fragmentation of police services in the region has long been cited as one of the reasons Robert Pickton was able to continue killing women in the Downtown Eastside without being detected. The Metro Vancouver area is a patchwork of municipal forces and RCMP detachments, with most com munities policed by the RCMP. After Oppal's report was released, Justice Minister Shirley Bond said the recommendation about the regional force "deserves further discussion." The poll, which was conducted between Dec. 20 and 22, asked 806 British Columbians what they thought about Oppal's recommen dations. More than half said they followed the inquiry "very closely" or "mod erately closely." There was a high level of sup port for several recommendations, including the notion of improving police missing person policies with 91 per cent of people in agreement. Seventy-three per cent of respon dents wanted to see enhanced transit to northern B.C. communi ties, especially along Highway 16. About three in five respondents agreed with setting up a compensa tion fund for the children of missing women, but only half supported a "healing fund" for the families of missing women. Codiac, NB - Codiac RCMP may not have had any murders to investigate in 2012, but there was no shortage of high-profile cases to occupy members. RCMP check for drunks

Restigouche, NB - Restigouche-Chaleur District 9 RCMP has started its Christmas sobriety checkpoints, and Sgt. Stephen Dibblee said recently that people should be aware that the RCMP is out there looking for impaired drivers. "This time of year there are a lot of house and office parties. We are in that period of a festive time, and drinking and partying always go hand-in-hand," he said. "We have already started increasing checkpoints. Last weekend alone we got four impaired drivers in the District 9 area. But it is an ongoing issue we want to address year-round. I don't want to just focus on this week." Dibblee said that people do have options for getting home. "We do increase our patrols and our checkpoints. We are verifying sobriety. But we don't see an increase in drinking-and-driving because at the same time, we are seeing an increase in the number of designated drivers. It's a serious issue that we deal with all year round. We are continually trying to educate people to pay the $10 for a taxi. Or even hire two taxis, one taxi driver to drive your car home if you really have to have it for the next day. One driver will drive your car home, and the other driver will drive you home and then drive the other driver back to his cab. This is an option," he said. Alcohol tax has 'certain logic': city's mayor

Yellowknife, NT - Mayor Mark Heyck says a recent proposal by a town councillor from Swan River, Man., to impose to a municipal tax on all alcohol sold within town limits makes sense. The Globe and Mail reported last month that Jason Delaurier, a councillor in the town of 3,900 people, wanted to introduce a bylaw that would see a three per cent surcharge on all alcohol sold to pay for community policing. Heyck, who has said one of his objectives in the new year is to find a way to hire more RCMP officers to police the downtown core, said Delaurier's concept demonstrates the overall effort by Canadian municipalities to find ways to pay for the services they need. [...] Yellowknife RCMP detachment commander Staff Sgt. Colin White said he had seen the Swan River story in the news and although he has worked in a number of municipalities in Alberta during his career, it was the first time he had heard of the idea. He pointed out that it is important to consider the difference in how NWT municipalities contract their policing services versus how communities in other jurisdictions provide their services. It may be more difficult for Yellowknife to have such a policy than Swan River, he said. "In the Northwest Territories all of the policing is paid for by the GNWT so no city or town pays up here - pays for their own policing," said White. *Policing News / Actualités policières*Anti-government freemen movement creating 'major policing problem'

Undated - An anti-government movement known as Freeman on the Land has become a "major policing problem" in several provinces, according to a threat assessment by Canada's spy officials. The report by the Canadian Security Intelligence Service lists Freeman members among "domestic extremists" who associate with issue-based causes, such as environmentalism, anti-capitalism, anti-globalization and far-right racism. Its adherents fall on both the left and right wings of the political spectrum, but "at the core" of the movement is the belief that "government operates outside of its legal jurisdiction and therefore Freeman members do not recognize the authority of national, provincial, or municipal laws, policies or regulations," says the report, titled Canada: Biannual Update on Terrorist and Extremist?Threats, which was prepared in April and released under federal access-to-information laws. "Freeman members now constitute a major policing problem in several provinces and have occasionally engaged in acts of violence against the police," the report states. Man charged with assaulting police officer

Red Deer, AB - An RCMP officer in Red Deer was allegedly punched and kicked in the face early Friday by a drunk man who wouldn't leave a restaurant. RCMP were called to Original Joe's because an intoxicated man would not leave. Police say they arrested him for causing a disturbance but he resisted arrest and hit the officer. The officer was treated and released from hospital. The man was taken into custody and has been charged with assaulting a police officer causing bodily harm, resisting a police officer and causing a disturbance. Robert Stuart Fleming, 58, is scheduled to appear Feb. 12 in Red Deer court. (Edmonton Journal A7, Red Deer Advocate C2, Edmonton Sun p.3) Saturday

RCMP recruiting student troops

St. Albert, AB - Area youth interested in law enforcement can get a career crash course this spring with the St. Albert RCMP Youth Academy. "It really gives them a true feel for if they want to go into this career, what it's all about," said St. Albert RCMP Cpl. Laurel Kading. During spring break, students will camp out at Bellerose Composite High School and live like an RCMP recruit going through the national training academy – or depot – in Regina. Megan Sarrazin This article - including all rights associated to it - belongs to StAlbertGazette.Com. 'You can't erase the images'

Surrey, BC - To a young teenager's eyes, the invitation from an online male suitor seems relatively harmless at first: Perhaps you'd like to cuddle, talk, play games? Five minutes into the chat, the 27-year-old from the Metro Vancouver area asks if she has a "BF." He then casually mentions porn. I'm 13 years old, she reminds the man. She posts a blushing smiley-face emoticon. Ten more minutes in, she clicks open a digital image he's just sent her way. The photo is not his face, but another body part, standing at attention. It scores the man a rendezvous, but not with the teenybopper he imagined. "It's probably the most meaningful work I can do in the force," says the blonde RCMP constable and mother of two, who was the man's actual chat partner. She sends officers knocking at the man's door, and he is later convicted of luring and invitation to sexual touching in a B.C. court. "When you get a guilty plea ... there is a sense of justice." Posing as a youngster to catch predators is a relatively new strategy being used by B.C. RCMP to proactively keep children safe. It's one of many tasks performed by officers in the Surrey-based Integrated Child Exploitation Unit, or ICE, rating somewhat less repugnant than other duties that have sent cops running to the bathroom to vomit. Cases involving hard drives crammed with toddler rape photographs and attackers live streaming sexual assaults on five-year-olds jostle for resources that might also go towards pursuing Canadian child sex tourists in Southeast Asia and Africa. [...] "When I'm chatting online I'm able to separate myself somewhat. But when you interview a victim, it tugs at your heart." The officer, whose name is withheld at the request of the RCMP, works in an enclosed office on as many as five computer monitors as her 11-year-old daughter and five-year-old son smile down at her from photos on a nearby corkboard. She has more than a decade's experience in policing and has also presided as a coroner. She said she copes with the disturbing work by maintaining a healthy and balanced lifestyle - eating right, appreciating her good co-workers and having a "twisted" sense of humour. [...] Officers hired into the unit are pre-screened and exposed to lower-end images of child sexual abuse to see if they have a stomach for the distress. They undergo an intense psychological exam beforehand, and then see a professional every six months. They needn't have particular expertise. Instead, what counts is an interest in protecting children and perhaps work on similar files in the past. Economic Integrity / L'intégrité économiques

"Véritable cours de fraude 101"

Non daté - Depuis longtemps, la vente de barres de chocolat est l'un des moyens préférés des organismes de charité pour recueillir des fonds. Or, un important fournisseur de chocolat s'est servi de cette activité pour frauder les banques et mettre des organismes de bienfaisance dans l'embarras. En cette période où les collectes de fonds sont fort populaires, La Presse fait le point sur cette organisation. Des enfants et des handicapés ont permis à une organisation de vente de barres de chocolat de perpétrer une vaste fraude digne de la télésérie Les Bougon. Faux états financiers, faux comptables, fausses faillites: les manoeuvres de Michael Baker, de ses fils Glenn et Stephen, ainsi que de leur financier, Claude Bossé, sont telles qu'un juge les a qualifiées de "véritable cours de fraude 101". Il a fallu plusieurs années au syndic de faillite Raymond Chabot et des débats épiques devant les tribunaux pour venir à bout de cette affaire. Les faits se sont essentiellement produits de 2002 à 2005, mais ce n'est que le 17 octobre dernier que la Gendarmerie royale du Canada (GRC) a finalement déposé des accusations de fraude contre les quatre individus. Les Baker font affaire dans cette industrie depuis près de 20 ans. Les méfaits qui leur sont reprochés ont été commis par le truchement des entreprises Chocolat 3 Étoiles, Chocolats Cinq Étoiles et Chocolat suprême. Par la suite, deux des Baker ont travaillé pour une nouvelle entreprise, Chocolat Unik, encore active aujourd'hui. [...] L'essentiel des transactions se faisait en espèces, ce qui a permis aux Baker de mettre beaucoup de profits à l'abri de l'impôt, selon nos renseignements. [...] Ce n'est pas tout. Pour donner aux équipements soi-disant neufs une valeur de 2,5 millions, les Baker ont structuré des transactions fictives qui en ont gonflé la valeur. En réalité, les équipements d'occasion avaient une valeur de 147 124$, selon des documents produits en cour. Les transactions avaient été montées par un certain Claude Bossé, que la GRC et la Sûreté du Québec (SQ) considèrent comme un"chef d'orchestre" pour ce genre d'affaire. Missing Women Commission of Inquiry / La Commission d'enquête sur les femmes disparues

A long journey for answers on B.C.'s Highway of Tears

Prince George, BC - Matilda and Brenda Wilson walk down a highway, past a small-town airport, to Yelich Road every June, the same month 16-year-old Ramona went missing in 1994. Flanked by friends and family, they head to the place where Ramona Wilson's body was found 10 months later, a few kilometres outside Smithers, B.C. In 2012, Matilda, Ramona's mother, stood on the dirt road, tears streaming down her cheeks, and said, "We are lucky." Lucky, Matilda said, because at least they know their girl is never coming home. Ramona is one of 18 girls and women officially missing or murdered on the so-called Highway of Tears, a 700-odd kilometre stretch of two-lane highway that runs from Prince George, in B.C.'s interior, to Prince Rupert on the coast. And there are others who haven't made the official RCMP list. Most disappeared hitchhiking along this road. The Missing Women Commission of Inquiry, headed by Wally Oppal, released its report on Dec. 17, finding that systemic bias within the RCMP and Vancouver police led to blatant failures investigating dozens of cases of women who disappeared from the downtown eastside. It touched on the Highway of Tears, the need for safe transportation between scattered northern towns and called on the province to implement recommendations penned at a Highway of Tears symposium in 2006. "That's pretty good news," said Brenda, Ramona's older sister. "Transportation is one of the reasons behind some of the girls going missing or getting murdered." But the inquiry didn't delve into what actually happened to these girls, or whether police - or anyone else - paid enough attention. [...] Communities have long complained that RCMP investigators didn't take the cases seriously, blaming systemic racism - all but one of the women are First Nations - and a presumption that they were engaging in high-risk behaviour by hitchhiking. [...] Since 2005, the RCMP has had about 50 investigators and staff based in the Lower Mainland working on Highway of Tears disappearances and murders. Former Sask. man lauded in Pickton report

Vancouver, BC - Vancouver police should have listened to a former Saskatoon man who warned them a serial killer - later found to be Robert Pickton - was murdering women, stated a massive report into the case. "That was a frustrating time for me. I wish those women would still be alive," criminologist Kim Rossmo said following a visit home to Saskatoon for the holidays. "Now nothing can be done to bring these women back, but this (report) is a recipe for avoiding future tragedies." Rossmo, a graduate of Brunskill Elementary School and Evan Hardy Collegiate, was working as a Vancouver police officer at the time of the Pickton killings. He tried without success to get his colleagues and superiors to consider the dozens of missing women, many of them prostitutes, as possible victims of a serial killer. Pickton was eventually discovered and is serving a life sentence in prison for six murders after a 2007 conviction. He allegedly told an undercover officer he has killed a total of 49 women. In a recently released report of more than 1,000 pages, former British Columbia attorney-general Wally Op-pal criticizes Vancouver city police and RCMP for their lack of co-operation, poor investigations and for failures to communicate within individual departments. Oppal also accused officers of being "disengaged" on the cases of the missing women. Rossmo said no one would want to go to a mechanic whose mind was on his next golf game, so why would we expect less from police? [...] "The implications are not related to just one province," he said. "This can happen in Victoria. This can happen in Saskatoon." In 1995, Rossmo became Canada's first police officer to earn a doctorate. He pioneered the science of geographic profiling. His techniques are used to investigate crimes around the world, and also to track potential terrorist activity, animal foraging and other applications. He now works as a criminologist at Texas State University near Austin. Jason Warick (StarPhoenix.Com, Saskatoon StrarPhoenix A1) Monday

Majority in favour of regional police force

Vancouver, BC - A majority of Metro Vancouver ites support the creation of a single police force to oversee the entire region, according to a new poll on the Missing Women Commission of Inquiry recommendations. The Angus Reid opinion poll found 57 per cent of respondents in favour of a combined police force for the Lower Mainland - one of 63 recommendations made by Wally Oppal when he released his report earlier this month. The fragmentation of police services in the region has long been cited as one of the reasons Robert Pickton was able to continue killing women in the Downtown Eastside without being detected. The Metro Vancouver area is a patchwork of municipal forces and RCMP detachments, with most com munities policed by the RCMP. After Oppal's report was released, Justice Minister Shirley Bond said the recommendation about the regional force "deserves further discussion." The poll, which was conducted between Dec. 20 and 22, asked 806 British Columbians what they thought about Oppal's recommen dations. More than half said they followed the inquiry "very closely" or "mod erately closely." There was a high level of sup port for several recommendations, including the notion of improving police missing person policies with 91 per cent of people in agreement. Seventy-three per cent of respon dents wanted to see enhanced transit to northern B.C. communi ties, especially along Highway 16. About three in five respondents agreed with setting up a compensa tion fund for the children of missing women, but only half supported a "healing fund" for the families of missing women. Codiac RCMP were kept busy in 2012

Codiac, NB - Codiac RCMP may not have had any murders to investigate in 2012, but there was no shortage of high-profile cases to occupy members. Metro Moncton's police force was also busy internally, creating new units to focus on specific crimes and crime prevention. March was an especially busy month for Codiac RCMP, when they received more than 100 complaints from people who were victimized by fraudsters. [...] Codiac also had to deal with two separate incidents involving suspicious packages that caused great disruption downtown. [...] Police investigated several robberies in 2012, as they do every year, but one individual kept Codiac RCMP especially busy. Robert James Williams, 33, appeared in Moncton on Nov. 1 and had a long list of charges transferred to Vancouver, which can only be done if a person intends to plead guilty. [...] Codiac RCMP was also part of the takedown of a major drug operation earlier this year. A six-month police investigation resulted in 10 arrests, the seizure of drugs, cash, weapons and vehicles and the dismantling of a drug operation connected to the Hells Angels. [...] Codiac RCMP took steps to prevent crime in 2012, with the Youth at Risk Unit commencing operation on Jan. 1. At a November Codiac Regional Policing Authority, officers from that unit talked about the successes they've had so far, diverting young people away from crime. [...] Codiac RCMP Supt. RCMP check for drunks

Restigouche, NB - Restigouche-Chaleur District 9 RCMP has started its Christmas sobriety checkpoints, and Sgt. Stephen Dibblee said recently that people should be aware that the RCMP is out there looking for impaired drivers. "This time of year there are a lot of house and office parties. We are in that period of a festive time, and drinking and partying always go hand-in-hand," he said. "We have already started increasing checkpoints. Last weekend alone we got four impaired drivers in the District 9 area. But it is an ongoing issue we want to address year-round. I don't want to just focus on this week." Dibblee said that people do have options for getting home. "We do increase our patrols and our checkpoints. We are verifying sobriety. But we don't see an increase in drinking-and-driving because at the same time, we are seeing an increase in the number of designated drivers. It's a serious issue that we deal with all year round. We are continually trying to educate people to pay the $10 for a taxi. Or even hire two taxis, one taxi driver to drive your car home if you really have to have it for the next day. One driver will drive your car home, and the other driver will drive you home and then drive the other driver back to his cab. This is an option," he said. Northwestern B.C. Mounties search for red van after hitchhiker leaps to safety

Kispiox, BC - A young hitchhiker is okay after leaping from a minivan in northwestern B.C., to escape a threatening situation. RCMP Const. The woman had been picked up by 40 to 50-year-old man driving a red minivan but, after a brief conversation Mounties say she became uncomfortable and asked the man to let her out. Alcohol tax has 'certain logic': city's mayor

Yellowknife, NT - Mayor Mark Heyck says a recent proposal by a town councillor from Swan River, Man., to impose to a municipal tax on all alcohol sold within town limits makes sense. The Globe and Mail reported last month that Jason Delaurier, a councillor in the town of 3,900 people, wanted to introduce a bylaw that would see a three per cent surcharge on all alcohol sold to pay for community policing. Heyck, who has said one of his objectives in the new year is to find a way to hire more RCMP officers to police the downtown core, said Delaurier's concept demonstrates the overall effort by Canadian municipalities to find ways to pay for the services they need. [...] Yellowknife RCMP detachment commander Staff Sgt. Colin White said he had seen the Swan River story in the news and although he has worked in a number of municipalities in Alberta during his career, it was the first time he had heard of the idea. He pointed out that it is important to consider the difference in how NWT municipalities contract their policing services versus how communities in other jurisdictions provide their services. It may be more difficult for Yellowknife to have such a policy than Swan River, he said. "In the Northwest Territories all of the policing is paid for by the GNWT so no city or town pays up here - pays for their own policing," said White. 2012-12-20, 1845 hrs.

Tomorrow's schedule of events.....

Although there is nothing indicating anything other than a peaceful Rally for the 21st., all agencies should be consciou s of the fact that this Idle No More (INM), movement has seen blockades on major arteries in many of the provinces including Ontario. Nothing in the immediate National Capital Region or is there any mention of such by the INM organizers. However, the fact remains that there have been two occasions now that Occupy Ottawa has been asked to remove themselves from Chief Spense's hunger strike, Sacred Fire. There is a high probability that this group or some other activists group may in fact decide to do a blockade of some sort in the early hours of the morning, in support of the INM Rally, even though the Aboriginal Community want no part of this group for Chief Spense's Hunger strike, they have no control over the INM Rally portion. Just a word of CAUTION!!!!

0700- Special Sacred Pipe Ceremony for Chief Spense, by invite only. Cpl Russett has been invited and will be attending. The Aboriginal Experience inclosure will be off limits to all, but Elders, and Chiefs.

Cpl Russett requests that only the Police Officers (RCMP, OPP, and OPS) assigned for this event be on Victoria Island tomorrow, this request comes from Chief Spense's camp. Cpl Russett is the only one permitted to enter the enclosure for the duration of the Hunger Strike at the request of the Chief and her spokes person. This area is a Sacred area which must be protected at all times now.. There are 10 Aboriginal Peace Keepers who are working side by side with Cpl Russett on this issue.

0830- Lighting of the Sacred Fire for the Winter Solstice Ceremony
1000- Participants start arriving
1200- Ceremony begins
1330- March begins from Victoria Island to Parliament Hill.
South on Portage Bridge, East on Wellington Street, swinging up on to Parliament Hill via the Metcalfe Street Gate.
1430- Speeches begin
1600- Event ends.
According to the organizer the buses will be picking up on Wellington Street in front of P Hill.

Cpl Russett will be marching with and staying with the crowd for the duration of this event.
If able will send a short update should time permit.

Still no information to suggest anything other than peaceful rally.
End of Update.

Cpl Russett attended the ODAWA Native Friendship Center's Feast in honor of Chief Spense.
This Feast was by invite only.. 15 persons attended, Fire Keepers, Attawapiskat Council Members and some of their youth. A Pipe Ceremony was conducted along with a small Feast. Everyone has a great concern for their Chief's health.

Chief Spense is in good spirits, although feeling a little weak, she is now in her 10 day of the hunger strike (she is drinking hot water regularly). Cpl Russett checks in on her, or her Elder numerous times throughout the day.

The Idle No More (INM) Rally set for this Friday 2012-12-21, is showing signs of internal bickering over who is responsible for what..

It must remain clear that this Rally is by no means. connected to Chief Spense's hunger strike, it just happens to be occurring at the same location and time... Even some of the participants and media are confused with this issue.

It is Cpl Russett's belief that the Chiefs Hunger strike will not terminate at the conclusion of the Idle No More Rally. She is determined to hold to her words of "not eating another morsel of food" until the Prime Minister and or Governor General agree to meet with her and the other Chiefs.

With the major snow storm coming into our Region today and lasting till Saturday, this will definitely have an impact on numbers. An educated guess at this time would be that we will now probably have 1 to 1500, participants. This may change pending on the weather.

We have confirmed a full bus has departed from Regina, destination Ottawa Idle No More Rally.

We are still waiting on updates from our Policing Partners regarding approximate numbers coming in from their areas. It should be noted that a lot of Aboriginal Communities are not sharing information with the police as readily as they use too... it appears that they are now "holding their cards closer to their chest"...

We have unconfirmed information that we have approximately 40 walkers en route to Ottawa from the West, (some say Alberta). Unknown if it is in support of the Chiefs hunger strike or the INM Rally If any of our Policing Partners can confirm this it would be appreciated.

Cpl Russett is in constant communication with the organizers of the INM Rally.

Today 2012-12-20, at approximately 1000 to dusk, invite for the "Round Dance" on Parliament Hill. No idea of numbers, they have been passing out flyers to the general public....

Cpl Russett will be on site.
End of update

2012-12-19, 1715
Twelve Mohawk Women Counselors from three Mohawk Territories attended Victoria Island at approximately 1400 hrs for a meeting with Chief Spense. new meeting time was established for 1630 hrs.

The Twelve Mohawk Counselors wished to drop a letter for the Prime Minister and the second letter to the Governor General.

The PM's letter was dropped off at the PMO (mail drop box) and the GG's letter was left at the Prime Ministers Gate 24 Sussex. This lasted approximately 20 minutes and then everyone was clear of 24 Sussex.

With a negotiated agreement and approval from the Twelve Mohawk Counselors, the GG's letter was retrieved from the PM's gate by Cpl Russett after the media had departed and the letter dropped off to the GG's mail room.

Today at approximately 1400, there was a flash mob in the Rideau Center. Ottawa Police Service covered the event. One Aboriginal male transported to Hospital, unconfirmed report of a seizure of some sort. (No further info available)

Chief Spense is doing well, good spirits and lots of support and visitors...

This evening at the ODAWA Native Friendship Center there is a social being held in honor of Chief Spense. Cpl Russett has been invited and will be attending.

Tomorrow there will be a "Round Dance" on Parliament Hill starting at 1000.
Time shown is 1000 to sundown.... there is a lot of talk regarding the round dance on Parliament Hill circulating within the Aboriginal Community. No ideas of numbers.

End of Update.

2012-12-19, 1315,
Just received the following,
"Hi Wayne,
There will be a flash mob round dance at Rideau Centre at 2pm. I am not sure where they plan to do this but it might even be on Rideau centre. Just giving you a heads up!!"
End of update.

2012-12-19, 1130 hrs.
Cpl Russett was just advised that a group of Mohawk Council Women will be meeting with Chief Spense (hunger striker) at approx 1330 today and then will be dropping off a letter to the PMO, and also will be taping a letter to the Prime Minister's residence immediately after that.
Cpl Russett will be with the group and the senario will be played out as it was for the Manitoba Grand Chief earlier this week.
Protective Policing have been advised.

It should also be noted that Chief Spense hunger strike and the Idle No More Rally are two very separate issues/ events.

Idle No More Protests - Divisional / National Monitoring

The Idle No More Protests across Canada originating around the implementation of Bill C-45 have gained momentum in recent weeks. Peaceful protests and freedom of expression are fundamental rights under the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms. We do however require situational awareness of these activities at the national level in order to share this information divisionally.

We will be taking a measured approach in reporting on these activities, and will focus on monitoring events that are directly attributable to these protests. Please ensure the language used in your reporting does not unintentionally criminalize these activities or is submitted as an intelligence report.

National Aboriginal Policing Service and Criminal Intelligence will be coordinating information sharing on a National level and will not be directing enforcement action to the Divisions. If your Division has relevant information on a developing protest, please forward this information to RCMP Criminal Intelligence Carrie Ann McPherson, carrie.mcpherson@rcmp-grc.gc.ca and Insp. Mike LeSage, Michael.LeSage@rcmp-grc.gc.ca. The frequency of national bulletins will be determined as we assess need and the volume of the information collected.

National Policy regarding demonstrations or protests can be found under section 38.9 of the Operational Manual. Additionally, if a protest in your area escalates to a critical incident please notify the A. D.G. of National Aboriginal Policing, Insp. Michael LeSage.

National Aboriginal Policing is also seeking input from CROPS Officers on what additional information or assistance may be required from your respective Division. NAPS will also be working with NOC to streamline reporting and reduce redundancy. For Situation Awareness information a formal BN is not required however, if a related incident meets the usual criteria for a BN, forward one in the usual fashion.

" FOR LAW ENFORCEMENT ONLY "

2012-12-24, 1200 hrs.

"Chief Spense's Hunger Strike" and the "Idle No More Movement".

Sunday 2012-12-23, was a quite day with nothing planned although there were approximately 20 persons (mix of white and Aboriginal) observed at Sussex and Rideau, who disappeared into the Rideau Center without incident.

Monday 2012-12-24, there is a call out for all the community to attend and celebrate Christmas Eve with Chief Spense. Over 100 persons have signed up to attend at this time. No issues expected at this time.
This is UNCONFIRMED info. ONLY.

interviewed regarding Chief Spense's "Hunger Strike".
There is also a rumor going around the Aboriginal Community that is calling out people to attend Parliament Hill on 2012-12-25 for a Pow-Wow.
This is UNCONFIRMED info. ONLY.

Investigators Comments:

1. Chief Spense is doing well, she is in good spirits. Her Camp is being well maintained by the Fire Keeper and the 8 male Peace Keepers. Cpl Russett is in daily contact with the Camp.

2. The Chief has shown no signs of weakening in her previous commitment to continue her hunger strike until she and the other Chiefs get a meeting with the Prime Minister.

3. We are continuing to see, flash mobs, round dances , blockades of Highways and Rail. Aboriginal Community members are growing more frustrated each day, with the sense that no one is listening or heeding their call.
There is a high probability that we could see the flash mobs, round dances, and blockades become much less compliant to laws, in an attempt to get their point across.
The escalation of violence is ever near.
We are experiencing more main stream people and Ethnic Communities coming out in support of the Aboriginal Community.

4. This Idle No More Movement is like bacteria, it has grown a life all of it's own all across this Nation. It may be advisable for all, to have contingence plans in place, as this is one issue that is not going to go away.

5. There was a lot of traffic coming down onto Victoria Island in support of the Chief, dropping of articles of gifts on both Saturday and Sunday.

6. Cpl Russett will continue to monitor the situation and report when new information is learned. At this time, there are still good open lines of communication between the Chief and her assistant and Cpl Russett.

Subject: "Idle No More" - Sarnia Protests

Sir,

I tasked Cpl. Steve Ferguson (NCO i/c London CIS) with conducting a preliminary assessment of the current situation in Sarnia as it relates to the Idle No More movement/demonstrations.

He provided the following synopsis:

- Over the last 7 days there have been Native protestors blocking traffic in the Sarnia area including highway 402. There are between 4-12 protestors at any one time at these demonstrations. Some of these protestors have also been walking up and down the CN rail line carrying placards that contain anti PM Harper comments.

- Cpl. Ferguson has also reached out to who can provide timely information.

- A/NCO i/c Sarnia detachment Cpl. Darcy McKeown has also been contacted and is aware of our interests.
There was some earlier tension when the protestors learned that CN had obtained an injunction to prohibit/control protests on CN property. A clause within the injunction specifies that Sarnia PD is responsible for determining how the injunction would be effected. Sarnia PD has decided not to enforce the injunction at this time and this decision has resulted in calming the situation.

- Cpl. Ferguson will travel to Sarnia tomorrow to provide a further assessment.

I am also in the process of attempting to contact CM Analyst Brittany McBain who is responsible for the Critical Infrastructure Intelligence Team Bulletins that are produced weekly, to determine if she has come across any relevant information in this matter.

Respectfully submitted,

Tino Liokossis

Subject: Idle No More Protests - Divisional / National Monitoring

Good afternoon, please see below message that has been approved by Deputy Lang and is being translated. It will be going out to CROPS Officers this afternoon.

If you have any questions or concerns don't hesitate to call me.

Idle No More Protests - Divisional / National Monitoring

The Idle No More Protests across Canada originating around the implementation of Bill C-45 have gained momentum in recent weeks. Peaceful protests and freedom of expression are fundamental rights under the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms. We do however require situational awareness of these activities at the national level in order to share this information divisionally.

We will be taking a measured approach in reporting on these activities, and will focus on monitoring events that are directly attributable to these protests. Please ensure the language used in your reporting does not unintentionally criminalize these activities or is submitted as an intelligence report.

National Aboriginal Policing Service and Criminal Intelligence will be coordinating information sharing on a National level and will not be directing enforcement action to the Divisions. If your Division has relevant information on a developing protest, please forward this information to RCMP Criminal Intelligence Carrie Ann McPherson, carrie.mcpherson@rcmp-grc.gc.ca and Insp. Mike LeSage, Michael.LeSage@rcmp-grc.gc.ca. The frequency of national bulletins will be determined as we assess need and the volume of the information collected.

National Policy regarding demonstrations or protests can be found under section 38.9 of the Operational Manual. Additionally, if a protest in your area escalates to a critical incident please notify the A. D.G. of National Aboriginal Policing, Insp. Michael LeSage.

National Aboriginal Policing is also seeking input from CROPS Officers on what additional information or assistance may be required from your respective Division. NAPS will also be working with NOC to streamline reporting and reduce redundancy. For Situation Awareness information a formal BN is not required however, if a related incident meets the usual criteria for a BN, forward one in the usual fashion.

Good Afternoon,

See below for a summary of my findings today in Sarnia:

I drove by the location near highway #40 and Scott Road in Sarnia at 1045 hrs on this date. The railway is still blocked. Best estimate I can give is between 5-10 subjects in the area of the tents setup on the railway. Looks exactly like the photos sent on 2012-12-28. As of 1300 hrs there is no change.

The protesters have been peaceful so far.

I will be checking the site one more time before I depart to London. I will advise when I hear of any developments.

Let me know if anything further is required.

Current Event / Incident en Cours

"First Nations blockades December 19th - 23rd . On 19th of December 2012, members of the Micmac First Nation of Listuguj set up a road blockade on Highway 132 near Restigouche, QC. The blockade was partial and traffic was allowed to proceed via alternating direction. A National Day of Protest on 21st of December has events occurring primarily in Quebec, Manitoba and Saskatchewan including Winnipeg International Airport that could affect rail and aviation. GOC, PS, QC RO and AANDC continue to monitor the situation." (CJOC-Canada Command)

"The protests were organized by a group called "Idle No More", which is critical of Bill C-45, the government's omnibus budget legislation...The omnibus legislation contains changes to the Indian Act and Navigable Waters Protection Act." (GOC)Nothing to Report / Rien à signaler

Situation Report

Incident Number: ST122-12 B

Incident: First Nations Protests

Date: Information valid as of 29 Dec 2012, 17:00 EST

Description of current incident: A number of First Nations (FN) Protests are occurring as a result of a grassroots campaign called "Idle No More" which is protesting Bill C-45, the government's omnibus budget legislation. In addition, "Idle No More" related protests have also been planned at different locations in the United States in the coming days.

Source(s) of reporting: Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada, RCMP, Transport Canada, Emergency Management Ontario, PS Regional Offices and media/open source reporting.

Current actions: GOC is monitoring the situation and has established contact with key federal departments/agencies and PS Regional Offices in order to maintain cohesive information sharing.

Event management of the protests falls under the purview of local jurisdictions and local law enforcement agencies, as appropriate.

At this time, the GOC is aware of the following "Idle No More" related protests planned in Canada for 30 Dec 2012:
- BC: 13:00 EST in Victoria. Flash Mob Round Dance at the Uptown Center, 3440 Saanich Road.
- BC: 16:00 EST in Ladysmith. A demonstration starting at the Husky Gas Station, on the Trans-Canada Highway.
- AB: 12:00 EST in Lethbridge. Flash Mob Round Dance at the Walmart
- AB: 13:00 EST in High Prairie. Possible blockade near the Peavine Metis settlement on Seal Lake Road
- ON: 07:30 EST in Bkejwanong Territory. A demonstration at Walpole-Algonac Ferry Line Ltd.
- ON: 13:00 EST in Fort William FN, Thunder Bay. The FN will be hosting an hour long rally taking place between James Street Bridge and Bannon's Gas Bar on City Road.
- ON: 14:00 EST in Ottawa. Open house to all MPs and Senators to visit with Chief Spence on Victoria Island.
- ON: The rail blockade in Sarnia is ongoing, but remains peaceful at this time.

Assessment/Analysis: So far the protests have been peaceful in nature; some have affected the transportation sector.

Departments and Agencies with further information on this incident are asked to report to the GOC.

Additional situation reports: Further situation reports will be issued as significant developments occur.

Additional Products: Geomatics and other products will be attached to a follow-on message.

Tino,

Looks like Tyendinaga activists may have blocked cn rail tracks. It is only supposed to be for a couple of hours.
It is in support to idle no more and Chief Spence's hunger strike. I will get more details and forward as they come in.

The following is new information received, in addition to what was disseminated at 1200 EST on January 5, 2013.

Potential border service disruptions may occur on January 5, 2013, at the following ports of entry:

Region Port of Entry/Location	Date/Time[1] Weather Forecast	Activity Type
Northern Ontario Region
Akwesasne/Cornwall (OPEN) # of Demonstrators: 800 – 1,100 (based on social media responses, actual numbers may be lower due to weather and requirement to carry identity documents)	2013-01-05 11:00 EST Weather: Sunny, -7° to -6°C, wind-chill of -15°C predicted	January 5, 2012 (CONCLUDED – No further reporting) At 1440 EST. Cornwall & Massena International Bridges on both sides of the border re-open. All marchers that returned to the USA POE presented themselves for inspection. CBSA Cornwall E&I and Cornwall POE are all clear. At 1346 EST, Bridge still closed from USA and from Cornwall City to the island. But in an attempt to get traffic moving people will be allowed to leave Cornwall island to Cornwall POE and Massena POE. Marchers carrying the 6 Nations (Purple Flag).

[1] Dates/Times in Italics are unconfirmed. All times reported are local time.

Region Port of Entry/Location	Date/Time[1] Weather Forecast	Activity Type
		At 1309 EST, Cornwall Community Police Service (CCPS) will re-open Brookdale to regular city traffic but the bridge is still closed until all marchers are off the roads and all vehicles with this group are parked and off the roads at the Peoples Fire on Cornwall Island. Then CCPS will make the call once Akwesasne Mohawk Police Service (AMPS) give the all clear that all is safe and the bridge will re-open. Presently the large group is moving fast but there are still a lot of smaller groups moving much slower back up the bridge. It will still be some time before the walkers are all off the bridge. 2 Emergency vehicles were facilitated during this march by Police and CBSA At 1250 EST, All marched through toll booth heading back on Bridge to Cornwall Island. Any persons carrying the black flags that have covered faces who stay in Cornwall will be approached by CCPS. At 1218 EST, all 300 or so marched through the POE. . The Group is staking 2 flags beside the existing polls in the traffic circle, the warrior flag and the 6 nations flag (Purple flag). Smaller groups arriving on foot and are reporting into POE properly. At 1150 EST, protesters are starting to arrive at the Cornwall POE. At 1123 EST, march continuing to Cornwall. Approx. 300 people going North. Vehicles approx. 10-15. Media (CBC) is with them.Bridge closure. CBSA POE STILL OPEN Movement started from GM plant. Approx. 30 people on island and a lot of children. A few vehicles with warrior signs and a few known warriors. A few confirmed warriors and signs and flags. Lawyer and First Nations

		activist Frank Horn at POE At 0847 EST, Organizers will let the crowd decide at the staging location today if they will do both bridges or not. Protest activity commencing in Roosevelt, New York, proceeding by foot across Cornwall Island through CBSA Port of Entry to the City of Cornwall traffic circle. The demonstrators will then return to Cornwall Island. According to Facebook, 1,100 people have indicated they will participate and organizers are expecting a large number of participants. However, inclement weather and the requirement of demonstrators to be processed by CBSA may reduce the number of participants. Indications that criminally inadmissible persons may be part of the demonstration entering Canada. Indications of possible participation by members of the Mohawk Warrior Society, The bridge will be closed to vehicle traffic during the protest (4-6 hours).
Fort Frances/International Falls # of Demonstrators: 70-80 on the US	2013-01-05 13:00 EST Weather: Sunny/cloudy, -15° to -6°C	January 5, 2013 At 1615 EST, the protest activity at Fort Frances concluded. At 1520 EST, 75-80 people estimated to be on US side but nothing to indicate at this point that they will be marching to Canada. At 1434 EST, Intel on site at Ft Frances report that a traveller just returned from US and indicated that a group on US side were lining up for a march across bridge to Canada. There are approximately 70 in total at the gathering in International Falls.

Region Port of Entry/Location	Date/Time[1] Weather Forecast	Activity Type
		Intel is expecting confirmation of any staging for cross border walk in the next few minutes through US CBP contacts . 11:15 CST, IO on site reports approx. 12 participants outside Ft Frances Ontario Tourist Information Bureau at. They have Native dress and drums and are heading to US via pedestrian walkway. At 1127 EST, A meeting took place at USCBP at 1000 hrs EST attended by CBSA POE Chief, Supt & IO , Ft Frances OPP Sgt & Intel unit Sgt / International Falls MN police/CN Police / USBP/Boises Cascade/MD&W rail - bridge OPS - Rally in International Falls MN still scheduled for 1300 CST hrs (1400 hrs EST) at the parking lot of Border Bobs (just south of USCBP) . No attendees have been noted yet. - Approximately 10-12 supporters from American Indian Movement (AIM) have indicated through social media that they will attend US rally . - Believed that Canadian participants may gather at Ontario Tourist center near CBSA POE for 1200 EST . - OPP & International Falls Police will stop vehicle traffic & MD&W will close bridge if protest crosses international bridge . - MN State Patrol will advise of vehicles observed travelling north towards International Falls MN - CN Police will monitor Rainier Bridge –International Rail crossing several KM east of POE - CBSA shift briefing underway now at POE and another at 1215 EST At 0830 EST, No new information was reported. Solidarity Protest on U.S. side of the Ft. Frances / International Falls border crossing. Expecting Canadian

Fort Erie Peace Bridge # of Demonstrators: 100	2013-01-05 11:00 EST Weather: Cloudy, -1° to 1°C	January 5, 2013 (CONCLUDED – No further reporting) There were no reported issues. At 1346 EST, crowds were dispersing. A small contingent remains on the Peace Bridge. Handing out flyers to provide some background on Idle No More. At 13:00 EST, marching in unity on to the plaza heading towards the mid-point of the bridge carrying flags, banners and signs, it is a peaceful demonstration. The Peace Bridge Authority has closed one US bound lane to accommodate this peaceful demonstration. The PBA have staff stationed near the entrance from Mather's Arch onto the plaza in order to facilitate their lawful and safe entrance onto the plaza. The PBA and the organizers have agreed that this demonstration will conclude at 14:00 EST at which time the participants will begin making their way back to Canada towards Mather's Arch. Canadian residents attending the US rally are travelling by car. Local Intel / OPP Intel on site at POE and will contact US CBP at 1400 EST to determine number of Canadian residents destined to attend rally. One warrior flag and 120-140 persons in attendance. At 1133 EST, Fort Erie is reporting 70 protesters near regional office (Garrison Rd/ Mathers Park (near Peace Bridge). CBC and Parks Police on site – all peaceful – no extremist flags/banners. No reports from CBP of any US protesters marshalling on US side. At 0830 EST, No new information was reported. Protest with two contingents – demonstrators gathering on the Buffalo, NY side and a demonstration in Fort Erie. Bridge operator allowing protestors to march across the bridge occupying one lane of traffic.

Niagara Falls # of Demonstrators:	2013-01-05 11:30 EST Weather: Cloudy, -1° to 1°C	January 5, 2012 (CONCLUDED – No further reporting) 1050 EST, no observations of any protest activity in Windsor or Niagara Falls. At 0830 EST, No new information was reported. No specific POE targeted protests are known, however a small protest is planned near Rainbow Bridge.
Sarnia - BWB (OPEN) # of Demonstrators: 370 (based on statements by protest organizers)	2013-01-05 10:00 EST Weather: Cloudy/flurries, -5° to -2°C	January 5, 2013 (CONCLUDED – No further reporting) There were no reported issues. At 1344 EST, The Blue Water Bridge has been reopened following the conclusion of the Idle No More protest. At 1221 EST, presence of a few Mohawk warrior flags, all peaceful at this time. POE SEN reporting temporary blockage of traffic, commercial trucks being diverted around protest group. At 1133 EST, BWB is holding traffic coming into Canada and both CBSA and CBP is clearing any traffic in queue. Sarnia is reporting approximately 200 protesters – no extremist members observed. According to the social media (Facebook) there is a possibility of 420 attending. Participants are to gather at the 'Soul's Monument' located under the bridge at 1000 EST . Beginning between 1100-1130 EST, participants will march from the monument to Front Street via Venetian Boulevard. Previous information indicated participants will then enter onto Highway 402 and block traffic in both directions. As Highway 402 links directly to the Bluewater Bridge, a traffic stoppage affecting both directions of this highway will have a direct impact on bridge traffic.

		Information indicates that this event will include members of Aamjiwnaang First Nation and Kettle Point First Nation. Event organizers will also be advising Walpole Island First Nation, Chippewa of the Thames First Nation, Munsee-Delaware First Nation and Stoney Point First Nation should members of these communities wish to participate. Information was received from organizers of today's demonstration of the potential of a "rogue" group planning a protest on Indian Road in Sarnia. This apparent protest is not being promoted by the Idle No More demonstration. The number of demonstrators, exact location and time is unknown. At 0830 EST, No new information was reported. Protest and march starting at 10:00 under the bridge, then proceeding to Highway 403 with the intention of blocking traffic, possibly affecting access to the Port of Entry. Sun Media is reporting that protestors plan to block the Canadian side of the Bluewater Bridge for one hour.

SYNOPSIS | SYNOPSIS

Idle No More is an ongoing protest movement originating among the First Nations and other Indigenous Peoples in Canada. It has quickly grown and garnered worldwide support from other Indigenous Peoples as well as sympathetic non-Indigenous Canadians and Americans. It has consisted of a number of political actions worldwide, inspired in part by the hunger strike of Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence and further coordinated via social media. The movement claims that the Canadian government's omnibus bill C-45 infringes on a number of historical treaty rights, however, according to open sources, Chief Theresa Spence is not supporting these protests.

Large protests are expected to take place on January 5, 2013, in various regions, with the largest protest expected to occur at the Cornwall Port of Entry in Ontario. Other smaller protests may have a limited impact on CBSA operations at ports of entry in the Southern Ontario Region (Sarnia, Fort Erie and Niagara Falls); Northern Ontario Region (Fort Francis and Sault Ste. Marie); Pacific Region (Douglas, Osoyoos, Kingsgate and Victoria) and the Prairie Region (Boissevain and Carway).

The movement has gained support from other similar mass movements, including Occupy Canada and Council for Canadians as well as Greenpeace.

Although protests conducted under the Idle No More banner remain peaceful, there is the potential for violence the more they impact the public.

The Intelligence Operations and Analysis Division (IOAD) and Regional Enforcement and Intelligence Divisions (E&I) are continuing to liaise with partner agencies, including the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP), the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP), US Customs and Border Protection (US CBP), US Border Patrol, the Canadian Security and Intelligence Service (CSIS), the Integrated Terrorism Assessment Centre (ITAC), Transport Canada (TC) and the Sûreté du Québec to monitor and assess threats in relation to planned blockades.

« Idle No More » est un mouvement de protestation en cours d'origine entre les Premières Nations et d'autres peuples autochtones du Canada. Il s'est rapidement développé et il a recueilli un soutien dans le monde entier à partir des peuples autochtones ainsi que les Canadiens et Américains non autochtones, sympathique au mouvement. Il a consisté en une série d'actions politique dans le monde entier, inspirée en partie par la grève de la faim de la chef Thérèse Spence d` Attawapiskat et plus coordonnée via les medias sociaux. Le mouvement affirme que le projet de loi omnibus du gouvernement canadien C-45 viole un certain nombre de droits issus des traités historiques. Cependant, selon des sources ouvertes, la chef Theresa Spence ne soutient pas ces protestations.

De grandes manifestations devraient avoir lieu le 5 janvier 2013, dans différentes régions et la plus grande manifestation devrait avoir lieu au port d'entrée de Cornwall en Ontario. D'autres manifestations plus petites peuvent avoir un impact limité sur les opérations de l`ASFC aux points d'entrée dans la Région Sud de l`Ontario (Sarnia, Fort Erie et Niagara Falls); Nord de l`Ontario (Fort Francis et Sault Ste Marie); Région du Pacifique (Douglas. Osoyoos, Kingsgate et Victoria) et la région des Prairies (Boissevain et Carway).

Le mouvement a gagné l'appui de d'autres mouvements de masse similaires, y compris « Occupy Canada » et le Conseil des Canadiens, ainsi que Greenpeace.

Bien que les protestions menée sous la bannière d'inactivité « Idle No More » ont restées pacifiques, il y a un potentiel de violence qui ont plus un impact sur le public.

Les opérations de renseignement et de l'analyse (IOAD) et application régionale et les divisions du renseignement (E&I) continuent d'assurer la liaison avec les organismes partenaires, y compris la Police provinciale de l`Ontario (PPO), la Gendarmerie royale du Canada (GRC), US Customs and Border Protection (US CBP), la US Border Patrol, le service canadien du renseignement de sécurité (SCRS), le Centre d'évaluation intégrée terrorisme (ACTI), Transport Canada (TC) et la Sureté du Québec pour surveiller été évaluer les menaces pas rapport aux blocages prévus.

National Security / Sécurité nationale'Left-wing extremism, 'Freemen among top domestic threats

Undated - Canadian domestic extremists are capable of orchestrating "serious acts" of political violence, according to a newly released federal intelligence report that blames such groups for nine bombings since 2004. The incidents catalogued in the "secret" report include attacks on Alberta oil pipelines and three bombings by a Quebec group called the Initiative de Résistance Internationaliste (IRI) that espouses a broad leftist agenda. While Islamist extremists have consistently ranked as the country's top terrorist threat since the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks, the report shows that most of Canada's recent politically motivated attacks were the work of domestic extremists. The Intelligence Assessment, 2012 Domestic Threat Environment in Canada: Left-Wing/Right-Wing Extremism, was written by the Canadian Security Intelligence Service in March. A declassified version was released under the Access to Information Act. It describes the activities of Canadian fringe groups that use or advocate violence, ranging from "eco-extremists" and "pro-insurrection anarchists" to "revolutionary communists" and the anti-government Freemen on the Land. The report said 2010 had seen an "unusually high" level of left-wing extremist activity, which it attributed to the G20 summit in Toronto and the Winter Olympics in British Columbia. Attacks that year included the firebombing of a Royal Bank branch in Ottawa and the IRI bombing of a Canadian Forces recruiting centre in Trois-Rivières, Que. [...] According to the report, left-wing groups have begun targeting companies linked to the correctional system. For example, a Kingston, architectural firm that designed a provincial prison was repeatedly vandalized in 2011 and "wanted posters" featuring photos of architects appeared downtown. Canada keeping an eye on Iran

Ottawa - It's business as usual for Canada, even as the U.S. looks to its closest ally for help "to counter Iran's growing hostile presence and activity in the Western Hemisphere." U.S. President Barack Obama recently signed a bill that calls on American officials to get Canadian and Mexican input over the next six months to help assess Iran's growing terrorist, criminal and diplomatic presence in Central and South America, and develop a plan to counter it. A spokeswoman for Public Safety Minister Vic Toews says Canada was helping the U.S. on these issues even before Obama signed the new bill. "Canada's position on the regime in Iran is well-known," Julie Carmichael wrote in an e-mail to QMI Agency. "We continually assess threats while cooperating with international partners, including the U.S., to address threats to our common security." [...] American officials are also alarmed by other Iranian activity. "Hezbollah and other Iranian proxies with a presence in Latin America have raised revenues through illicit activities, including drug and arms trafficking, counterfeiting, money laundering, forging travel documents, pirating software and music, and providing haven and assistance to other terrorists transiting the region," Daniel Proussalidis (Ottawa Sun (http://www.infomedia.gc.ca/rcmp-grc/articles/unrestricted/2013/01/rcm20131588125638_23.htm) p.13, Kingston Whig-Standard p.7, Toronto Sun p.21, London Free Press B3, Calgary Sun p.10, Edmonton Sun p.20)

*Federal and International Operations / La direction des opérations fédérales et internationales*Man confesses to killing Canadian

Lahore, Pakistan - A desperate five-month search for a missing Canadian woman has ended in tragedy for her family in B.C. Rajvinder Kaur Gill, 41, disappeared in August after travelling to Pakistan, said her family, who had been praying for her safe return. But on Tuesday, Gill's dad, Sikan-dar Singh Gill, sat in a Lahore courtroom and listened to the police chief recount a man's confession about Gill's murder. According to local media, Hafiz Shahzad Hussain had confessed to killing Gill with his cousin Sha-hid Ghazanfar, a German national. Hussain told police his cousin owed Gill money and that he invited her to Lahore to attend a diamond auction. He said they picked Gill up from her hotel, spiked her tea with sedatives and strangled her before dumping her body in a canal, news agency Press Trust of India reported. Gill, a banker, lived in Mission and Burnaby before moving to Switzerland in 2006, where she worked for Merrill Lynch, UBS and EFG Bank. Gill's family said she travelled to Pakistan to attend a conference and a diamond auction. She arrived Aug. 25, and stayed in touch with them for the first few days. They last heard from her on Aug. 27. Her dad and brother have been frantically searching for Gill, tracking her whereabouts, tracing her cellphone records and appealing to authorities, both in Canada and Pakistan. With the help of Swiss authorities, the family was able to go into Gill's apartment, in a suburb of Zurich. They also filed missing person's reports with the RCMP, Interpol and the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade. The family said Gill's Skype and cellphone records showed she had contacted various phone numbers in Pakistan, including a Pakistani TV actor/host who was the recipient of Gill's last text message before she disappeared. Gill's body hasn't been found. Police are still looking for Ghazan-far. *Serious & Organized Crime / Crimes graves et crime organisé*Man gets 15 months on child porn charges

St. Stephen, NB - Shayne Richard Clark did not regret getting caught with child pornography on his computer, he said Wednesday in St. Stephen provincial court. "I am very regretful for my behaviour but one of the things I am not regretful for is that I got caught," the 31-year-old Philadelphia resident said before Judge David Walker sentenced him to 15 months in jail for possession of child pornography and a related charge of smuggling child pornography on Oct. 13. Walker subtracted 82 days for time in jail awaiting court proceedings, making the sentence just more than one year. A cursory view of Clark's computer when he entered Canada at St. Stephen on Oct. 13 revealed a short video featuring child pornography, provincial Crown prosecutor Karen Lee Lamrock said at the sentencing hearing Wednesday. Further examination revealed more. The Canada Border Services Agency and RCMP investigators found about 800 images and 384 video files showing child pornography, Lee Lamrock said. [...] In August the minimum sentence for possession of child pornography increased to six months from 45 days, Lee Lamrock said. The Criminal Code sets the maximum at five years, Walker noted. [...] Walker placed him on the sex offender registry for 10 years. Under another section of the Criminal Code he banned him from parks and swimming areas and other places young people are likely to go, employment or volunteer posts putting him in positions of trust over people less than 16, and other restrictions on contact with young people and using a computer for 10 years. Walker ordered him to provide DNA samples. Derwin Gowan (New Brunswick Telegraph-Journal (http://www.infomedia.gc.ca/rcmp-grc/articles/unrestricted/2013/01/rcm201313330437152_40.htm) C10)

Videotaping in change rooms nets charges

Sherwood Park, AB - A 27-year-old man is accused of secretly videotaping women's change rooms at several clothing stores in the Edmonton area. On Dec. 17, a man was seen videotaping customers trying on clothes in the Sherwood Park Mall. The family of a 14-year-old girl called Strath-cona County RCMP after spotting a recording device next to one of the change rooms. An investigation by RCMP and the Internet child exploitation unit of the Alberta Law Enforcement Response Team uncovered 13 incidents in the Sherwood Park Mall and Londonderry Mall in north Edmonton. The incidents all appear to have happened that day, police say. [...] Joshua Meilleur, 27, faces 12 voyeurism charges, one count of making child pornography, and three weapons charges. Metro Moncton priests suspended

Moncton, NB - The Moncton Archdiocese has suspended two Roman Catholic priests as a result of information brought forward by a former Supreme Court judge. In a news release sent out by Diocesan Pastoral Co-ordinator Donald Langis, it was announced that Rev. Yvon Arsenault and Fr. Irois Després have been suspended indefinitely. Arsenault was most recently a Moncton-based priest at Saint Augustine's Church and St. Michael's Church. He was removed from ministry as of July 4, and retired that same month. Irois Després was also removed from any ministry. Though he retired in 1992, retired priests can still perform duties, so the suspension will prevent that from happening. The news release states the Archdiocese of Moncton removed the two Diocesan priests "from any ministry whatsoever following allegations of serious sexual abuse on minors on their part." [...] While Arsenault and Després have been suspended indefinitely from duties, they are still priests. Defrocking a priest is a legal process which has not taken place in this instance. According to their biographies on the Moncton Archdiocese website, Arsenault is 70, while Després is 82. Both men worked in many different New Brunswick communities during their careers before retiring. [...] No information has been released regarding where and when the alleged incidents occurred. New Brunswick RCMP Cpl. Chantal Farrah says police are never able to confirm or deny if any particular individual is being investigated. "We can only confirm information if a charge has been laid," she says. Farrah adds that, generally speaking, police will investigate any complaint from a person who says they were sexually assaulted. "It's never too late for a person to make a complaint," says the corporal. "If someone has been a victim of a crime, they can bring it to the police to investigate." In the case of sexual offences against young people, there is no statute of limitations, so if police find evidence, a charge can be laid even if the offence is decades-old. Mafia hits surge in Montreal

Montreal, QC - Montreal witnessed a sharp increase in Mafia-related homicides in 2012, a tumultuous year that was marked by the return of former kingpin Vito Rizzuto. The figures show the fallout from a brutal turf war in the city that has resulted in a wave of brazen executions and attempted murders, as well as a rash of suspicious fires. In 2011, there were just two slayings that police believe were linked to Italian organized crime, but 2012 was much deadlier with five such homicides. All have occurred since the Oct. 5 release of Rizzuto from a U.S. prison, where he was serving an eight-year-prison sentence for conspiracy to commit murder related to a 1980s Mafia hit. [...] Out of 35 homicides committed last year, Montreal police also say there have seven murders linked to the "settling of accounts" between different organized crime groups and another six linked to street gang turf wars. Most of the gangland murders remain unresolved. Montreal police spokesman, Commander Ian Lafrenière, told The Canadian Press that murders linked to organized crime are tougher and more complex to investigate. *Aboriginal Communities / Les communautés autochtones*Protesters target Highway 2

High Prairie, AB - A major Alberta highway was shut down Wednesday as "Idle No More" protests continued across Canada. Sucker Creek First Nation held the "peaceful blockade" from noon until 2:00 p.m. at the intersection of Highway 2 and Highway 750. "We just found out about it today," said Sgt. Greg Crook with High Prairie RCMP. RCMP were on hand to slow traffic and maintain the peace, said Crook. It was the third Idle No More blockade in High Prairie and all have been peaceful, said Crook. There are four reserves in the High Prairie area, said Crook, and communications with various community groups have been "very open" in terms of Idle No More events. Crook advised motorists travelling through the area to turn through High Prairie on Highway 749, which meets Highway 750. That takes motorists north to Red Earth Creek. Sucker Creek First Nation is approximately 20 km east of High Prairie on Highway 2 towards Slave Lake. It is about 400 km northwest of Edmonton. Idle No More is an aboriginal protest against federal budget Bill C-45, a land leasing bill that many First Nations say will have negative impact on "wildlife, fisheries, mankind and Mother Nature" in Canada. In recent weeks, the movement sparked flash mobs at West Edmonton Mall and protests at the Alberta legislature. Idle No More continued Wednesday with a rail blockade in Quebec and a large demonstration in downtown Winnipeg. *Contract & Aboriginal Policing / Services de police contractuels et autochtones*Spreading the police presence

Strathmore, AB - Sitting with a cup of tea in Rocky's Bakery on 2nd Avenue, Robert Sturm recalled a time when the sidewalks out front were the domain of a single policeman employed by the town. Strathmore was much smaller in the early 1970s, when the officer kept a watchful eye over the town's 1,500 or so residents. [...] Today, Strathmore is one of the fastest-growing communities in Canada, and a 26-member RCMP detachment is responsible for policing a much larger population living in town and in the surrounding rural counties. "It's not the little-town policeman anymore," Sturm said. Nor is Strathmore a little town anymore: Statistics Canada ranks it as the fifth-fastest-growing municipality in the country. [...] As Strathmore continues to grow, so do surrounding communities like Langdon, which is policed by the Strathmore RCMP detachment. Modern policing in Strathmore - and many Alberta towns like it - means juggling demands from the town and the growing rural areas surrounding them. "That's an ongoing issue, as long as the rural communities continue to grow like they're growing," said Strathmore Mayor Steve Grajczyk. While the Mounties based in Strathmore work under the same roof for the same police force, they actually serve two different clients. Under a contract between Strathmore and the federal government, the town will pay about $1.5 million this year for 17 officers within its limits. The remaining nine officers patrol outside town, paid for under a provincial contract that splits the cost of rural policing between the province and Ottawa. The arrangement may be straightforward on paper, but the realities of policing are more complicated: when there's a major incident, the RCMP deploys as many officers as it needs, regardless of where they're based. [...] As the reeve of a sprawling county that wraps around Calgary on three sides, Ashdown says he's familiar with the complaint the RCMP isn't around enough. In some cases, the county has paid for additional officers above what it was allotted in the provincial policing agreement - as was the case recently in Airdrie, where the CrossIron Mills mall in Balzac was creating additional demands on the local RCMP detachment. RCMP nailed 141 hammered drivers in Checkstop program

Manitoba - Mounties charged 141 motorists with impaired driving offences during their Christmas Checkstop program -- the exact same number as a year earlier. Russell, MB - Police say one of their officers had to Taser a patient who was acting violently towards staff and other patients at a rural Manitoba health centre. RCMP say it happened on New Year's Day at the Russell Health Centre. A 43-year-old man from Waywayseecappo First Nation went to the health centre for unspecified injuries he received in a snowmobile crash earlier in the day. Mounties say a doctor and at least two nurses were treating the man when he became violent, assaulted them and then left the room. Police say the man then assaulted a young girl and chased another child in the hospital, and uttered threats to other patients. *Firearms / Armes à feu*Canada opens Colombia to 'new opportunities' for its automatic weapons sellers

Ottawa - Just one day before last month's elementary school massacre in Newtown, Conn., Canada offered its gun merchants "new market opportunities" to export banned assault weapons to Colombia, one of the world's most violent countries. Canada quietly eased its ban on the export of assault-style weapons to Colombia after Foreign Affairs Minister John Baird recommended an order amending the Automatic Firearms Country Control List (AFCCL). That opened the door for Canadian gun merchants to sell fully automatic weapons with high-capacity magazines — banned in Canada — to Colombia. "Colombia's addition to the AFCCL opens new market opportunities by providing residents of Canada with the opportunity to explore and compete for contracts in Colombia for items controlled under the AFCCL," says a government notice, posted Tuesday. The amended order places restrictions on the permits required for the weapons exports, including a case-by-case review by Ottawa. The notice says that Canadian weapons exporters will face "very strict controls" under the Export and Import Permits Act before they will be allowed to export "prohibited weapons and prohibited devices (as defined in the Criminal Code of Canada), examples of which include fully automatic firearms, electric stun guns and large-capacity magazines." The change went into effect on Dec. 13, one day before a gunman walked into Sandy Hook Elementary School and killed 20 first-graders and six school employees, sparking fresh debate about gun control in the United States. [...] In late November, the Conservative government repealed Canadian gun show regulations, a move that Ontario's chief firearms officer has said could bring American-style gun-show problems to Canada. *Editorials, Columns & Opinions / Éditoriaux, chroniques et opinions*Restoring faith in the RCMP

Editorial - Canadians want to believe in the RCMP. Most of us grew up with it as a symbol of not just law and order, but the nation. Most of us see its rank-and-file members as passionate officers dedicated to protecting us. So when polls like one this week from Ipsos Reid show our faith is eroding, we know that faith was not shed easily. In B.C., which has the largest RCMP division and about a third of Canada's Mounties, it's disturbing to find the lowest levels of confidence. […] It's not surprising that British Columbians should have more doubts about the force. With 9,500 employees in B.C., the chances are much greater that something bad will happen here than in Saskatchewan, where there are 1,300 members. Indeed, some of the most high-profile controversies embroiling the force happened here, including the death of Robert Dziekanski after being tasered and the first allegations of sexual harassment of female officers. Those incidents affected all the areas where faith is slipping: the competence of individual members, the conduct of the leaders and the force's treatment of its own. A few high-profile incidents shouldn't shape our opinion of an organization of dedicated professionals who are out in our communities every day doing work that we all rely on. But the cases we have seen over the past few years suggest structural problems that need to be fixed and a management team that seems unable to fix them. The top brass promised to repair the culture that allowed sexual harassment to flourish, but has met the specific allegations with denials and painted one of the women as a drunk. Canadians have an increasing suspicion that the RCMP is solid at the bottom and rotten at the top. […] While we must not turn a blind eye to systemic problems that demand correction, we must also look critically at the incidents that have plagued the RCMP and realize that some indicate nothing more than human beings doing an incredibly difficult job. Sometimes they make mistakes and show human weakness. Society doesn't benefit when citizens lose faith in the police. We must believe in them and they must know they have our trust because when citizens and police work together, our communities are safer. We are on the same side. RCMP officers across the country do an excellent job. They will do a better one if the force can fix the problems within to restore public confidence in a vital Canadian institution. 'Left-wing extremism, 'Freemen among top domestic threats

Undated - Canadian domestic extremists are capable of orchestrating "serious acts" of political violence, according to a newly released federal intelligence report that blames such groups for nine bombings since 2004. The incidents catalogued in the "secret" report include attacks on Alberta oil pipelines and three bombings by a Quebec group called the Initiative de Résistance Internationaliste (IRI) that espouses a broad leftist agenda. While Islamist extremists have consistently ranked as the country's top terrorist threat since the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks, the report shows that most of Canada's recent politically motivated attacks were the work of domestic extremists. The Intelligence Assessment, 2012 Domestic Threat Environment in Canada: Left-Wing/Right-Wing Extremism, was written by the Canadian Security Intelligence Service in March. A declassified version was released under the Access to Information Act. It describes the activities of Canadian fringe groups that use or advocate violence, ranging from "eco-extremists" and "pro-insurrection anarchists" to "revolutionary communists" and the anti-government Freemen on the Land. The report said 2010 had seen an "unusually high" level of left-wing extremist activity, which it attributed to the G20 summit in Toronto and the Winter Olympics in British Columbia. Attacks that year included the firebombing of a Royal Bank branch in Ottawa and the IRI bombing of a Canadian Forces recruiting centre in Trois-Rivières, Que. [...] According to the report, left-wing groups have begun targeting companies linked to the correctional system. For example, a Kingston, architectural firm that designed a provincial prison was repeatedly vandalized in 2011 and "wanted posters" featuring photos of architects appeared downtown. Canada keeping an eye on Iran

Ottawa - It's business as usual for Canada, even as the U.S. looks to its closest ally for help "to counter Iran's growing hostile presence and activity in the Western Hemisphere." U.S. President Barack Obama recently signed a bill that calls on American officials to get Canadian and Mexican input over the next six months to help assess Iran's growing terrorist, criminal and diplomatic presence in Central and South America, and develop a plan to counter it. A spokeswoman for Public Safety Minister Vic Toews says Canada was helping the U.S. on these issues even before Obama signed the new bill. "Canada's position on the regime in Iran is well-known," Julie Carmichael wrote in an e-mail to QMI Agency. "We continually assess threats while cooperating with international partners, including the U.S., to address threats to our common security." [...] American officials are also alarmed by other Iranian activity. "Hezbollah and other Iranian proxies with a presence in Latin America have raised revenues through illicit activities, including drug and arms trafficking, counterfeiting, money laundering, forging travel documents, pirating software and music, and providing haven and assistance to other terrorists transiting the region," Daniel Proussalidis (Ottawa Sun p.13, Kingston Whig-Standard p.7, Toronto Sun p.21, London Free Press B3, Calgary Sun p.10, Edmonton Sun p.20)

Man confesses to killing Canadian

Lahore, Pakistan - A desperate five-month search for a missing Canadian woman has ended in tragedy for her family in B.C. Rajvinder Kaur Gill, 41, disappeared in August after travelling to Pakistan, said her family, who had been praying for her safe return. But on Tuesday, Gill's dad, Sikan-dar Singh Gill, sat in a Lahore courtroom and listened to the police chief recount a man's confession about Gill's murder. According to local media, Hafiz Shahzad Hussain had confessed to killing Gill with his cousin Sha-hid Ghazanfar, a German national. Hussain told police his cousin owed Gill money and that he invited her to Lahore to attend a diamond auction. He said they picked Gill up from her hotel, spiked her tea with sedatives and strangled her before dumping her body in a canal, news agency Press Trust of India reported. Gill, a banker, lived in Mission and Burnaby before moving to Switzerland in 2006, where she worked for Merrill Lynch, UBS and EFG Bank. Gill's family said she travelled to Pakistan to attend a conference and a diamond auction. She arrived Aug. 25, and stayed in touch with them for the first few days. They last heard from her on Aug. 27. Her dad and brother have been frantically searching for Gill, tracking her whereabouts, tracing her cellphone records and appealing to authorities, both in Canada and Pakistan. With the help of Swiss authorities, the family was able to go into Gill's apartment, in a suburb of Zurich. They also filed missing person's reports with the RCMP, Interpol and the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade. The family said Gill's Skype and cellphone records showed she had contacted various phone numbers in Pakistan, including a Pakistani TV actor/host who was the recipient of Gill's last text message before she disappeared. Gill's body hasn't been found. Police are still looking for Ghazan-far. [...] Cheryl Chan (Vancouver Province A4, Victoria Times Colonist A7)

Man gets 15 months on child porn charges

St. Stephen, NB - Shayne Richard Clark did not regret getting caught with child pornography on his computer, he said Wednesday in St. Stephen provincial court. "I am very regretful for my behaviour but one of the things I am not regretful for is that I got caught," the 31-year-old Philadelphia resident said before Judge David Walker sentenced him to 15 months in jail for possession of child pornography and a related charge of smuggling child pornography on Oct. 13. Walker subtracted 82 days for time in jail awaiting court proceedings, making the sentence just more than one year. A cursory view of Clark's computer when he entered Canada at St. Stephen on Oct. 13 revealed a short video featuring child pornography, provincial Crown prosecutor Karen Lee Lamrock said at the sentencing hearing Wednesday. Further examination revealed more. The Canada Border Services Agency and RCMP investigators found about 800 images and 384 video files showing child pornography, Lee Lamrock said. [...] In August the minimum sentence for possession of child pornography increased to six months from 45 days, Lee Lamrock said. The Criminal Code sets the maximum at five years, Walker noted. [...] Walker placed him on the sex offender registry for 10 years. Under another section of the Criminal Code he banned him from parks and swimming areas and other places young people are likely to go, employment or volunteer posts putting him in positions of trust over people less than 16, and other restrictions on contact with young people and using a computer for 10 years. Walker ordered him to provide DNA samples. Derwin Gowan (New Brunswick Telegraph-Journal C10)

Videotaping in change rooms nets charges

The family of a 14-year-old girl called Strath-cona County RCMP after spotting a recording device next to one of the change rooms. An investigation by RCMP and the Internet child exploitation unit of the Alberta Law Enforcement Response Team uncovered 13 incidents in the Sherwood Park Mall and Londonderry Mall in north Edmonton. The incidents all appear to have happened that day, police say. [...] Joshua Meilleur, 27, faces 12 voyeurism charges, one count of making child pornography, and three weapons charges. Metro Moncton priests suspended

Moncton, NB - The Moncton Archdiocese has suspended two Roman Catholic priests as a result of information brought forward by a former Supreme Court judge. In a news release sent out by Diocesan Pastoral Co-ordinator Donald Langis, it was announced that Rev. Yvon Arsenault and Fr. Irois Després have been suspended indefinitely. Arsenault was most recently a Moncton-based priest at Saint Augustine's Church and St. Michael's Church. He was removed from ministry as of July 4, and retired that same month. Irois Després was also removed from any ministry. Though he retired in 1992, retired priests can still perform duties, so the suspension will prevent that from happening. The news release states the Archdiocese of Moncton removed the two Diocesan priests "from any ministry whatsoever following allegations of serious sexual abuse on minors on their part." [...] While Arsenault and Després have been suspended indefinitely from duties, they are still priests. Defrocking a priest is a legal process which has not taken place in this instance. According to their biographies on the Moncton Archdiocese website, Arsenault is 70, while Després is 82. Both men worked in many different New Brunswick communities during their careers before retiring. [...] No information has been released regarding where and when the alleged incidents occurred. New Brunswick RCMP Cpl. Chantal Farrah says police are never able to confirm or deny if any particular individual is being investigated. "We can only confirm information if a charge has been laid," she says. Farrah adds that, generally speaking, police will investigate any complaint from a person who says they were sexually assaulted. "It's never too late for a person to make a complaint," says the corporal. "If someone has been a victim of a crime, they can bring it to the police to investigate." In the case of sexual offences against young people, there is no statute of limitations, so if police find evidence, a charge can be laid even if the offence is decades-old. Craig Babstock (Moncton Times and Transcript A1, Canadian Press, Charlottetown Guardian A6, New Brunswick Telegraph-Journal A1, Fredericton Daily Gleaner A1, La Voix de l'Est p7, La Presse A6)

Mafia hits surge in Montreal

Montreal, QC - Montreal witnessed a sharp increase in Mafia-related homicides in 2012, a tumultuous year that was marked by the return of former kingpin Vito Rizzuto. The figures show the fallout from a brutal turf war in the city that has resulted in a wave of brazen executions and attempted murders, as well as a rash of suspicious fires. In 2011, there were just two slayings that police believe were linked to Italian organized crime, but 2012 was much deadlier with five such homicides. All have occurred since the Oct. 5 release of Rizzuto from a U.S. prison, where he was serving an eight-year-prison sentence for conspiracy to commit murder related to a 1980s Mafia hit. [...] Out of 35 homicides committed last year, Montreal police also say there have seven murders linked to the "settling of accounts" between different organized crime groups and another six linked to street gang turf wars. Most of the gangland murders remain unresolved. Montreal police spokesman, Commander Ian Lafrenière, told The Canadian Press that murders linked to organized crime are tougher and more complex to investigate. Allan Woods (Toronto Star A12) Extensive media coverage – 10 + related articles

Protesters target Highway 2

High Prairie, AB - A major Alberta highway was shut down Wednesday as "Idle No More" protests continued across Canada. Sucker Creek First Nation held the "peaceful blockade" from noon until 2:00 p.m. at the intersection of Highway 2 and Highway 750. "We just found out about it today," said Sgt. Pat and Wendy - provided for situational awareness.

First Nations leaders, including between 50 to 60 chiefs from British Columbia to the Maritimes, have discussed plans to launch country-wide economic disruptions by the middle of January if the Prime Minister doesn't agree to meet with Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence.

During the discussions, some First Nations leaders suggested individual communities and treaty regions issue a "breach of treaty" declarations beginning 2013-01-01and setting 2013-01-16 as the day to launch a campaign of indefinite economic disruptions, including railway and highway blockades. Aside from blockades, chiefs discussed stepping up rallies at MP's offices, continuing letter campaigns and launching Twitter bombs. Idle No More organisers issued a statement on 2012-12-31, that distanced the movement from the chiefs.

There are also plans to hold ceremonies and vigils in Ottawa between 2013-01-10 and 2013-01-13 in support of Spence.

Weather: Sunny, -7° to -6°C, wind-chill of -15°C predicted
January 5, 2012
(CONCLUDED – No further reporting)
At 1440 EST. Cornwall & Massena International Bridges on both sides of the border re-open. All marchers that returned to the USA POE presented themselves for inspection. CBSA Cornwall E&I and Cornwall POE are all clear.
At 1346 EST, Bridge still closed from USA and from Cornwall City to the island. But in an attempt to get traffic moving people will be allowed to leave Cornwall island to Cornwall POE and Massena POE. Marchers carrying the 6 Nations (Purple Flag).
At 1309 EST, Cornwall Community Police Service (CCPS) will re-open Brookdale to regular city traffic but the bridge is still closed until all marchers are off the roads and all vehicles with this group are parked and off the roads at the Peoples Fire on Cornwall Island. Then CCPS will make the call once Akwesasne Mohawk Police Service (AMPS) give the all clear that all is safe and the bridge will re-open. Presently the large group is moving fast but there are still a lot of smaller groups moving much slower back up the bridge. It will still be some time before the walkers are all off the bridge.
2 Emergency vehicles were facilitated during this march by Police and CBSA
At 1250 EST, All marched through toll booth heading back on Bridge to Cornwall Island. Any persons carrying the black flags that have covered faces who stay in Cornwall will be approached by CCPS.
At 1218 EST, all 300 or so marched through the POE. . The Group is staking 2 flags beside the existing polls in the traffic circle, the warrior flag and the 6 nations flag (Purple flag). Smaller groups arriving on foot and are reporting into POE properly. At 1150 EST, protesters are starting to arrive at the Cornwall POE.
At 1123 EST, march continuing to Cornwall. Approx. 300 people going North. Vehicles approx. 10-15. Media (CBC) is with them.Bridge closure. CBSA POE STILL OPEN Movement started from GM plant. Approx. 30 people on island and a lot of children. A few vehicles with warrior signs and a few known warriors. A few confirmed warriors and signs and flags. Lawyer and First Nations activist Frank Horn at POE
At 0847 EST, Organizers will let the crowd decide at the staging location today if they will do both bridges or not.
Protest activity commencing in Roosevelt, New York, proceeding by foot across Cornwall Island through CBSA Port of Entry to the City of Cornwall traffic circle. The demonstrators will then return to Cornwall Island. According to Facebook, 1,100 people have indicated they will participate and organizers are expecting a large number of participants. However, inclement weather and the requirement of demonstrators to be processed by CBSA may reduce the number of participants. Indications that criminally inadmissible persons may be part of the demonstration entering Canada. Indications of possible participation by members of the Mohawk Warrior Society, The bridge will be closed to vehicle traffic during the protest (4-6 hours).

Southern Ontario Region

Fort Erie Peace Bridge
of Demonstrators: 100
2013-01-05 11:00 EST
Weather: Cloudy, -1° to 1°C
January 5, 2013
(CONCLUDED – No further reporting)
There were no reported issues.
At 1346 EST, crowds were dispersing. A small contingent remains on the Peace Bridge. Handing out flyers to provide some background on Idle No More.
At 13:00 EST, marching in unity on to the plaza heading towards the mid-point of the bridge carrying flags, banners and signs, it is a peaceful demonstration. The Peace Bridge Authority has closed one US bound lane to accommodate this peaceful demonstration. The PBA have staff stationed near the entrance from Mather's Arch onto the plaza in order to facilitate their lawful and safe entrance onto the plaza. The PBA and the organizers have agreed that this demonstration will conclude at 14:00 EST at which time the participants will begin making their way back to Canada towards Mather's Arch. Canadian residents attending the US rally are travelling by car. Local Intel / OPP Intel on site at POE and will contact US CBP at 1400 EST to determine number of Canadian residents destined to attend rally.
One warrior flag and 120-140 persons in attendance.
At 1133 EST, Fort Erie is reporting 70 protesters near regional office (Garrison Rd/ Mathers Park (near Peace Bridge). CBC and Parks Police on site – all peaceful – no extremist flags/banners. No reports from CBP of any US protesters marshalling on US side.
At 0830 EST, No new information was reported.

Weather: Cloudy/flurries, -5° to -2°C
January 5, 2013
(CONCLUDED – No further reporting)
There were no reported issues.
At 1344 EST, The Blue Water Bridge has been reopened following the conclusion of the Idle No More protest.
At 1221 EST, presence of a few Mohawk warrior flags, all peaceful at this time. POE SEN reporting temporary blockage of traffic, commercial trucks being diverted around protest group.
At 1133 EST, BWB is holding traffic coming into Canada and both CBSA and CBP is clearing any traffic in queue. Sarnia is reporting approximately 200 protesters – no extremist members observed.
According to the social media (Facebook) there is a possibility of 420 attending.
Participants are to gather at the 'Soul's Monument' located under the bridge at 1000 EST . Beginning between 1100-1130 EST, participants will march from the monument to Front Street via Venetian Boulevard. Previous information indicated participants will then enter onto Highway 402 and block traffic in both directions. As Highway 402 links directly to the Bluewater Bridge, a traffic stoppage affecting both directions of this highway will have a direct impact on bridge traffic. Information indicates that this event will include members of Aamjiwnaang First Nation and Kettle Point First Nation. Event organizers will also be advising Walpole Island First Nation, Chippewa of the Thames First Nation, Munsee-Delaware First Nation and Stoney Point First Nation should members of these communities wish to participate.

Information was received from organizers of today's demonstration of the potential of a "rogue" group planning a protest on Indian Road in Sarnia. This apparent protest is not being promoted by the Idle No More demonstration. The number of demonstrators, exact location and time is unknown.
At 0830 EST, No new information was reported.
Protest and march starting at 10:00 under the bridge, then proceeding to Highway 403 with the intention of blocking traffic, possibly affecting access to the Port of Entry. Sun Media is reporting that protestors plan to block the Canadian side of the Bluewater Bridge for one hour.

Back/Retour (#TableOfContents)

Idle No More is an ongoing protest movement originating among the First Nations and other Indigenous Peoples in Canada. It has quickly grown and garnered worldwide support from other Indigenous Peoples as well as sympathetic non-Indigenous Canadians and Americans. It has consisted of a number of political actions worldwide, inspired in part by the hunger strike of Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence and further coordinated via social media. The movement claims that the Canadian government's omnibus bill C-45 infringes on a number of historical treaty rights, however, according to open sources, Chief Theresa Spence is not supporting these protests.

Large protests are expected to take place on January 5, 2013, in various regions, with the largest protest expected to occur at the Cornwall Port of Entry in Ontario. Other smaller protests may have a limited impact on CBSA operations at ports of entry in the Southern Ontario Region (Sarnia, Fort Erie and Niagara Falls); Northern Ontario Region (Fort Francis and Sault Ste. Marie); Pacific Region (Douglas, Osoyoos, Kingsgate and Victoria) and the Prairie Region (Boissevain and Carway).

The movement has gained support from other similar mass movements, including Occupy Canada and Council for Canadians as well as Greenpeace.

Although protests conducted under the Idle No More banner remain peaceful, there is the potential for violence the more they impact the public.

The Intelligence Operations and Analysis Division (IOAD) and Regional Enforcement and Intelligence Divisions (E&I) are continuing to liaise with partner agencies, including the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP), the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP), US Customs and Border Protection (US CBP), US Border Patrol, the Canadian Security and Intelligence Service (CSIS), the Integrated Terrorism Assessment Centre (ITAC), Transport Canada (TC) and the Sûreté du Québec to monitor and assess threats in relation to planned blockades.

« Idle No More » est un mouvement de protestation en cours d'origine entre les Premières Nations et d'autres peuples autochtones du Canada. Il s'est rapidement développé et il a recueilli un soutien dans le monde entier à partir des peuples autochtones ainsi que les Canadiens et Américains non autochtones, sympathique au mouvement. Il a consisté en une série d'actions politique dans le monde entier, inspirée en partie par la grève de la faim de la chef Thérèse Spence d` Attawapiskat et plus coordonnée via les medias sociaux. Le mouvement affirme que le projet de loi omnibus du gouvernement canadien C-45 viole un certain nombre de droits issus des traités historiques. Cependant, selon des sources ouvertes, la chef Theresa Spence ne soutient pas ces protestations.
De grandes manifestations devraient avoir lieu le 5 janvier 2013, dans différentes régions et la plus grande manifestation devrait avoir lieu au port d'entrée de Cornwall en Ontario. D'autres manifestations plus petites peuvent avoir un impact limité sur les opérations de l`ASFC aux points d'entrée dans la Région Sud de l`Ontario (Sarnia, Fort Erie et Niagara Falls); Nord de l`Ontario (Fort Francis et Sault Ste Marie); Région du Pacifique (Douglas. Osoyoos, Kingsgate et Victoria) et la région des Prairies (Boissevain et Carway).
Le mouvement a gagné l'appui de d'autres mouvements de masse similaires, y compris « Occupy Canada » et le Conseil des Canadiens, ainsi que Greenpeace.
Bien que les protestions menée sous la bannière d'inactivité « Idle No More » ont restées pacifiques, il y a un potentiel de violence qui ont plus un impact sur le public.
Les opérations de renseignement et de l'analyse (IOAD) et application régionale et les divisions du renseignement (E&I) continuent d'assurer la liaison avec les organismes partenaires, y compris la Police provinciale de l`Ontario (PPO), la Gendarmerie royale du Canada (GRC), US Customs and Border Protection (US CBP), la US Border Patrol, le service canadien du renseignement de sécurité (SCRS), le Centre d'évaluation intégrée terrorisme (ACTI), Transport Canada (TC) et la Sureté du Québec pour surveiller été évaluer les menaces pas rapport aux blocages prévus.

CN obtained an Injunction through the Moncton Court of Queens Bench late this afternoon. The Injunction was served by a third party about an hour ago. The protesters removed the barricade and left the area. There is no clear indication of their intentions for tomorrow.

RCMP members on site were not required to intervene; the protest was peaceful for its duration.

Initially, their plans were to protest during the day onlyj over a period of four days. So, they could be following this plan.

We will have our members periodically check this location to determine if the protesters return. CN police are keeping a presence on site.

Members from Richibucto District will be contacting the protest leader from Elsipogtog First Nation to find out their plans for tomorrow.

Have a good evening.

PROS 2012 1642112
ABORIGINAL PROTEST - RAILWAY BLOCKADE

ISSUE:

• To inform of a protest movement by Elsipogtog First Nations in District 5, which is aimed at blocking the CN Railway for seven days.

BACKGROUND:

• Earlier today, a group of protesters set up to block a portion of the CN Railway parallel to Route 126 in Adamsville, 50 kilometres north of Moncton.

- This is a continuation of the Idle No More Protest in Rexton on December 21st to December 24th where Aboriginal protesters blocked Route11 for 4 days.

CURRENT STATUS:

- Protesters, are communicating openly with the RCMP and plan to protest peacefully 24 hours a day, each day.

- Additional resources are being deployed to assist with highway and railway safety concerns and general security. This resource will be maintained until the situation is resolved..

and a northbound passenger train is scheduled to depart from Moncton tomorrow at 16:54 hres.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

- A northbound passenger train is scheduled to depart from Moncton tomorrow at 16:54 hres, a time when the protest is expected to be over.

STRATEGIC COMMUNICATIONS:

- Our divisional media unit has developed a strategy to respond to media and public enquiries both pro-actively and re-actively

ISSUE:
Supporters of the Idle No More movement have planned a protest 2013-01-05 at the entrance to the Hardisty, Alberta Petroleum "Tank Farm" (junction of Highway 13 and Range Road 95).

Information received to date suggests a full blockade may occur.

BACKGROUND

Neither the town of Hardisty nor the "Tank Farm" are situated on First Nations land and there are no First Nations Bands in the immediate area.
Planning for this event has been ongoing for the past week and indications are the Idle No More group may enact a full blockade of the main entrance to the Hardisty petroleum "Tank Farm".

Eastern Alberta District has been fully engaged assisting Killam detachment since learning of this planned event.

CURRENT STATUS

anticipates a peaceful protest as their goal is to raise awareness about pipelines on First Nations land and to educate people about Bill C-45.

not intending a full blockade of the highway and agreed that allowing traffic flow would better serve his purpose regarding the negative impact of Bill C-45.

Following the conversation with RCMP, The majority were in favour of a full blockade at the Hardisty "Tank Farm".

Eastern Alberta District management has engaged "K" Division Criminal Operations and strategic plans have been created with adequate resources identified and deployed.

Contingency plans have also been created to address a full blockade of the "Tank Farm" should this occur.

STRATEGIC CONSIDERATIONS:

STRATEGIC COMMUNICATIONS:
"K" Division Strategic Communications Unit has been engaged and have prepared multiple media strategies to employ dependent on the circumstances.

RECOMMENDATIONS/STRATEGIC ADVICE:

Continue to engage the participants

Scenario Note

Commissioner's Visit to "E" and "K" Divisions

April 8-12, 2013

Idle No More (INM) – Aboriginal-based issues protests in British Columbia and Alberta

Item #1: "E" Division - British Columbia

Background:

- Since December 17, 2012, there have been 191 recorded events related to the "Idle No More" movement across "E" Division. Peaceful events such as rallies, marches, round dances and information sessions occurred in major cities, such as Vancouver and Victoria.

Key Issues:

- There are seven (7) events planned in "E" Division between March 22 and June 21, 2013, consisting mainly of peaceful rallies. A national scheduled event entitled "Day of Action Against Chevron and the Pacific Trail Pipeline" is currently in planning for March 30th, 2013, but has not been officially sanctioned or sponsored by INM organizers. Also, it has been reported that some protestors may attempt a border crossing without the proper documentation, on March 31, 2013, at the Peace Arch Port of Entry in Surrey.

Item #2: "K" Division - Alberta

Background:

- There were 132 peaceful events, of a similar nature to those in B.C., recorded across "K" Division in various cities, such as Calgary, Edmonton and Lethbridge.
- There was one minor incident on the National Day of Action on January 16th, reported by various media outlets, which involved a vehicle forcing its way through a roadblock on a highway outside of Edmonton.

Key Issues:

- Similar to B.C., there is a protest in planning in Calgary for March 30, 2013, in solidarity with the "Day of Action Against Chevron and the Pacific Trail Pipeline". There are two (2) events planned for April 15, 2013, in "K" Division: a march in Edmonton, and a protest at Red Deer's Courthouse.

Item #3: Joint Events

Key Issues:

- INM founders along with numerous First Nations Chiefs have announced their alliance with an organization referred to as "Defenders of the Land" (DoL). In a joint declaration published on March 18, 2013, representatives for both organizations disclosed a new course of non-violent actions (including economic disruption and civil disobedience) which will be organized under a new banner called "Sovereignty Summer". According to reports, some events will be targeting resource development projects involving pipelines, tar sands, natural gas, fisheries or mines.

- Over 80 individuals are planning to participate in the construction of an unsolicited resistance camp entitled "Unist'ot'en Protest Camp" in the Peace River Region, B.C. Some attendees would be members of/in support of the Deep Green Resistance (DGR). Local INM organizers have also stated there will be future joint events with the DGR. However, no national/official INM sites confirm that statement.

Idle No More

- 'Idle No More' (INM) is a grassroots movement that started in November 2012, and has emerged across Canada, involving peaceful protest and publicity as a reaction to perceived abuses of indigenous treaty rights by the Government of Canada, with particular issue taken around the recent omnibus Bill C-45;

- The form of protests across Canada to date, have been the use of flash mobs and impromptu round dances, pickets and blocking of public spaces.

- Most of these protests have taken place in larger urban population centres, including shopping malls and other public buildings/centres. However, the protests have also focused on key infrastructure points, particularly major highways and rail lines.

Idle No More

- Between December 2012 and May 2013, there have been numerous reports of planned protests and potential blockades in support of Aboriginal-based issues, the majority of which have been organized under the "Idle No More" (INM) banner. Approximately 930 events have been monitored for RCMP senior management situational awareness as well as public and police officer safety.

- According to reports, some events in the coming months will be targeting resource development projects involving pipelines, tar sands, natural gas, fisheries or mines.

- June is National Aboriginal History Month in Canada, as recognized by the House of Commons in 2010. Actions are expected to occur in various provinces during that month.

RESTRICTED Distribution Addendum to Situation Report

Incident Number: ST122-12F (Restricted Addendum)

Incident: First Nations Protests

Date: Information valid as of 02 Jan 2013, 15:30 EST

Source(s) of reporting: Ontario Provincial Police (OPP), Transport Canada, media/open source reporting.

Additional Restricted Information:

Potential bridge closures/disruptions planned for 05 Jan

The OPP indicated it is concerned about potential bridge closures/disruptions related to protest events, announced by Idle No More, for 05 Jan. The OPP expects slowdowns in the following areas:

- Three Nations Bridge (Cornwall)
- Blue Water Bridge
- Peace Bridge
- Tyendinaga Mohawk Territory
- Highway 17 in Nipissing

A representative from the Blue Water Bridge Authority indicated they would not tolerate any bridge closures/slowdowns on the Blue Water Bridge, citing public safety issues.

The Peace Bridge Authority (PBA) mentioned that they will treat any disruption in the same manner as they would deal with other events, such as the Niagara Marathon, Friendship Festival, etc. They noted the organizers will be applying to the PBA to conduct a "parade" across the Peace Bridge. The organizers have committed that they will not conduct a blockade of the bridge and will be entering into a written agreement with the PBA. The PBA will shut down the U.S bound curb lane for approximately an hour to accommodate the "parade". The other two lanes will remain open, one Canada-bound and one U.S.-bound. This event is scheduled to commence around 11:00 EST. It is anticipated that approximately 150-180 people will be participating. Participants will clear U.S. customs and then return to clear customs in Canada.

The OPP also advised it may be required to assist in Sarnia (rail blockade).

It was also discussed that social media indicated that Highway 403 at the Skyway may be impacted but this is unconfirmed.

Ongoing blockade in Sarnia

CN lawyers appeared in Ontario Superior Court in Toronto last week to have an earlier injunction, ordering an end to the blockade, extended for an indefinite period of time.

The Police Chief of the Sarnia Polices Services was ordered to appear in court on 02 Jan to justify his actions through the two injunctions. Superior Court Justice John Desotti indicated the Police Chief must find a means to enforce a court injunction issued on 21 Dec to end the blockade by FN protesters. Justice Desotti later adjourned court proceedings until 12:00 EST on 03 Jan. FN spokesperson Ron Plain agreed to work with protesters to end the blockade on 02 Jan. Of note, it was reported on 31 Dec that the Aamijwnaang Band Council does not support the rail blockade.

Assessment/Analysis: The GOC assesses that the court adjournment was likely initiated to provide time for all parties involved to find a peaceful resolution in order to avoid being found in contempt of Court when proceedings resume on 03 Jan.

Departments and Agencies with further information on this incident are asked to report to the GOC.

Additional Products: Geomatics and other products will be attached to a follow-on message.

Situation Report

Incident Number: ST122-12F

Incident: First Nations Protests

Date: Information valid as of 02 Jan 2013, 15:30 EST

Description of current incident: A number of First Nations (FN) Protests are occurring as a result of a grassroots campaign called "Idle No More" which is protesting Bill C-45, the government's omnibus budget legislation.

Source(s) of reporting: Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada, PS Regional Offices, media/open source reporting.

Current actions: GOC is monitoring the situation and has established contact with key federal departments/agencies and PS Regional Offices in order to maintain cohesive information sharing.

Event management of the protests falls under the purview of local jurisdictions and local law enforcement agencies, as appropriate.

On 02 Jan, approximately 50 people from the Gescapegiag FN are blocking Highway 132 in QC near the NB border.

In addition to the events mentioned in ST122-12E, two more Idle No More events are taking place on 02 Jan:

- ON: 16:00 to 18:00 EST in Sudbury. Rally at Tom Davies Square, followed by a march through the downtown area. Participants have indicated they are planning to occupy the northbound lanes of the Paris Street Bridge for 15 minutes.
- BC: 18:00 to 19:00 EST in Vancouver. A rally is planned to take place at the Waterfront Station.

At this time, the GOC is aware of the following "Idle No More" related protest planned for 03 Jan 2013:

- ON: Ongoing rail blockade in Sarnia.
- ON: 11:00 to 16:00 EST at Highway 144 across from Middle Stetham Road. Mattagami FN rally.
- QC: Since 27 Dec, demonstrators from the Listuguj Mi'gmaq FN have set up a blockade on the rail tracks at Pointe-à-la-Croix, QC in support of the Idle No More movement. The demonstrators are targeting cargo trains, and allowing passenger trains through the blockade. To date, no rail traffic has been disrupted.
- BC: 16:00 – 18:00 EST at North Island College, Port Alberni. Nuu-chah-nulth community gathering.

- SK: 18:00 – 19:00 EST in Saskatoon. Flash mob round dance.

An unconfirmed media report indicated 50 to 60 Assembly of First Nations (AFN) Chiefs have discussed plans to launch country-wide disruptions by the middle of January in support of Chief Spence. The date of 16 Jan was allegedly noted as a day to launch a campaign of indefinite economic disruptions, including railway and highway blockades. Of note, media reported that the Idle No More organizers issued a statement distancing the grassroots movement from potential actions by the Chiefs.

Assessment/Analysis: The protests have been peaceful in nature. However, some protests have disrupted rail operations and resulted in delays on various highways.

Departments and Agencies with further information on this incident are asked to report to the GOC.

Additional situation reports: Further situation reports will be issued as significant developments occur.

Additional Products: Geomatics and other products will be attached to a follow-on message.

Rapport de situation

Numéro de l'incident : ST122-12F

Incident : Manifestations des Premières nations

Date : Renseignements mis à jour le 2 janvier 2013, à 15 h 30 (HNE).

Description de l'incident : Diverses manifestations des Premières nations sont en train de se dérouler dans le cadre d'un mouvement populaire intitulé « Idle No More », qui critique le projet de loi omnibus C-45 du gouvernement portant sur le budget.

Sources des renseignements : Affaires autochtones et Développement du Nord Canada, les bureaux régionaux de Sécurité publique Canada, et les médias/sources générales.

Mesures en cours : Le COG surveille la situation et est en communication avec certains des ministères et agences fédérales clés ainsi que les bureaux régionaux de Sécurité publique Canada afin de maintenir un échange d'information cohérent.

La gestion des manifestations relève des autorités et des organismes d'application de la loi locaux, le cas échéant.

Le 2 janvier, environ 50 personnes de la Première nation de Gescapegiag ont bloqué l'autoroute 132 au Québec (Québec) près de la frontière avec le Nouveau-Brunswick (N.-B.).

En plus de celles mentionnées dans le rapport ST122-12E, deux autres activités sont prévues le 2 janvier dans le cadre du mouvement « Idle No More » :

- Ontario : De 16 h à 18 h HNE, à Sudbury. Rallye à la place Tom Davies, suivi d'une marche dans le centre-ville. Les participants ont fait savoir qu'ils prévoient occuper, pendant 15 minutes, les voies du pont de la rue Paris en direction nord.
- Colombie-Britannique : De 18 h à 19 HNE, à Vancouver. Un rallye doit se dérouler à la gare Waterfront.

À l'heure actuelle, selon les informations dont dispose le COG, les activités suivantes sont planifiées le 3 janvier 2013 dans le cadre du mouvement « Idle No More » :

- Ontario : Maintien du barrage ferroviaire à Sarnia.
- Ontario : De 11 h à 16 h HNE, sur l'autoroute 144, de l'autre côté de la route Middle Stetham. Rallye de la Première nation Mattagami.
- Québec : Depuis le 27 décembre, des manifestants de la Première nation des Mi'gmaq de Listuguj bloquent la voie ferrée à Pointe-à-la-Croix, au Québec, en soutien au mouvement « Idle No More ». Les manifestants bloquent les trains de marchandises, mais ils permettent aux trains de voyageurs de passer. Jusqu'à maintenant, la circulation ferroviaire n'a pas été perturbée.

- Colombie-Britannique: De 16 h à 18 h HNE, au North Island College de Port Alberni. Rassemblement communautaire des Nuu-chah-nulth.
- Saskatchewan: De 18 h à 19 h HNE à Saskatoon. Rassemblement éclair de danse en cercle.

Selon un reportage média non confirmé, de 50 à 60 chefs de l'Assemblée des Premières nations auraient discuté de la possibilité de lancer des mesures de perturbation à l'échelle du pays d'ici la mi-janvier en soutien à la Chef Spence. La date du 16 janvier aurait supposément été retenue pour lancer une campagne indéfinie de perturbations économiques, notamment au moyen de barricades sur des voies ferrées et des autoroutes. Il y a lieu de signaler que, selon les médias, les organisateurs du mouvement « Idle No More » ont publié un communiqué pour distancer le mouvement populaire des mesures potentielles que les Chefs pourraient prendre.

Évaluation/analyse : Jusqu'à maintenant, les manifestations ont été pacifiques. Cependant, quelques manifestations ont causé l'interruption de services ferroviaires et des retards sur diverses routes.

Les ministères et les organismes qui ont plus de renseignements au sujet de cet incident sont priés de communiquer avec le COG.

Autres rapports de situation : D'autres rapports de situation seront émis au fur et à mesure que des développements importants se produisent.

Autres produits : Des produits de géomatique ainsi que d'autres produits seront joints à des messages subséquents.

Incident: First Nations Protests

Date: Information valid as of 03 Jan 2013, 17:00 EST

Description of current incident: A number of First Nations (FN) Protests are occurring as a result of a grassroots campaign called "Idle No More" which is protesting Bill C-45, the government's omnibus budget legislation.

Source(s) of reporting: Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada, PS Regional Offices, media/open source reporting.

Current actions: GOC is monitoring the situation and has established contact with key federal departments/agencies and PS Regional Offices in order to maintain cohesive information sharing.

Event management of the protests falls under the purview of local jurisdictions and local law enforcement agencies, as appropriate.

The rail blockade in Sarnia has been removed. CN Police will be escorting trains as a precaution over the next few days.

At this time, the GOC is aware of the following "Idle No More" related protest activities planned for 04 Jan 2013:

- ON: Commencing 14:00 EST 04 Jan and ending 11:00 EST on 06 Jan at Sioux Lookout. "Idle No More" Public Pow Wow.
- QC: 09:00 – 15:00 EST in Gaspésie. Protesters from the Gesgapegiag Band Council plan to distribute pamphlets along Highway 132.

An unconfirmed media report indicated 50 to 60 Assembly of First Nations (AFN) Chiefs have discussed plans to launch country-wide disruptions by the middle of January in support of Chief Spence. The date of 16 Jan was allegedly noted as a day to launch a campaign of indefinite economic disruptions, including railway and highway blockades. Of note, media reported that the Idle No More organizers issued a statement distancing the grassroots movement from potential actions by the Chiefs.

There is a media report that Assembly of First Nations (AFN) National Chief Atleo announced that FN leaders will meet on 24 Jan, the anniversary of the Crown-First Nations Gathering. An invitation to the Prime Minister and the Governor General was sent on 01 Jan.

Assessment/Analysis: The protests have been peaceful in nature. However, some protests have disrupted rail operations and resulted in delays on various highways.

Departments and Agencies with further information on this incident are asked to report to the GOC.

Situation Report

Incident Number: ST122-12H

Incident: First Nations Protests

Date: Information valid as of 04 Jan 2013, 16:30 (HNE)

Description of current incident: A number of First Nations (FN) Protests are occurring as a result of a grassroots campaign called "Idle No More" which is protesting Bill C-45, the government's omnibus budget legislation.

Source(s) of reporting: Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada, PS Regional Offices, ON Ministry of Transportation (MTO), New Brunswick Department of Public Safety, Transport Canada, Canada Border Services Agency, media/open source reporting.

Current actions: GOC is monitoring the situation and has established contact with key partners in order to maintain cohesive information sharing.

Event management of the protests falls under the purview of local jurisdictions and local law enforcement agencies, as appropriate.

On 04 Jan, the Prime Minister announced he will be meeting with a delegation of FN leaders, coordinated by the Assembly of First Nations (AFN), on 11 Jan. The meeting will include the AANDC Minister and focus on two areas: 1) the treaty relationship and aboriginal rights and 2) economic development. Media reporting indicates Chief Spence will take part in the meeting.

The protest activities are dynamic in nature and subject to change. At this time, the GOC is aware of the following "Idle No More" related protest activities planned for 05 Jan 2013.

Protest Events (Possible Disruptions)

Rapport de situation

Numéro de l'incident : ST122-12H

Incident : Manifestations des Premières Nations

Date : Renseignements mis à jour le 4 janvier 2013, à 16 h 30 (HNE).

Description de l'incident : Diverses manifestations des Premières nations sont en train de se dérouler dans le cadre d'un mouvement populaire intitulé « Idle No More », qui critique le projet de loi omnibus C-45 du gouvernement portant sur le budget.

Sources des renseignements : Affaires autochtones et Développement du Nord Canada, les bureaux régionaux de Sécurité publique Canada, le ministère des Transports de l'Ontario, le ministère de la Sécurité publique du Nouveau-Brunswick, Transports Canada, l'Agence des services frontaliers du Canada et les médias/sources générales

Mesures en cours : Le COG surveille la situation et est en communication avec des partenaires afin de maintenir un échange d'information cohérent.

La gestion des manifestations relève des autorités et des organismes d'application de la loi locaux, le cas échéant.

Le 4 janvier, le Premier ministre a annoncé qu'il rencontrerait une délégation de chefs des Premières Nations le 11 janvier; l'Assemblée des Premières Nations (APN) va coordonner cette rencontre. La réunion, à laquelle participera le ministre des Affaires autochtones et du Nord canadien, portera, d'une part, sur les relations découlant des traités et les droits autochtones et, d'autre part, sur le développement économique. Les médias ont indiqué que la chef Spence participera à la rencontre.

Les activités associées aux manifestations peuvent changer à tout moment. À l'heure actuelle, selon les informations dont dispose le COG, les activités suivantes sont planifiées le 5 janvier 2013.

Manifestation (perturbations possibles)

- 11 h – 12 h (HNE) à Sarnia. Le pont Blue Water sera bloqué.
- 13 h (HNE) dans la région d'Hamilton. Fermeture de la route 403 au niveau de la rue Main
- Oshawa (heure non précisée). Regroupement dans la rue Albert au-dessus de la route 401.

- Il pourrait y avoir une manifestation sur la ligne ferroviaire de CN Rail à Tyendinaga dans l'Est de l'Ontario. Rem. : Via Rail a émis un avis aux voyageurs concernant un barrage possible à Marysville.
- Pic River - Marathon (10 h – 16 h [HNE]). Barrage sur la voie ferrée de CP Railway au niveau de la route 627
- Traversier de l'île Walpole (heure non précisée) : Manifestation

Nouveau-Brunswick
- La voie ferroviaire de CN Rail est actuellement bloquée près d'Adamsville, dans le conté de Kent. Le barrage pourrait être maintenu pendant plusieurs jours.
- Une manifestation pacifique se déroule, sans barrage, près de la route 102 (ancienne route transcanadienne) – à proximité de la Première Nation Kingsclear. On ne sait pas quand la manifestation prendra fin.
- Woodstock (N.-B.). Barrage à Houlton, sur la frontière avec le Maine (aurait été annulé).

Saskatchewan
- 13 h (HNE) Barrage de ralentissement pacifique sur la route transcanadienne. (Le lieu exact n'a pas encore été indiqué).

Alberta
- 8 h – 9 h (HNE) à Hardisty. « Turn off the Taps! blockade at the Pipeline Terminal » (« Fermez les robinets! Barrage au terminal pipelinier »)

Colombie-Britannique
- Douglas (Peace Arch), 14 h (HNE) : Manifestation pacifique pour « bloquer la frontière »
- Rykerts/Porthill, 17 h - 19 h (HNE) : Rassemblement de solidarité
- Coho/Seattle – Gare portuaire du traversier Victoria Clipper – Victoria (C.-B.) 17 h 30 – 20 h 30 (HNE) : Manifestation pacifique/les manifestants joueront au « jeu de l'os », jeu traditionnel, à l'entrée et à la sortie de la gare, dans l'après-midi, au moment où le traversier Coho arrivera de Port Angeles (État de Washington).

Territoires du Nord-Ouest
- 12 h – 13 h (HNE) à Fort Providence. Barrage sur la route 3 au pont Deh Cho

États-Unis
- 11 h – 12 h (HNE) à International Falls (Minnesota). Ronde pour exprimer la solidarité envers le mouvement « Idle No More » au poste frontalier d'International Falls (à Fort Frances, Ontario).

Autres manifestations

Québec
- Heure non précisée, en Gaspésie. Des manifestants venant du conseil de la bande Gesgapegiag prévoient un défilé.

Saskatchewan
- 12 h – 13 h (HNE) au White Buffalo Youth Lodge à Saskatoon. Rassemblement de soutien au mouvement « Idle No More » de Saskatoon
- 11 h – 12 h (HNE) à Buffalo Narrows. Rassemblement pacifique

Alberta

- 15 h – 18 h (HNE) au centre commercial de West Edmonton. « Latin@s in Edmonton in Solidarity with Idle No More » (personnes originaires d'Amérique latine manifestant pour soutenir le mouvement « Idle No More »)

Colombie-Britannique

- Osoyoos, 16 h (HNE) : Manifestation organisée à côté du poste frontalier (ne devrait pas perturber la circulation)
- 16 h – 18 h (HNE) au parc Centennial de Ganges, sur l'île Salt Spring. Élan de solidarité envers les Premières Nations
- 17 h – 18 h (HNE) au centre commercial Orchard Park de Kelowna. Rassemblement éclair pour faire une ronde

États-Unis

- Centre commercial Presque Isle, Maine (heure non précisée). Rassemblement éclair avec cercle de tambours

Évaluation/analyse : Bien que la rencontre du 11 janvier entre le Premier ministre et des chefs des Premières Nations, dont la chef Spence, puisse avoir un effet d'atténuation, on ne sait pas quelles seront les implications pour les manifestations prévues. Certaines activités qui devaient avoir lieu le 5 janvier ont été annulées le 4 janvier.

Jusqu'à maintenant, les manifestations ont été pacifiques. Cependant, quelques manifestations ont causé l'interruption de services ferroviaires et des retards sur diverses routes.

Les ministères et les organismes qui ont plus de renseignements au sujet de cet incident sont priés de communiquer avec le COG.

Autres rapports de situation : D'autres rapports de situation seront émis au fur et à mesure que des développements importants se produisent.

OVERVIEW:
On 2012-12-29, Chief Theresa SPENCE of the Attiwapiskat First Nation (FN) issued a 'call out' via the media asking for solidarity ceremonies, events and rallies to occur on 2012-12-30.

police reports indicate previously unscheduled events are now being planned for today. An example of responding to Chief SPENCE's 'call out' is a rally in Edmonton, AB, and a blockade by members of Kitigan Zibi FN members in Quebec (QC). Consequently, it is anticipated there will be events occurring throughout the day that are not covered in this daily situation report. (A)

Information received indicates a total of seven (7) Canadian and one (1) international event are organized for December 30, 2012 in, Alberta (AB), British Columbia (BC), Ontario (ON), Quebec (QC), and Washington, DC, USA. These direct actions include a 'flash mob round dance,' a possible blockade, and a rally at the provincial legislature in AB; a continued Seton Lake Indian Band protest along a CN rail line, and demonstration at a local gas station in BC; a continued presence at the CN rail site in Sarnia, ON; blocking of Route 105 by members of the Kitigan Zibi FN in QC; and, a 'flash mob round dance' in the courtyard of the Washington, DC Canadian Embassy. Open source and police reports indicate these events are expected to be peaceful. (A)

Reports indicate there are two (2) events planned for December 31, 2012 in ON and Manitoba. (U)

RCMP Situation Report – Protests: Aboriginal-based Issues

Date: 2013-01-16

There have been several media and social networking reports of planned protests and potential blockades in support for the "Idle No More" (INM) Aboriginal-based solidarity movement. These protests are being monitored for RCMP senior management situational awareness and public and police officer safety.

A large volume of events are expected for January 16. This report concerns today's events only. These lists may not be complete as the environment is constantly changing, nor is it confirmed that these events have actually taken place.

Demonstrations, traffic disruptions, as well as highway and rail blockades are occurring across Canada today, in support of the Idle No More Movement. These events are intended to cause economic disruption and raise awareness of Aboriginal issues. According to media reports, Chiefs and organizers have called for peaceful demonstrations, and will not condone violence.

One of the larger demonstrations in Ontario is occurring at the Ambassador Bridge in Windsor, where up to 1000 participants are expected. This event is in support of the First Nation leadership, not a part of the INM protests, according to Chief Gord Peters. Media reports indicate that organizers will not block the bridge but instead plan to hold a peaceful march, ending in a rally with speeches and a round dance. Reportedly, the Bridge Authority served an injunction forbidding protestors from blocking access to the bridge, but allowed them access to an area adjacent to the Bridge to conduct their ceremonies and speeches. Protestors are expected to include members of local Unions, the CAW, and Occupy Canada.

According to the media, Chief Theresa Spence has renewed her demand for the Governor General and the Prime Minister to meet with all First Nations chiefs on January 24, the first anniversary of the Crown-First Nations gathering. Information suggests that Chief Spence is continuing her hunger strike, despite the efforts of her supporters and various chiefs to convince her to end it, in an effort to attract international attention.

Hearings into the Enbridge Northern Gateway Project will continue across the province of British Columbia (BC) for the next few weeks. Ongoing protests against this project have merged with the Idle No More movement, with the changes to federal environmental laws arising as a common focal point for the two groups. Some BC First Nations groups travelled great distances to join these protests in Vancouver.

Reports indicate there are close to 70 events planned across Canada today.

RCMP Daily Situation Report – Protests: Aboriginal-based Issues

Date: 2013-02-04

There have been several media and social networking reports of planned protests and potential blockades in support for the "Idle No More" (INM) Aboriginal-based solidarity movement since December 10, 2012. These protests are being monitored for RCMP senior management situational awareness as well as public and police officer safety.

This report will provide a summary of reported planned events in Canada being organized within the next 24 hours, as well as events planned until February 9th. These lists may not be complete as the environment is constantly changing, nor is it confirmed that these events have actually taken place.

some members of the Muskowekwan FN are planning another rail/road blockade at the Watrous Sub outside Lestock, Saskatchewan (SK) which could last 24 hours. In late January, CN requested and received a province-wide injunction relating to Aboriginal blockades in this province.

The Idle No More (INM) movement continues to attract other activist groups to its cause: anti-nuclear activists, along with INM protestors, were demonstrating outside a nuclear processing facility in Toronto, Ontario on February 3rd. According to one anti-nuclear activist, anti-nuclear issues now belong with the INM movement.
